Mayor Schupbach, in taking the chair, promised to work for the best interest of the people of the city, and expressed the hope that the administration of the affairs of the city during the coming year would be such as to retain the confidence the people had expressed.

At this point a package was passed to Councilman Gray by ex-Councilman Gondring who said that citizens of the Third ward wished Mr. Gray to present t to Councilman-elect Newman. Mr. Gray delivered a very eloquent little speech saying in substance that Mr. Newman's friends were disposed to testify their appreciation at the sudden elevation of their friend to the city council and to entertain hopes of his further advancement. A distinguished friend of his once remarked that to have true fame, a man must be large or have a heavy coat of hair. What is the Mode and Object of Bantism? EDITOR JOURNAL:-Two respectable citizens of Columbus, Mr. Hurd and Mr. Galley, have published in the Argus short articles regarding the ordinance of baptism. 1. What is Baptism? It is an ordi nance instituted by our Divine Savior, and as in the whole multiplication table from "twice one is two" way up into the millions and beyond them, only this simple addition of one to one made two, so surely there is but one action real baptism and that can be only the one instituted by the great head of the church-one in subject, mode and object. Hence the scripture says, one baptism. Eph. iv:5.

together over it. 4. In its object. Baptism is not saving ordinance as Mr. Galley maintains. If it were, then the whole plan of salvation would be useless. Just be baptized (and saved) would be the whole of it in a nutshell. But we are told to repent and believe and be baptized. If Mr. Martin Heintz had been a proper subject of baptism, and if he had been baptized as he was sprinkled in his infancy, and if Mr. Galley's assertions were correct, then the Rev. Mr. Miessler would have been still more out of the way by refusing to bury a man who, according to Mr. M's church doctrine and practice had been made a christian and

But sprinkling is not baptism, babes are not proper subjects for baptism, and nance. So much negatively, now for the positive: Baptism is the voluntary act of obedience to his Savior of a believer, and consists in the immersion of such a believer (or saved person) in the name of the holy trinity.

"If ye love me keep my command ments," says our blessed Redeemer and "Blessed (i. e. happy) are they that keep his commandments," and the whole tenor of the New Testament shows that 'Arise and be baptized!" is the first command of the Lord to every believer. Just as the existence of counterfeit proves that there is real money in the world, so the many human inventions called baptism prove that there is one
