

TALK ABOUT TRUSTS.

What's the silver silver? The free silver trusts have a great deal to say about trusts and combine and monopolies, as in some vague and unexplained way illustrating the evils of the gold standard.

THE MONEY QUESTION

IT IS SOMETHING LIKE THE YARD AND THE YARDSTICK.

One fundamental misconception that makes the minds of many men—namely, that the Standard Measure of Value—Unit of Value Here and in England.

These trusts ordered mass wages, according to contract, as money comes to the yard as such and such a price. But manufacturers soon found out that if they gave full weight of honest material, according to agreement, no profits would result whatever.

It will be observed that this standard unit of measure is quite arbitrary. We cannot give a good reason why the yard should be just that length, and not longer or shorter, except that it is so, that common consent has accepted this standard and we cannot depart from it now without confusion.

There has been a constant effort during all this campaign so far by the Bryan forces to carry the south and the west against the east, and to create the impression that Bryan represents the wish of the poor, while McKinley represents the rich.

It is not, perhaps, generally known that the wool industry of America is being seriously threatened not only from the rapid increase in the production of sheep in the Argentine Republic, Australia, Canada and some European countries, but also in China.

Free coinage of silver cannot produce these two dollars. It can produce only one of the two. Why do not would-be supporters of Bryan and McKinley who pay debts with the dollar and the working-man who must buy farm produce are interested in having this question answered.—Chicago Post.

It is always seemed to me that it was infinitely better that the farmer should have a market at home, a market as near as possible, than to be compelled to seek a market in distant countries and in earlier stages of civilization, and in the infancy of commerce, the standard varied in nearly every country, as it still varies in a few countries the least advanced, from the silver rupee of India to the brass assees of the Chinese.

The Canadian farmer must be looking forward with satisfaction to the harvesting of his next big crop. During the McKinley tariff period our imports of foreign hay averaged only 80,000 tons a year, but in nine months of the current year they reached 243,321 tons, or 346,814 tons, practically all of which came from Canada.

AND STILL THEY COME. Marsh Elder, who was speaker of Nebraska's great populist legislature of 1891, has come out for McKinley and has asked to be placed upon the stump in behalf of republicanism.—Beaver Valley (Neb.), Tribune.

The Mount Holyoke college at South Hadley, Mass., the pioneer institution for the higher education of women, received a severe blow Sunday morning, in the burning of the main building, with a probable loss of $500,000, and the buildings destroyed cost $200,000, and buildings and contents were insured for $154,000.

The handsome increase of Theo. B. Reed's majority in his re-election to congress is a flattering endorsement of the man and all he represents. It is something that a man of even his distinction may be proud of, but the Tribune hopes that when McKinley makes up his cabinet he will find a place in it for the gentleman who has so many admirers not only in his own state, but throughout the nation.—Fremont Tribune.

Why Does Not Bryan Answer? Mr. Bryan tells the farmer that free coinage of silver will give them cheap dollars with which to pay their debts.
