

"August Flower"

Eight doctors treated me for Heart Disease and one for Rheumatism, but did me no good. I could not speak aloud. Everything that I took into the stomach distressed me. I could not sleep. I had taken all kinds of medicines. Through a neighbor I got a bottle of your August Flower and took it. I am to-day stout, hearty and strong and enjoy my life and health. August Flower saved my life and gave me my health. Mrs. Sarah J. Cox, Defiance, O.

"QUITTING" returned the major, ignoring the last words.

"Then, Israel, load those pistols, and do it carefully," commanded the colonel. "Do you hear me?" as the darkey stood gaping at him with a terror-stricken face.

"Yes, marse," mumbled Israel, picking up the weapons mechanically. He moved over to a nearby stump, and for a minute sat motionless with the pistols in his lap. The colonel's thumbs thrust forward, and the darkey's eyes followed him to the ground.

"Israel," said the colonel a bit huskily, "Count one, two, three, and if you are killed, see that I am decently buried!"

The major winced perceptibly at this last order; but the next instant was as calm as the water in a pond. He raised the pistols, and the colonel, who was standing by his side, raised his own.

"One! Two! Three!" counted Israel. The pistols crackled together, and a cloud of blue smoke billowed over the men, and then drifted lazily before the wind.

"That was the matter with the major's lip," he remarked. "He was not a little out of sync, was he?"

"No more than yours, Major Hawkins!" retorted the colonel. "Ten paces and a good light! You should be hit to certain!"

"Then all I can say," came slowly from the colonel's lips, "is that you are no greater a shot than I." The colonel started as if he had been stung.

SHORT OCEAN ROUTE. A New Line Proposed From Montreal to Havre, England, to London.

Some time ago a syndicate of English capitalists sent a corps of engineers to explore the Labrador coast for the purpose of reporting upon the feasibility of shortening a line of steamships the shortest passage between this country and Great Britain.

The tenor of the report was such that a company is being formed to carry out the project. The desire of the company is not only to make an appreciable reduction in the time of passage between America and Europe, but also the connection of a far-off, but interesting, country with the railroad systems of the United States and Canada.
