Devine for Congress. Tuesday last the populist convention for the Third congressional district was held at Norfolk.

THERE were two divisions among the delegates, part favoring J. M. Devine, 77 votes, the others, John S. Robinson of Madison, 69 votes.

There was only eight of a difference, but this was too much for even Senator Allen to overcome, although he was there with a speech and resolutions to match.

IF Devine has not changed his mind, he is one of the best informed of Nebraska politicians on the tariff question, and a high-protective tariff man on principle.

IT is not generally known that the senate tariff bill that passed congress Monday last week and went to the president is a protective measure to some extent. It could not well be otherwise than slightly protective and raise any revenue at all. The bill protects coal, iron ore, sugar, and wool, and to some extent on wool, one of the chief products of the northern farmers. There was so much cry against tariff on tin, but this is a duty on one of the chief products of a country. It puts a duty on tobacco and cigars, liquors, white lead, marble, precious stones and the list of imports generally. A poor kind of certainty is better than uncertainty, and for this reason, this bill, bad as it is from a republican stand-point and from the business view of the country, ought to give a little better prospect than we have had. Let us make the most and the best of what we have, and when next the democratic party is entrusted with any power of administration, let it be after they shall have demonstrated something of fitness for the work.

MCKINLEY LAW IS DEAD.

Cleveland Could Not Sign the New Tariff Bill.

WRITES A LETTER TO CATCHINGS.

Says It Is Inconsistent and Not in Line With Tariff Reform—Emphasizes the Importance of Free Raw Materials.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—At 12 o'clock Monday night the McKinley law, which has been in operation since Oct. 30, 1890, practically four years, died on the statute books, and the new Democratic tariff bill, passed by the Fifty-third congress, became a law without the signature of President Cleveland, the constitutional 10 days allowed the president to consider the bill having expired.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The president Monday sent the following letter to Representative Catchings (Miss.), who composed to its publication in view of its public character and importance: EXECUTIVE MANSION, Aug. 27, 1894. Hon. T. C. Catchings.

My DEAR SIR—Since the conversation I had with you and Mr. Clark of Alabama a few days ago in regard to my action upon the tariff bill now before me, I have given the subject my full and most serious consideration. The result is that I am more settled than ever in the determination to allow the bill to become a law without my signature.

When the formulation of legislation which it was hoped would embody Democratic ideas of tariff reform was lately entered upon, I was not only not unhappy, but I was gratified that I should be permitted to participate in it. I do not claim to be better than the people, and I do not wish to avoid any responsibility which, on account of the passage of this law, I ought to bear as a member of the Democratic organization, neither do I permit myself to be separated from my party to such an extent as might be implied by my veto of tariff legislation, which, though disapproved, is still chargeable to Democratic efforts.

It is not my duty to sign a bill which is not in line with honest tariff reform and it contains inconsistencies and crudities which ought not to appear in a tariff law or laws of any kind. Besides, there were, as you and I well know, incidents accompanying the passage of the bill through congress which made every sincere patriot unhappy, while influences surrounded it in its later stages and interfered with its final construction which ought not to be recognized as the result of Democratic tariff reform.

And yet, notwithstanding all its vicissitudes and all the bad treatment it received at the hands of the republicans, it presents a marked improvement to existing conditions. It will certainly lighten many tariff burdens that now rest heavily upon the people. It will not only lighten the burden of the tariff, but it will also furnish a vantage from which might be waged further aggressive operations against protective monopoly and governmental favoritism.

Deadly Blight of Treason. I take my place with the rank and file of the Democratic party who believe in the right of the people to determine their own destiny. I am proud of my party organization because it is comparatively sturdy and persistent in the enforcement of its principles. I am proud of the efforts made by the house of representatives to supplement the bill already passed by further legislation and to have engraved upon it such modifications as will more nearly meet Democratic hopes and aspirations.

Necessity of Free Raw Materials. I must be mistaken as to the necessity of free raw materials as the foundation of logical and sensible tariff reform. The extent to which this is recognized in the legislation already passed is so far-reaching that it disregarded a complete and beneficial scheme of tariff reform cannot be successfully inaugurated.

Cost of Production Cheapened. With material so cheapened by their freedom from tariff charges the cost of their products must be correspondingly cheapened. Thereupon justice and fairness to the consumer would demand that the manufacturer be willing to agree to such a readjustment and modification of the tariff upon their finished goods as would reduce the cost of their manufacture and shield the consumer against the exactions of inordinate profits.

