In olden times if a remedy gave temporary relief to individuals here and there, it was thought good; but now-a-days a laxative remedy must give satisfaction to all. pleasant family laxative made by the California Fig Syrup Co., and named Syrup of Figs, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste; but the medicinal roperties of the remedy are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially. As the true and original remedy, named Syrup of Figs, is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, a knowledge of that fact will assist in avoiding the worthless imitations manufactured by other parties. The company has selected for years past the leading publications of the United States through which to inform the public of the merits of its remedy, and among them this paper is included, as will be seen by reference to its advertising col-

Thomas A. Edison, Jr., taking advantage of the temporary silence of Nikola Tsla, has announced that he has two plans for the removal of snow from the streets by electricity. One involves the use of a portable melter which is to be so constructed that the current necessary to heat the melting surfaces can be easily taken from the wires that supply trolley lines or electric lighting circuits. The other plan has as its feature a machine that must be a modification of the hay press, for its purpose is to press the snow into comparatively small "bricks" which could be handled easily and with expedition. Neither of these plans is ready for a test, but

The dog is an English mastiff, weighing 150 pounds, and formerly belonged to a showman who became stranded there and left the animal at one of the hotels. The proprietors of the Review secured him, and his tricks of operating a wheel were developed. A wooden wheel, eight feet in diameter and four feet wide, was constructed and balanced on a shaft on the end of which was placed a pully to drive a main shaft. This shaft was connected with a nine-columns power press, capable of carrying the forms of a six column quarto paper. In the wheel Gyp was placed and in a short time taught to tread. Though usually tractable, there are two things which throw the dog into a rage. The first is to have anyone turn the wheel, which Gyp has come to look upon as his own, and second the sight of a particular cat. The latter fact is the cat is sufficient to increase the speed of the wheel, and if the cat is not taken away after a time the dog would work himself into such a passion that the press would be torn to pieces by the speed. Gyp has been doing the work for two years, never missing a day, and seems to enjoy the work, frequently getting into the wheel in the middle of the night and running half an hour or more just to

The drummer declared that he was ready to obey orders. The lieutenant drew his sword and ordered hic "company" to advance. The little fellow made his snare-drum fairly rattle as the two marched out into the face of the crowd. Whether the mob disdained to attack so small a "company," or admired its courage, will never be known, but the facts are that they actually escorted the lieutenant and his "drum corps" to the county jail, giving them taken advantage of when the dog does | the safest sort of convoy.
