d. Hunscot Takes the Pistol Route to Ric Last Thursday morning between 8 and o'clock, Ed. Hunscot of Duncan lay down on his bed, took a loaded pistol. placed the muzzle in his mouth and fired, the ball lodging in the left jaw.

The bed was saturated with the vital signs of violence than those mentioned. The young man had been married but four months, and the cause for the deed is not known, unless it was during a fit of temporary insanity. Coroner Heintz, accompanied by Dep-uty Sheriff Campbell, went up Friday, the Coroner holding an inquest, the fol-

The inquest was held at the hotel of Mrs. Anna Mahler, and the verdict of the jury was, in brief, "suicide."

Found for the Defendant. Judge Hensley and a jury were occupied yesterday afternoon in the trial of a case wherein S. H. Tucker, of Vermont, was plaintiff, and M. K. Turner was defendant. The suit was brought to recover payment on a note for $500. dated Nov. 12, 1887, due in two years terest, purporting to have been given by George W. Kibler with Turner as surety. Mr. Turner's defense was that his name on the note was a forgery, not being placed there by himself. Although the signature was a very good imitation of Mr. Turner's signature, so good, in fact, that two or three experts from the banks As Can be Found in This Section of Nebraska. said they would have no hesitancy in accepting it as genuine, but the art of
