Don't forget the entertainment on the 4th, at the opera house. All old soldiers and their families should see it to picture to them the old times during the war. W. F. Beckett, late band-master of the Government Indian school at Genoa, has composed and had printed "The Indian Cadet March," a fine piece of music, a copy of which has been received at this office. Saturday evening last while Patrick Macken was standing behind the counter of his saloon in Platte Center, he was struck in the ear by a bottle filled with pop, thrown by Ed. Morrissey, and as a result, without any protraction at all, and without warning to Mr. Macken, he was knocked him after he was down. A number of men present saw the cowardly assault. Mr. Macken was unconscious for an hour. Morrissey is in jail and will be prosecuted.

John Becker has had fire of the large cottonwood trees bordering his sidewalk on the west cut down, making quite a bit of fuel for him. One of the trees fell towards the house and doubtless would have crushed in the roof of the kitchen, had it not caught, in its fall, the limb of another tree. As it was, the roof of the kitchen was but slightly damaged. Too much shade on a dwelling house is not good, neither is it well to run the risk of having the wind blow big trees down over your head.

Don't forget the entertainment tomorrow (Thursday) evening at the opera house for the benefit of the Woman's Relief Corps, a patriotic organization for the relief of human suffering, a society that has done great good in this community, and whose usefulness could be wonderfully extended by lending it a helping hand. Harry E. Burgess, of the Pawnee Medicine Co., is visiting relatives at Wheatland for a few days. THE JOURNAL of Columbus, Nebraska, in noting the manager's connection with the Four Corners, says: "Our old friend Watta, W. Burgess is doing his work in good form. His acquaintances here will always be glad to know of his success." Thanks, Bro. Turner. Your little "send off" is appreciated and takes the manager back to the glorious days of dreary blizzards when the hospitality and warmth of THE JOURNAL office materially conditioned the outward pressure of otherwise blameworthy Nebraska. [Wheatland, (Cal.) Four Corners.]

Several years ago Rev. William Pittenger wrote a book called "Daring and Suffering," giving a very graphic description of the raid made by 22 Union soldiers of the 2d, 21st and 23d Ohio regiments, acting under the orders of Gen. O. M. Mitchell, in which a train of cars was captured in Georgia, in 1862, from the enemy's camp, surrounded by 10,000 armed rebel soldiers. W. J. Knight, the engineer of the expedition, the first to board the train and the last to leave it, will be here Jan. 4th to portray, in thrilling language, and many life-size oil paintings, the capture of the train, the capture of the telegraph wires, tearing up track and burning bridges, the pursuit by rebels, the hanging of a deserter, plot to capture the jailer, capture of the guards, the pursuit by blood-hounds, etc., the whole forming one of the most daring adventures in the annals of war.

Geo. T. Angell, president of the American Humane Education Society, 19 Milk street, Boston, is the address of a man who has become famous throughout christendom for the good he has done, which, after all, is the only fame worth having. The society, under the direction of Mr. Angell, inspired by his enthusiasm and awayed largely, doubtless, by his good judgment, have done an immense amount of work, greater in scope and more lasting in influence than many so-called religious associations. Of the book "Black Beauty" read doubtless by scores of JOURNAL readers, the society has sent out about one million and a half copies. They have recently issued two new prize stories, "Holly-burst," and "The Strike at Shane's," which they believe will have as extensive a circulation as "Black Beauty," which is known as "The Uncle Tom's Cabin of the Horse." Ten cents a copy buys either of these books.

John L. Sturgeon had quite a bit of experience with irrigation in Montana, and thinks the location of this city very well situated for being readily supplied with water in abundance, making the water in consequence at least double what it now is. One-sixteenth of an inch a rod is all the fall that is necessary, and the sand in our soil is very easy to manage, with such a ditch, there being no "wash." The ditches in Montana are mainly five feet across on top, three feet at bottom, and three feet deep. He tells us that about a mile north of Ulysses, this state, the renter on George Smith's farm (who, by the way, pays a rental of five dollars an acre), has a steam engine with which he pumps water from the Blue river into a reservoir from which he draws for irrigating the farm. He is engaged in mixed farming, raises a considerable quantity of vegetables, and makes enough out of his crop of cucumbers, which he raises for the seed, to pay all expenses of his farm.

It would seem, from I. Gluck's speech before the council, and his change of front as to covering his building with iron, that he has come to the conclusion to lock horns with the council on the enforcement of the fire-limit ordinance. He probably is of the opinion, after investigation, either that the method of others (namely to cover their wooden buildings with iron), is not a compliance with the ordinance, or that the ordinance is vulnerable in some particular.

