J. N. Killian,

The importance of the office of county judge is too often overlooked. Men who are devoting all their time and energies to the accumulation of property for their children seldom stop to think that the county court is the medium through distributed to their heirs at law. Still less frequently do they stop to think of the numerous steps to be taken in the settlement of an estate in order to make such settlement lasting and binding and in order that the title to their property | without delay. may pass unclouded to their widows and children. In view of the vast interests passing under his administration and the care and accuracy required to settle an estate properly, it is indeed a question whether there is a more important

J. N. Kilian, our candidate for county judge, is well known throughout the ounty. While he is a German by birth he is thoroughly American in his sympathies and habits. He is a lawyer by rofession and is undoubtedly one of the most thoroughly educated men in his profession in the state. He is one of the careful, painstaking sort, and while he appears in court less frequently than some others, the cases in which he procures settlements and compromises among his countrymen would make quite a docket in themselves. A thoroughly educated lawyer, of sober, careful and painstaking habits, we feel estimed that if elected he will fill the important office of county judge with
