THE American people have been want ing to see that treaty ratified for some time-the more promptly, the better. The attack of the Filipinos had an effect different from what was calculated by them. The nation has, time and again been saved to the right, seemingly by scratch-a vote of one-the action of one man, demonstrating to many that, as Shakespeare so well remarked, "there is a providence that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we may."

"CONGRESSMAN-ELECT ROBERTS has not found polygamy an easy path to honor and success," says the Minneapolis Tribune. "In 1887 he was indicted for having a plurality of wives, and remained for two years a fugitive from justice. During this time he preached the Mormon gospel in England. Upon his return home he was sentenced to four months in the penitentiary on the old charge. Even if congress, waiving its right to expel him, allows him to retain his seat, he will find such a triumph as mortifying as defeat. He will be under ban socially and officially, snubbed both in the house of representatives and out of it. The

THE VERY LATEST.

Chicago, Feb. 6-A special to the Times-Herald from Washington says Instructions will be sent to Major General Otis directing him to follow up his victory over the insurgents and to crush the power of Aguinaldo in the Philippines. This was the decision reached at an important cabinet meeting held in the White House last night attended by the president, Secretary Hay, Secretary Alger, Attorney Griggs Adjutant General Corbin. It was further considered, now that Aguinaldo has thrown down the gauntlet, that Iloilo be taken and that the islands of the archipelago be occupied as rapidly as the forces of General Otis will permit.

A PENNSYLVANIA DOCTOR'S EXPE-RIENCE WITH WOLVES.

His Horse and For Forty-eight Hours Carried on a Contest With His Life as

The following is a true wolf story written from data furnished by Dr. Thornton of Lewisburg, Pa., whose father figures as the hero:

"About the year 1845 wolves were abundant in Tomhickon valley, between Catawissa and Hazleton. When the Catawissa railroad, a part of the Philadelphia and Reading, was being built, Dr. Thomas A. H. Thornton, a practicing physician, one cold autumn night was called out of bed to visit a patient about 20 miles from his home. At that time there were no regular roads as we now have. In their place the traveler used narrow paths or trails. Dr. Thornton in his anxiety to reach the bedside of the sufferer attempted to make a short cut. He lost his way and for a week wandered through the wilderness and, having no gun, was obliged to subsist on roots and berbs. The doctor was on horseback and after wandering aimlessly about the pathless forests for four or five days got into a large swamp, The United States cruiser Charleston where the horse stepped into a quagmire, from which his owner was unable and the gunboat Concord, stationed off to extricate him, and the animal had to be abandoned, imbedded as he was almost to his belly in the soft and boggy hed. The doctor removed the saddle bags containing his supply of medicine, eto., threw them over his shoulders and started off. "Several hours after the doctor got out of the swamp where he had abandoned his horse he was horrified to see that he was being followed by a band of five or six wolves. At first they kept at a respectful distance when stones were thrown at them, but finally, as if they appreciated the helpless condition of their intended victim, and as darkness came on, the hungry, bloodthirsty band became bolder and bolder. They circled around the terrified and jaded man and, closing in, started to attack him on all sides. One more vicious and at the doctor's throat, but a well directed blow from a club temporarily disabled the animal and caused his ravenous companions to discontinue at that time their premeditated and combined

"Fortunately, as the animals began closing around him for another onslaught, he reached a high rock and nounted on its top, where a giant tree served to protect him from falling backtwo or three good clubs before his pursuers started to attack him. He stood back to the tree, and as the animals attempted to come up he drove them back with his primitive weapons. A large stone hurled with great force and accuracy broke the head of one of the assailants, and this gave the doctor a breathing spell.

"The man, however, realized that he must soon quit his refuge, and, remembering that be had in his saddlebags a large bottle full of ammonia, he determined to employ it as a final resort to save his life. "The doctor stood still and waited until one of the brutes rushed within an arm's length, when he struck him in the face with the cloth saturated with ammonia. This reception was a most novel and unique one for the wolf, who ran off howling with pain.
