BLAINE is slowly improving.

VERPLANCK COLVIN of New York has telescope. A peculiar oblique refraction of rays of light is observable from objects in the horizon, when influenced by THE COMET IN SIGHT. the commencement of air currents from any direction. It is said to be a simple process easily made use of by any one, and promises to be a very valuable discovery to mariners, agriculturists and commanders of armies, as the weather can be foretold three days.

THE Farmers' congress was in session last week at Lincoln. Among the most interesting addresses of the occasion was that of W. P. Yeaman of Missouri on the interdependence of agriculture and transportation. He entered into the philosophy of the matter, and said that agriculture ought to be the most remunerative and influential pursuit of civilized life, the poorest paid and least influential of any of the divisions of active and progressive life, but he thought that the farmer could get on in the world without the present mammoth carrying trade. He believed there was something out of joint with the interstate commerce commission, and thought the farmers' conrporations, sell only to actual settlers, shut down on big steals, modify reckless pension appropriations, and and "leave a little wider margin to the producers of the world's sustenation."

THERE is a great difference between men. Some democrats are even better than some other democrats. The most illustrious of all democrats in the estimation of the hosts of common people was General Jackson-he was a patriot, an ardent lover of his country; however pig-headed he seemed to be at times, there was no man firmer in the discharge of duty than he was, and when Calhoun undertook to nullify the laws of the in Jackson. There was another democratic president, who, it was supposed, scholarly and all that, but when the crucial time came, he could not stand the test, didn't have either the stamina or the patriotism of Jackson, and so became infamous for all time with patriots. Buchanan was an ordinary man, but the scopes to bear upon the comet and will occasion called for the extraordinary also take several photographs of the statesman and patriot, and he did not visitor. and could not satisfy the conditions. The men who count for something in the history of their race, the men whose memory is cherished as a rich inheritance are not those who are narrowed down to their own individual welfare, who see nothing of value in laboring for the good of their fellow-men, but those who give freely, and as they have opportunity, of their time, their labors, their thoughts and longings to their country- St. George. men. Washington, almost faultless in judgment: Franklin, full of practical suggestions; Hamilton, a wonderful gen ius for government; John Quincy Adams a scholar and statesman; Jackson, determination personified; Lincoln, the beloved martyr, the common people's best whole American people. We have been led to these remarks from a paper paragraph stating that when the funeral expenses of the late Samuel J. Randall of the tunities for feathering his nest, this one in judgment now, even at the risk of fact speaks louder for his honesty than a bronze tablet or a tombstone could ever do."

She will overhaul every frame in the hives, putting them into the best possible condition; then, if they are short of stores, will give frames of well ripened honey carried over for this very purpose, or feed them tempting sugar syrup, either of which will cause them to build up rapidly—which is just what she wants them to do. When she has beguiled them into filling their hive to overflowing with bees, and has taken recaution to have it so at a time when she knows there will be an abundance of honey-producing plants in blcom, she continues her kindness to them still further by giving them a case of sections all nicely filled with foundation, and the poor, deluded little dupes rush into those sections pell-mell and fill them with honey in less than no time. IN BEHALF OF SILVER. The United States Submits portunt Propositions. BRUSSELS, Nov. 28 .- The proposals made by the American delegates to the monetary conference at yesterday's ession were printed in parallel colmus, one in English, the other in French and were distributed among he delegates, each receiving a copy as he entered the conference room. The oposals substantially say: It is generally admitted that a large depreciation of silver as compared with gold is frequent. Violent fluctuations of gold, and in the price of silver incident thereto, have been injurious to the commercial and other economic interests of all civilized countries and have caused and are causing serious evils and inconveniences to trade, the full extent of which cannot vet be measured. It is the unanimous opinion of the people of the United States that the establishment of a fixity of value of gold and silver and the full use of silver as a coin metal upon a ratio fixed by agreement between the great commercial nations of the world will greatly promote the prosperity of all classes of the people. They, however, are not aware of the fact that public opinion in some other countries whose cooperation in successful movement is most desirable is not fully in accord with the views of the practicability of such an agreement. They believe that a sentiment in favor of a larger use of silver is steadily growing throughout the world, and that the time is propitious for holding an international conference to consider the subject. The government of the United States, while disclosing its own views of the proper remedy to be applied, does not wish to impose any conditions that will embarrass any government willing to confer on the question of the most cadvantageous relation of silver to the coinage of the world. The government of the United States, for these reasons, proposed a convention of the powers for the purpose of conferring and determining what means, if any, should be aken to increase the use of silver as money. The United States delegates, in conformity with the general purpose of the conference, submit the folowing resolution: "That, in the opinion of this conference, it is desirable that means be found for increasing the use of silver of the world."

WAVERLY, IOWA, Nov. 15, 1892,
G. D. Bruce Tudor, Esq.,
Dear Sir.—After wearing your glasses three weeks I feel I cannot say enough for them, nor for your special method of skillful fitting. For the past eighteen years I have been a constant sufferer from defective sight (Compound Myopic Astigreatism). Nothing I could get was satisfactory until your examination which I attended was strictly scientific, and inspired me at once with confidence in your ability.

I now have no trouble in reading the finest print by night or day; and to all those in need of glasses I most cheerfully recommend you as a Scientific Optician.
