SUBSTITUTE FOR RUBBER.

Rubber, which has long been of service in many industries, has assumed greatly increased commercial importance since the general introduction of the bicycle. An attempt has been made to produce a rubber substitute from the oil derived from corn, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. It is claimed that by vulcanizing the oil with an equal quantity of crude rubber a substance is produced equal for certain purposes to the best native gum at a greatly lessened cost. It is said that the new "corn rubber" possesses all the essential qualities of Para rubber, including resiliency, and the discoverer of the new product is hopeful of being able to utilize it for bicycle tires. A sample of corn rubber, of which a partial test has been made by an expert, appeared to be similar in many respects to the substitutes made from rape seed and cotton oils.

This authority points out that the claim made by the manufacturer that "50 per cent of their substitute with pure rubber will produce as good, and in some respects better, results than pure rubber" does not mean much to the practical rubber compounder, for the same thing is true of a host of materials. For example: Fifty per cent of whitening mixed with pure rubber will do better for many purposes than pure rubber itself. If, however, this corn-oil substance can be added to reclaimed rubber to good purposes it will prove very interesting to the trade.

Unmarried. The waltz had ceased. To a secluded Phyllis and Jack made swift retreat. And Phyllis, bending o'er her lee, Perverely talked of other men. "Your friend Van Blunk," she said, and softly sighed: "Is he unmarried?" Grimly Jack replied, "Oh, yes, he's been unmarried twice!" And then the dance began again. —New York World.

ARTISTIC WOMEN.

They Are Fond of China's Inlaid Furniture. Probably at no time in the world's history has so much attention been paid to the interior decoration of homes as at present. No home, no matter how humble, is without hand-painted plaques that beautify the apartments and make the surroundings more cheerful. The taste of the American people has been quickened by the art, and almost every day brings forth something new in the way of a picture, a draping, a piece of furniture or some form of mural decoration.

One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Luville, in a series of four handsome porcelain plaques. One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Luville, in a series of four handsome porcelain plaques. One of the latest of these has been given to the world by the celebrated artist, Luville, in a series of four handsome porcelain plaques.

Until October 1, Messrs. J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co. propose to distribute these plaques free to their customers. Every purchaser of a dozen or more packages of Elastic Starch, flat-iron brand, manufactured by J. C. Hubinger Bros. Co., is entitled to receive one of these handsome plaques free from their grocer. Old and new customers alike are entitled to the benefit of this offer. These plaques will not be sent through the mail, the only way to get them being to call on your grocer. Every grocery store in the country has Elastic Starch for sale. It is the oldest and best laundry starch on the market. Ask the most perfect cold process starch ever invented. It is the only starch made by men who thoroughly understand the laundry business, and the only starch that will not injure the finest fabric. It has been the standard for a quarter of a century, and as an evidence of how good it is twenty-two million packages were sold last year. Ask your grocer to show you the plaques and tell you about Elastic Starch. Accept no substitute. Bear in mind that this offer expires on October 1. After that date, should be taken advantage of without delay.

NO MAN INDISPENSABLE.

A Limit to the Value of Even the Valuable Man's Service. "It's a mistake for a man to think he is indispensable," said Mr. Nozbley, a prominent business man. "Men are valuable, and they may easily make themselves so, but when a man comes to think that the business can't get along without him, or can't get along so well as it does, which amounts to the same thing, why, he's wrong, that's all. More than one man has found that out when he has set his valuation too high. It is very probable that when he began to dwell on his own value, his value in reality began to decline; it is certain that one of the things that contributed most to increase his value was his forgetfulness of himself."

"As a matter of fact, a man's interests, if he is really a superior man, up to a certain point, and that a high point, too, will take care of themselves, or rather other people will take care of them if he will supply the motive. There is a fixed low price for the run of people of average ability, but none for the man of really superior ability, that is, if he is a 100 per cent man, which is to say not only of high ability, but of perfect forgetfulness of self and absolute devotion to business. Any break or flaw or lack in these qualities anywhere knocks a man's value down wonderfully. Nothing less than the whole thing will do, but that will command a price anywhere and everywhere."

"No man is indispensable. It isn't in the nature of things that he should be. No matter who dies, the world keeps on turning just the same, and it would be just the same with the business if you should go out of it."

Marriage among natives of South Africa is very much a matter of pounds, shillings and pence, shera of the glances of money by the fact that the bride is estimated at so many pounds or shillings by her callous and practical father, says the New York Telegram. The kaffir patriarch rejoices in a multiplicity of daughters—for they are truly the props of his old age—each ducky dame taken off his hands by an ardent suitor means an increase in his wealth, calculated with mathematical precision, according to the custom of the bride's father. For instance, the hereditary inheritance of a tribe when parting with his daughter need not be bonds to his loving ambition, and the legend "Brides are cheap to-day" is meaningless to one of such exalted rank. A mere appointed chief in charge of a tribe, does not demand more than twenty head of cattle for his daughter, but ten head is the average payment made. The ordinary kaffir has three or four wives, and when he has been in service with his white master sufficiently long to acquire the amount necessary to obtain the desire of his heart, he returns to his ancestral hills, and after a brief courtship, makes his selection to the "kaffir market" and proposes to the father. No presents are made to the bride-maid, for there are none to present; but that much-maligned individual, the mother-in-law, is duly recognized by the heathen, for she invariably receives a cow from her son-in-law elect.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS. Now Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

