THAT the Standard oil trust has concluded to go out of business is supposed to be due to the influence of Senator Sherman's anti-trust law.

THE democracy of Nebraska doubtless seek an alliance with the people's party in an endeavor to push the tate out of the republican column.

How outck all over the whole country has spread the idea that public moneys should be used only for the public benefit, and that sinking funds and daily balances in the treasuries should be bringing in some revenue to the people to whom they belong!

NEBRASKA's young democratic congressman, Mr. Bryan, of the First district, spoke three hours the other day on the tariff, engaging the attention of a majority of the house, something very unusual these times. Mr. Bryan is a pretty good kind of a man, in spite of his democracy, and that isn't of the very worst, either.

THE JOURNAL is of the opinion that in Senator Hill the democracy have a man of more than the ordinary mauaging ability. His career so far while it has shown him not particularly nice as to his means of success, has evidenced that he possesses the faculties of a full-blown politician, which with a great many pass for marks of the statesman.

He has often spoken of a bullet in his head and the story was received with winks, for Massey soon gained a reputation for being a little unsound in mind. A number of years ago he made application for a pension but failed to get it, because he could not show the bullet, and he lived out his life, growing more unsound every year, till he became totally incapacitated for work. He died a short time ago. An autopsy showed a large buckshot lodged in the brain, where it had been imbedded twenty years before. There is now no good reason why his widow should not receive the pension; the government cannot longer deny the presence of the bullet.

Senator Hill does not go south in a very cheerful frame of mind, as he fears that a trap is being set to make him say whether he is for or against free coinage. Some of his friends in congress say that personally he favors it, but that, owing to the almost unanimous sentiment of his state, he will probably vote against it when it comes up in the senate. They say also that he is willing to promise not to veto it should be be elected president and the bill pass both houses of the next congress. It seems to be considered a necessity in the field of advertising to draw a vastly magnified picture. "Judicious advertising" may be a business necessity; but it seems to the writer that before the public can ever be induced to give it much attention, it must be taken from the prepos-terous hyperbole of speech in which it is clothed, and brought down to the level of plain facts.

We wish to call attention to one particular in some of our seedmen's catalogues which is in point. Prominent among the many novelties offered for the last few years stands the "Moonflower." It would be well for people to learn to distinguish the botanical character and classification of plants. The moonflower belongs to a class known as the "Ipomoea," a large and widely distributed family. It will be recognized at once by the aweet potate, yam, madeira vine (closely related to the sweet potato), the morning glory, cypress vine and others. The true moonflower is a tender annual from the south, closely related to the morning glory. There are, however, many varieties, and among them one recently brought to notice as the hardy moonflower, whose roots live in the ground year after year, the tops only freezing down. The roots are tuberous, in fact this is a characteristic tendency of the whole relationship.
