

Catarrh Cured

Head Purified by Hood's Sarsaparilla and Health is Good.

"I was a sufferer from catarrh. One of my neighbors advised me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and I did so. A few bottles purified my blood and cured me. I have remained in good health ever since." Jas. T. Amey, Atholville, Illinois.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

The ancients were great advertisers. Papyrus leaves over 3,000 years old have been found at Thebes, describing the runaway slaves and offering a reward for their capture, and at Pompeii ancient advertisements have been deciphered on the walls.

Thomas Wentworth Higginson writes that when Wendell Phillips was speaking more tamely than usual the young abolitionists used to slip to the back of the room and start a hiss. It never failed to rouse him.

Try Hood's today to show you a package of GRAXIN, the new food drink that takes the place of coffee. The children may drink it without injury as well as the adult. All who try it, like it. GRAXIN has that rich nutty flavor of Mocha or Java but it is made from pure grains, and the most delicate stomach receives it without distress. One-fourth the price of coffee. 15c. per package. Sold by all grocers.

IN A PORTO RICAN FOREST.

By nightfall, after I had ridden up and down some of the most unapproachable hills, and had got tangled in the end of chaparral, cactus and other thorny undergrowth, which changed a new sponge coat I had bought in San Juan into an old rag, I found myself on a high range of steep, rocky hills. From a library nearest the town of Quemas and Jague, and that I would have a better trail for my horse below. So I rode down a lovely green valley, where plantations of coffee and tobacco lay side by side. As I grew darker both feet all about me I heard the evening cries of birds which sounded like our whippoorwill and mocking birds. At last I struck the trail that the woman had mentioned. I rode on a little way and took the horse into a clearing, where there was a spring well, surrounded by a fence. There I hobbled his feet to the halter rope, flung myself on the ground and went fast asleep. The last thing I heard was the beautiful song of the colt-singling in a copse above me. I was awakened early the next morning by the screeching of the green parrots, quarreling with each other on the top of a cactus palm. I was drenched with dew, but forgot all as I thought of my horse. To my great relief, I found him standing behind a bit of oleander bush red with flowers, crunching the juicy stalk of a plover, and looking at me with a friendly gaze. He took the stalk and with his teeth ripped off the skin with all its thorns. He whinnied as if we were old friends. After bridling and watering him I found the trail and rode off southward. On the way I ate everything I could find, green cherries and guava plums to jolly mangoes, which I had eaten from the front of my coat, and bell apples, the meat of which suggested midwife. There were also custard apples, a large green fruit not unlike cream puffs inside. The most astonishing and the best of all was a fruit called melon in the language, and was in fact about as large as a quail, and so nourishing and full that a single fruit was enough for a good meal, although that did not deter my horse from eating four. Later I found that they are also relished by dogs. Of spring streams there were so many that I had no fear of being thirsty. If water was not handy I could always climb a cactus tree and throw down the green nuts, which were filled with an abundance of watery milk, more than I could drink at one time. Other nuts were in plenty, but many were so unpalatable, even to my willing appetite. One had a delicious odor. I tasted a little, and thought it ideal for flavoring candy. But it soon dissolved in my mouth in a fine dust, absorbing all the moisture, so that I had to blow it out like smoke. The nuts made me so thirsty in my life, and even after rinsing out my mouth I felt for a long time as if I were chewing punk or cotton. The fruit of the tamarind only added to my torments by setting all my teeth on edge. When we reached the next spring I fell on my horse, for he would get all the water. Only after I had satisfied my thirst would I let him drink.

CAMPFIRE SKETCHES.

MaJ. Fontaine is a man of distinguished appearance, and wears a complete uniform, which was made especially for him to be worn at the reunion of veterans. He is a civil engineer by profession, and engaged in business with his two sons at Lyons, Minn.

The Army Relation. The employer of gangs of laborers, who would take them under a tropical sun, feed them on salt pork and hard tack, much of it stale, who would furnish them no shelter worthy of the name, and compel them to work very nearly or quite eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, and in emergencies, much longer than this, would be looked upon as a brute or an insane man, and would do very well, indeed, if he escaped the fury of an enraged populace.

The question is being asked all over the country how it happens that the government has given its soldiers the means of making a comfortable life, and that it has failed to do so. There is likely to be a most imperative and insistent demand for a change of food for the soldier. It would not be amiss to put him on the level with other employees of equal intelligence.

The matter is beyond argument. The man who stands ready to defend our institutions, be they regulars or volunteers, should have good food in abundance every person of good sense and knowledge of the world must necessarily admit.