Mr. Gluck is very positive in his assertion that the councilman of the First ward (meaning Sperry), is "after him." So far as anything the rest of us can see, it does not appear that either he or the council as a body desire anything more from Mr. Gluck than of any other citizen, similarly situated, and of course that is the way to measure their action. The ordinance should have a reasonable construction, and be enforced alike upon all. THE JOURNAL believes that when the ordinance says that houses erected in the limits must be constructed of brick, stone, iron or other incombustible material, it does not mean brick, stone or iron veneering. A house built of brick, does not, surely, mean, one whose walls are frame, with an outside coating of brick. If the ordinance is faulty, give us a new one.

Clinton C. Gray and family had a narrow escape from death by suffocation last Saturday night. Mr. Gray retired after leaving the kitchen range, in which hard coal is burned, as he had been doing for several months, during which time no gas had been noticed to escape. He was called by one of the children at about 5 o'clock Sunday morning to shut the door into the kitchen, the lad never liking to have it open; this he did and went to bed again. At 6 he woke up with a headache, and was dimly conscious of something wrong, either that they had all been chloroformed or that escaping gas from the stove had overcome them. The house was opened and the gas soon escaped, but it was only after the call of a physician, and a rest until 2 o'clock in the afternoon, that they were freed from the influence. A window was open from the top near Mr. Gray's bed, and it is supposed that the gas was condensed in the parents' room, making it worse for them than for the children. Mr. Gray's father thought that if the children had not wakened, their parents would have been suffocated to death.

The Chautauque circle held their annual gathering Monday night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sheldon, a large crowd of our invited guests participating with them in an evening of enjoyment. The following persons gave interesting articles in the educational line: Dr. Nauman, Miss Spencer, W. A. McAllister and C. A. Brintley. Miss Ida Martin recited in her usual pleasing manner. Vocal music was rendered by Dr. Nauman, Miss Spencer, Miss Ida Martin and Clara Martin and Alice Matthews, in a trio; Miss Ruby Rickley, solo; C. J. Garlow and Miss Kendrick, duo, and Misses Martha and Alice Turner, duet. Instrumental selections were given by Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. Voss, Mrs. Hockenberger, Miss Eulalia Rickley and Miss Florence Gleason. Instrumental duet by Mrs. Barber and her sister, Miss Edna Brace. After the program, tempting refreshments were served by the ladies. All guests pronounced a Chautauque circle royal entertainment.

School Board. The board met in regular session Monday evening at the office of Secretary Taylor, all members being present except Henry and Schuppach, detained at home by sickness. Vice-president Speice occupied the chair.

The minutes of the meeting of Dec. 4, were read and approved. The report of the superintendent showed the whole number of scholars enrolled 6911; whole number belonging for the month 629; average daily attendance 5311; teachers' average daily attendance 95.5; teachers' tardy 5, minutes lost 26; pupils' tardy 85, minutes lost 633; visits by sup't 73, by members of board 10, others, 60; cases of corporal punishment, one in Miss Taylor's room; Mr. Leavie's room gained the half holiday for highest per cent of attendance and fewest minutes lost by tardiness; $72.75 had been collected for tuition, and he recommended that $100 be placed to the credit of the library fund, there are some works of reference much needed by pupils of the high school.

On motion of Taylor seconded by Kramer, the report was received and the recommendation adopted. The following accounts having been audited, were allowed and warrants ordered drawn on the proper funds: A. Berger, $7.05; Houghton, Miffin & Co. $38.25; J. B. Delaman $2.40; J. H. Galley $5; Lincoln School Supply Co. $27.20.

It seems that the board had a contract with Mr. East on blackboards, but that, as he had not complied with his contract, they had withheld the balance until he could do so. In the meantime he had given an order to the B. & M. agent, on the board, to pay a freight bill of $8.60, which the board were about to grant and credit on account, when it occurred to them to look over the order carefully, and they found that it read: "On acceptance of balance due as per statement," etc., and the order was not honored.

Speice of the committee to ascertain the amount of funds on hand available for the redemption of outstanding bonds reported that on Dec. 1, '93, there was $3,089.83; subtracting interest payment to be made, $361.35, would leave $2,728.48. The committee had not yet ascertained whether the parties holding bonds would accept payment before due, but took it for granted that they would.

The new school house problem was talked of informally, the members of the committee present stating that they hoped to make their report in writing at the next meeting, with recommendations. The drift of the talk was towards selling the Third ward property (except the frame building, and move that to the Second ward school); ask the voting of bonds for two school houses, say $6,000 for the west end of the city, and $9,000 for the one in the neighborhood of L. Gerrard's residence. It was thought that $1,000 could be realized from the sale of the Third ward building, and $1,500 for the grounds.

Adjourned, to meet at the call of the president, to hear the report of the committee on buildings and grounds, and to take action thereon if thought best.

Now is the time to subscribe for THE JOURNAL and the Semi-Weekly Lincoln Journal, both for $2 a year, when paid in advance.
