STRATEGIC BOARDS KEPT BUSY. Urged to Substitute Penerful Blockad With Invasion of Cuba,

WASHINGTON, April 26 .- The strategic boards of the army and navy are being urged to substitute the peaceful blockade by taking one port on the north and one on the south of Cuba, for the purpose of establishing a juncture with the insurgents at Sancti Spiritus and with Garcia's forces in Santiago de Cuba. Secretary Albertini of the Cuban legation said today that movements of this character would be extremely valuable in opening up connections with the insurgent forces. It is felt that small ports could be taken piactically without opposition, and that Cienfuegos on the south coast, and Sagua La Grande on the north are probably the best fitted in point of location and lack of coast defences as these base of supplies. Cienfuegos on the south, is the point most accessible to the commands of both Gomez and Garcia, while Sagua is within easy reach of Gomes.

By having two bases, one on the north and one on the south the danger of interruption in the communication with one or the other would be avoided and it is thought through communications between the two could be affected. It is thought Cienfuegos and Sagua could not offer the resistance that Matanzas and other large ports are able to. The large Cuban ports have fairly good shore batteries and it would take a fairly good navy force and the delay in giving noncombatants notice before they could be captured. Besides, the small ports would hardly make little more than a pretense, if they did not surrender at the outset. With two bases of operations secured the Cuban authorities here feel that the Ouban forces in the field and those ready to take the field, could be speedily and effectively equipped with arms, ammu-nition and supplies.

It is said that Gomes and Garcia have the men and the enthusiasm cahave adequate ammunition for a strong forward movement on the Spanish forces. Recent conferences between the Cuban military officers here and General Miles leaves little doubt that ammunition made by the calling into American war. service of the army and 125,000 volunteers. But it will still be necessary to effect a juncture with the Cuban forces and to this end the suggestion is being made that ports on the north and south of Cuba be taken. A decision has not been reached, but it is likely to follow as soon as the war department feels it is ready to place supplies of arms and ammunition in the hands of the Cu-