First Man to Enter Libby. The town of Holyoke, Mass., includes among her citizens an interesting veteran of the civil war in the person of Philander A. Streeter, who was the first man to enter Libby prison at Richmond, Va., a Yankee soldier by birth, was mustered into Company C, Second Vermont Volunteers, in June, 1861. He was captured after the first battle of Bull Run, through stopping to carry a wounded comrade from the field. He and some other prisoners were taken to the Medical and Surgical Hospital at Richmond, being the first consignment of "Yanks" to enter Libby. Streeter says that the treatment they received from their captors was about what might be expected, but that a people of Richmond, particularly the people of the city, were very kind to them, and that they were allowed to see their families and to receive letters from home.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

An Improved Milk Pail used in Germany has a closed cover, which may be used as a seat by the milkman, the milk entering the pail through a spout with an enlarged mouth, which carries a textile strainer entirely covering the opening of the pail.

A handy vegetable slicer is formed of a series of knives set in the bottom of a central opening in a standard, with a slotted hand hung on a lever above it to cover the knives and force the vegetables through the cutters into a receptacle below.

Live minnows for bait can be attached to a hook with little injury by a new holder, consisting of a single piece of wire bent to form an eyelet in the center, with the ends pointed and bent back to form a hook.

Racks for holding packages in railroad cars are made adjustable by a Texas man's device in which the rack is mounted on cords suspended from the top of the car, with weights at the ends of the ropes and a hook at the end of the rack to balance the racks in any position.

A newly patented variable speed driving gear for bicycles two sprocket wheels of different diameter are mounted on the crank shaft to drive chains on both sides of the rear wheel, a clutch mechanism automatically engaging one wheel as it releases the other.

Fruit can be shaken from the trees without bruising by using a newly patented device, which is formed of a canvas bag, with a handle at one end and a hook at the other, which is slipped around the tree, with one corner lower than the rest of the apron to allow the fruit to roll into a receptacle as it falls from the tree.

Words can be automatically counted by a typewriter by a simple device which has a number of disks set in a frame with a lever at one end to reach under the end of the space bar as the counter rests on the table to operate the mechanism which moves the indicator.

The depth of water under a ship can be quickly ascertained by a new sounding apparatus consisting of a casting suspended from a sliding ball, which is attached to the end of a cord or wire running to the deck, the weight of the casting breaking the electric current until it strikes bottom.

An invisible support for bicycles is being placed on the market, a piece of stiff wire being bent double and inserted into the tire, in one side of the tube which carries out on the opposite side being bent down through the slots for use.

A FATHER'S STORY.

From the Evening Courier, Appleton, Wis. A remarkable cure for a disease which has generally wrecked the lives of children, and which is a scourge to which death is almost invariably the result, has been effected in a great amount of attention among the residents of the west end of Appleton. The case is that of little William C. Cress, son of Richard D. Cress, a well known employer of one of the large paper mills in Appleton. The little boy was afflicted by a disease which his parents had given up all hope of his ever being well again. He was in school as happy as any of his mates.

Mr. Cress, the father of the boy, who resides at 10th Street, Appleton, Wisconsin, told the following story:

"Our boy was absolutely helpless. His limbs were paralyzed, and when we tried to move him he would cry and his face would be as blue as his lips. Finally we had the doctor go as he had said to his mother, he was helpless and we were in despair. Finally my wife and I were in Canada writing, advising the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and I bought some."

"This was when our boy had been in the straits for an entire year and helpless for nine months. He had been in the straits for an entire year and helpless for nine months. He had been in the straits for an entire year and helpless for nine months."

"It is two years since he took the first of the pills and he is at school now just as happy and well as any of the other children. It was nothing else in the world that saved the boy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

Patent Office Management. The Inventive Age, published at Washington, D. C., has the following in its issue of October 15, 1898:

"The condition of business in the United States Patent Office is deplorable. The only reason why it is not in a bad odor as the Medical and Supply Bureaus of the War Department, is because it is less conspicuous than they are. If the searchlight were turned on the Patent Office, it would be a scene of confusion and chaos. The Patent Office is a vast and complex organization, and it is a matter of surprise that it has not been reorganized long since. Comfort for Women. Some time ago Pullman's Palace Car company built three parlor cars for the B. & O. N. Y. New York trunks, and the chief departure from other cars of the character is that they are fitted for ladies, which was eight feet in length. Recently the same company has built eight new sleepers for the New York, London and Paris route, and the designer of the cars has evidently been impelled by the popularity of the ladies' retiring room in the parlor cars to give to the ladies a rest room in the sleeping cars.

These new cars are said by the Pullman people to be the finest they ever turned out, and the ladies' retiring room is exceedingly commodious, and contains, besides other toilet necessities, a dresser with a long pier glass. The cars are finished in mahogany wood, decorated with light and airy work, and the upholstery on the backs and seats is entirely new and different from any heretofore used, being a sort of a mohair with a dark green border and a center pattern of bright color. A similar design of ornamentation has been applied to the ceiling, giving the car a light and airy appearance.
