Thirteenth St., Columbus, Nebraska.

Wednesday was circus day, and well did the citizens of Columbus and vicinity enjoy it. The heat did not seem to interfere with the great crowd of people

The parade took place at 10:30, the lazzling beauty of which cannot be lescribed on paper, after which the imnense crowd repaired to the show grounds, eager for the opening of Cook & Whitby's great show, the exact equal of which has never been witnessed in Columbus. The management of this great aggregation are gentlemen. They do business on business principles and in a manner that makes it a pleasure

The balancing by the little Japanese boys was excellent,—a whole show in themselves—as were also the transeze Lamps, Glassware, hemselves—as were also the trapeze acts, and the flying leap is unequalled. The boxing match attracted much attention, and the lady was evidently at home with the gloves and cuffed her opponent about at will. The daring bare-

For twenty-three years he has made use of printer's ink without stint in advertising circuses, and he knows where and how to use it where it will do the most good, and you don't have to run all over the show ground to get your money, for he walks into the office on the morning of the show and pays like a man. Long and pleasant may be the journey of Willis Cobb through this vale

Music is always an essential part of the enjoyment of great crowds of people. but Prof. Goetz, himself a composer of note, with his band of thirty pieces, makes the music of Cook & Whitby's show a pleasure to be long remembered. and many of the choice selections are of his own arranging, the opening piece of Wednesday night, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," being among the number.