When we have free raw materials and a just and fearless regulation and reduction of the tariff to meet the changed conditions would carry to every humble home in the land the blessings of increased comfort and cheaper living. The millions of our countrymen who have fought bravely and well for tariff reform should be exhorted to continue the struggle until they have secured the freedom and constantly guarding against treachery and half-heartedness in their camp.

Tariff reform will not be settled until it is honestly and fairly settled by the people and to the benefit of a patient and long suffering people. Yours very truly, GROVER CLEVELAND.

Supplies for This Month. WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The balance in the treasury Monday, the last provision of the fiscal year, was $128,498,120, of which $4,969,995 was gold reserve. So far this month the receipts aggregate $35,888,057, of which $24,586,115 was from internal revenue and $11,301,942 from customs. The internal revenue receipts for the 10 days in which the president has had the tariff bill in his possession amounted to $19,653,759. The expenditures this month amount to $27,589,600, leaving a surplus of about $8,308,460 for the month to date.

NEW JAPANESE TREATY. Great Britain Fully Recognizes Her as a Civilized Nation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Japan has at last succeeded in an object very dear to her people and for which the government has striven with all the arts of diplomacy for many years. Nows has been received here by the diplomatic corps that a new treaty has just been negotiated between Japan and Great Britain.

The assertion of extra territorial jurisdiction has always been confined to barbarous and semi-civilized countries whose ignorance of the first principles of justice and law seemed to render imperative the retention by other nations of the power to administer justice where their own citizens were concerned, even against natives of the semi-civilized country and within its borders. This has been done through the medium of consular courts and the system obtains in Egypt, China, Japan, Turkey and many other countries. Ever since the wave of civilization rolled over Japan, her sensitive and proud people have resented the continuance of the extra territorial jurisdiction system, not solely because of its wrongness, but because it was a standing declaration that Japan was not civilized and was a reflection upon the Japanese judiciary. Therefore the action of Great Britain in surrendering the claim in the new treaty is of great importance to Japan as marking a distinct epoch in her advancement to the front rank of nations.

NAILING THE LIPS.

THE MARKETS OF THE WORLD AND THE DEMOCRATIC THEORY.

American Markets Are Worth $2,600,000,000 More Than All Others—Free Traders Want to Give Ours Away—We Would Lose For Foreigners to Gain.

The renewal of the free trade party's destructive free raw material war against American industries naturally calls to mind their old theory of the markets of the world, and how great a gain it will be if we can only secure them. Let us look into it.

The total manufactures of the United States in 1890, according to the last census returns, amounted in value to $9,054,455,337, of which we exported to the value of $151,103,379, leaving $8,903,351,958 worth of American manufactured goods consumed at home, as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Total manufactures, Total exported, Total home consumption. Data for 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894.

In the same way we must deal with our farm products, the total value of which during 1893, consumed in 1890, was $2,469,107,454. We exported to the extent of $523,141,449, leaving American farm products worth $1,945,965,964 consumed by Americans. Thus:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Total farm products, Total exported, Total home consumption. Data for 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894.

We see that the American people consume American manufactured goods and farm products in 1890 to the extent of $10,831,298,925. To this we must add the value of foreign goods consumed to the extent of $1,742,812 in 1890, thereby getting the following aggregate value of the entire AMERICAN CONSUMPTION IN 1890:

Table with 2 columns: Category, Value. Total American consumption, Total foreign goods consumed, Total consumption.

Against this aggregate consumption of goods in the United States, worth $12,574,110,737 in the year 1890, or $178.52 for every man, woman and child of a population of 69,000,000 persons, what are the great markets of the world that we may expect to secure?

The markets of the world comprise only such goods as are imported by the different countries of the world, because we cannot claim to supply them with what they already manufacture or grow in their own countries unless they propose free trade, as the Democratic party proposes.

It is equally "the moral sentiment of the nation" that the work done by cheap labor is "inhabiting and immoral" as cheap labor itself. Those members of congress who vote to reduce our existing protective tariff and thereby permit the importation of foreign goods made by cooly and other cheap labor to compete with goods made by American labor—all members of congress voting for such "traffic" will be "odious to the people of the United States" and will be "inhuman and immoral," according to a resolution passed by the United States senate on Jan. 16, 1897.

