The report says: "It is a most noteworthy fact, well worth the consideration of American farmers, that the hog products that command the highest price in the English markets come from countries that are not noted for the production of corn, namely: England, Ireland and Denmark. The quality and consequent high price of English. Irish and Danish bacon is due, first to the feeding of the hog and second to the manner of curing. The best quality of bacon is produced by feeding barley, rve, wheat and peas, boiled potatoes, skimmed milk, buttermilk and wher, The nogi should range in weight from 180 to 200 pounds and should be long and lean, with well-developed hams, thick, straight belies, and the fat on the back should not exceed one and a half inches in thickness. The shoulders, sides and hams are cured in one piece. The overfat, corn-fed hog does not make the finest bacon and does not bring the highest price.