The position that Illinois has in the dairy industry and dairy developments of the Northwest demands from a special representative of that branch of agriculture, not only for the purpose of enforcing such laws as may be enforceable regarding the fraudulent sale of butter substitutes, but further, to collect, preserve and compile statistics of the dairy industry in this great state, so that outsiders may know what Illinois is doing in that line, and the Dairy Report. We are having applications frequently for a list of the creameries, cheese factories and private dairies of the state for business purposes, and are unable to furnish any such list. A dairy commissioner whose duty it would be to compile such a list from information furnished by the manufacturers of dairy products would be a very great advantage when we are asking for legislation to advance, conserve and preserve this industry. Very few people in the state, and especially among our legislators, are well informed as to the importance of the dairy industry of this state, and of the whole people of the state. The situation in Illinois is not creditable to the dairy farmers and creamerymen. There seems to be a general lack of "esprit de corps" among the dairy farmers and creamerymen. Every farmer and creameryman who is engaged in this business to do everything they can to advance all matters pertaining to the production of milk and its manufacture into a merchantable product. Looking at it as a matter on the surface, it is not surprising that the dairy industry has not advanced so far as it should have. We have accomplished all, and that little more can be done; yet there are new problems coming forward continually that must be solved; new methods of manufacturing, handling and putting on the market the product of the cow, and the farmer is inclined to be cheapening the cost of producing have been undertaken and are being carefully conducted by experiment stations in other states, yet this great state of Illinois lags behind. In the legislation that has been attempted for the last few years, there has been a general lack of interest on the part of the legislature, and in the background, whereas, in our judgment, a dairy commissioner with reasonable power, and a reasonable amount of money to carry on the work and duties of his office, could have done more to have conserved and advanced the dairy industry than all the other things that have been partially accomplished by means of legislation. By all means let us have a bill before the next legislature that will provide for a state dairy commissioner, whose business it will be to investigate and report on the manufacture and sale of adulterated dairy products, and also to compile statistics regarding the dairy industry of this state with over a million milk cows devoted to the production of milk for all purposes, and an investment of several million dollars in farms devoted to the production of milk. With a state dairy commissioner, whose duty it shall be to compile these statistics, we shall have better grounds to work upon when we ask for legislation to improve and foster this great industry.

Cold Storage Shipment. Great things were expected of cold storage facilities for meats, fruit and eggs, we have been told, Canada and Great Britain. The latter has been able to compete on equal terms in her perishable goods markets with the continental producers. After some experience with cold storage it becomes apparent that the expectations of merchants have not all been realized. At considerable expense a steamship service has been fitted out with refrigeration plant. A Glasgow importing house refers to this as follows: "As for putting eggs in cold storage on board these steamers, we think it is a very unwise thing to do, because they run the refrigerators at such a low temperature, with the result that the shells of the eggs often get very brittle, and the least knock breaks them and causes a lot of damage to the eggs." This firm has instructed its agents not to ship a single egg under a contract, "as our experience this season is that eggs coming in under ordinary freight have been more satisfactory, and there is no doubt that when eggs are shipped fresh, for the short time they are on the voyage, they show an increase in the price at the arrival of the cargo. Unfortunately, all the consignments of eggs sent across the Atlantic are not fresh when they leave the forwarder's hands. There is nothing that will make amends for delay in marketing eggs. It has been found that when eggs are taken from cold storage into a warmer temperature a moisture gathers on the shells, passing into the pasteballs used to pack them, causes an objectionable mustiness and mold to form on both eggs and package. This must prove a great hindrance in the sale of eggs, and it is not surprising that merchants to prefer the domestic eggs or those that have been imported without the assistance of refrigeration. —Toronto Monetary Times.

A KAFFIR WEDDING. It is Not a Marvellous Celebration to Witness. Marriage among natives of South Africa is very much a matter of pounds, shillings and pence, shera of the glances of money by the fact that the bride is estimated at so many pounds or shillings by her callous and practical father, says the New York Telegram. The kaffir patriarch rejoices in a multiplicity of daughters—for they are truly the props of his old age—each ducky dame taken off his hands by an ardent suitor means an increase in his wealth, calculated with mathematical precision, according to the custom of the bride's father. A WOMAN'S HEROISM.

During the civil war nearly as much heroism was shown by the women of our nation as by the brave soldiers. Many a woman, weeping for her dead boy, bound up the wounds of his suffering comrades, rejoicing in their brave deaths, and even with a rifle in her hand, she stood for the cause of the Union. One of the most notable of these heroines was a woman named Mrs. J. M. Williams.

One of the most earnest members of the corps at Fort Mifflin, Pa., was Mrs. J. M. Williams. Her husband, a brave soldier, had been killed in the battle of Gettysburg. She was left with three children, and she had to support them on her own resources. She was a woman of great strength and courage, and she was determined to do everything in her power to support her children and to care for her wounded comrades.

What a sensible woman doesn't know never troubles her, but it causes her inquisitive neighbors hours of untold agony.

Inventors are plenty who can make a machine that will rise and float in air, but none has succeeded in making an apparatus that will guide it through the many currents of air. MRS. PINKHAM'S ADVICE.

What Mrs. Nell Hunt has to Say About It. DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—When I wrote to you I had not been well for five years; had doctored all the time but got no better. I had womb trouble very bad. My womb pressed backward, causing piles. I was in such misery I could scarcely walk across the floor. Menstruation was irregular and too profuse, was also troubled with leucorrhoea. I had given up all hopes of getting well, every body thought I had consumption. After taking five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I felt very much better, and was able to do nearly all my own work. I continued the use of your medicine, and I feel that I owe my recovery to you. I cannot thank you enough for your advice and your wonderful medicine. Any one doubting my statement may write to me and I will gladly answer all inquiries.—Mrs. NELL HUNT, Deepwater, Mo.