RECEPTION TO KNIGHTS

Address of Welcome by Vice President Stevenson.

OWN PAYS A TRIBUTE TO SHAW.

Marine Band Rendered Music Composed For the Occasion—Supreme Chancellor Blackwell Refrained From Speaking of the Death of His Predecessor—Stevenson Not a Member of the Order.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Convention hall, the largest association hall in Washington, was brilliant with banners and the evening costumes of hundreds of ladies during the reception given Monday evening to the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias by the city and the district commissioner. Just as the scarlet coated Marine band struck up a march, "The Great Republic," composed for the occasion by its leader, Professor Fannin, Vice President Stevenson walked down the aisle escorted by Mrs. Richard Goodhart and followed by the officers, who took seats on the stage.

Chairman Goodhart introduced John W. Ross, commander of the District of Columbia, whose remarks were in harmony with the spirit of the occasion, dwelling upon the establishment of the order in Washington.

Next, the president presented Vice President Stevenson, who was warmly applauded before he could speak. He said: "The pleasing duty is assigned me to extend to the representatives of the order of the Knights of Pythias a welcome to the nation's capital. I may be pardoned for detaining you for a moment before the formal welcome is extended. You are here to do well in selecting the city of Washington as the place for this great convention. In this selection you have honored yourselves as well as the great city in which you are assembled. This is an ordinary gathering of men and it is literally the coming together of honored representatives of a great brotherhood from every state and section of the American Union. It is indeed an honor to any city to claim as its guests the knightliest representatives of an order whose membership falls little short of half a million; whose living faith—the beautiful legend of Damon and Pythias—whose shibboleth 'Friendship, Benevolence and Charity' and 'the greatest of these is charity.'"

"As it is not my good fortune to be a member of this great fraternity, I cannot know to whom future ages will do honor as its founders, but that he builded wisely that he knew is evidenced by the fact that what our eyes now behold is the growth of less than a third of a century. It is not my membership which would bring upon my poor head the dread penalty—when I say I have heard that each regular assemblage of the Knights of Pythias, the official inquiry is made, 'Does anyone know of a sick brother, or of a brother's family in need? If this is true, then, even the wayfarer stranger may know whence came the inspiration that formulated the ritual and founded the order. I cannot but believe that in illustrating in deeds the sublime tenets of its order, your inspiration is that of a commander in chief. 'Ye have no other' I repeat, you did well to select for your biennial convocation the national capital, the city that bears the honored name of the father of his country."

"Coming from and representing every state, it is my duty that your assembling here at the political center of this great nation. It matters not whether your abiding place be on the great chain of lakes, or where rolls the Oregon, you owe allegiance to but one flag; you are citizens of one country. In your hearts of full truth there is no place for strife that savors of sectionalism or of animosity. Whatever troubles times the rolling years may bring to the state, who can doubt that the knightly men of this great brotherhood will stand as adamant for the preservation and perpetuation of all that is best in our civilization—all that has cost centuries of tireless endeavor to achieve. Representing every portion of the republic, every vocation and calling in life, it is yours to bind by yet stronger bonds every section and state into one indivisible, indestructible unit."

"And now it but remains to welcome you, Knights of Pythias, to Washington. I cordially bid you welcome to the most beautiful city in the world. Here is the symbol of the authority, the grandeur, the power of the greatest government on earth to man. You will find it indeed no mean city. You are not strangers but fellow citizens. It is your capital and you are welcome to your father's house. Your arrival is timely. Congress has adjourned and the rights of way is yours. The public buildings are open to you. Upon every level is the grateful welcome. Upon your long line of march a thousand times your heart will be made glad by the cheering words 'Welcome, Knights of Pythias.'"

Supreme Chancellor W. W. Blackwell, who was to have responded, refrained from speaking on account of the death of his predecessor in office, Congressman Shaw of Wisconsin.

John W. Ross, commander of the District of Columbia, a member of the fraternity, gave the address of welcome on behalf of the knights of Washington, incidentally paying a tribute to the late Chancellor Shaw, whose untimely death, he said, had been a great loss to the order.

The influence of fraternal brotherhoods, he prophesied, would eventually solve difficulties between governments and close an end to war. The program was closed by a stirring march by the Marine band. The Pythian Encampment was composed by Mr. D. M. McClellan of Washington.

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children.

Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various patent medicines which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup, and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby leading them to premature graves.

Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me.

Physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their ordinary practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it.
