He likes the climate of Cuba, also the work he is engaged in.

It will be a good principle for every voter to consider the government, whether township, city, county, state or national, a joint stock affair, and vote and act accordingly. As it is, there are entirely too many voters who imagine they are nothing, and so amount to nothing much, whereas if they would consider their wish, their influence and their vote as one among many possible units, they would make their work effective.

It is reported on good authority that Rev. F. M. Sisson, formerly pastor of the Methodist church of this city, but now serving the Hanson Park Methodist church at Omaha, has been appointed missionary to the Philippines, by Bishop McCabe. It is also said he has decided to accept the appointment but The Tribune is not informed how soon he begins his work and whether his family will accompany him.—Preston Tribune.

A family monument is being erected today Monday, over the graves of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stull. The two bases are of granite, rock-faced edges, standing one of feet two feet, four inches; the dia. two feet ten inches wide, fourteen inches thick, and three feet high. The monument is furnished by Kimball Bros. of Lincoln, and the work is being done under the supervision of their agent, C. F. Gleason. Mr. Stull of Lincoln was in the city to see to matters.

Charlie Williams of Grand Island, deputy revenue collector, was in the city Saturday, as chipper as when his hair was all black. Hereafter whenever any documents or papers are found unstamped, they can only be remedied by sending in the document or papers with the penalty and tax to the Collector of Revenue at Omaha with a statement from the parties executing the same, giving facts attending their execution. If the circumstances warrant it, the penalty will be remitted; if not, it will be held. Be sure that the law is complied with when the documents are passed, and thus avoid possible expense and trouble.

A Twister Visits Columbus.

The wind here Friday evening was very threatening for a little while, blowing down branches of trees, but doing no serious damage. A portion of the smoke-pipe at the city waterworks was blown down. The forewinding was written and put into type early Saturday morning, and later information makes a modification necessary to conform strictly to the facts. It would seem that the wind, as with that which struck the new school house some days ago, was from the southwest, and was in the nature of a strong driver, if not something of a twister, in the western part of the city. A sidewalk on Eleventh street abutting the vacant lot west of Hagel & Stevens' Cold Storage, was lifted and piled up in the street. Numerous trees had tops broken or branches blown down. At Andrew Dussell's, the big cottonwoods swayed down almost to the ground. At George Loebhaugh's, a tree as big as a man's body was pulled up by the roots. Mr. Johnson of Duncan tells us that he saw one tree about eight inches in diameter in Liaco's grove broke down, and the old landmark near the south end of the Loup bridge that has been exposed to the weather, by its roots for many years, couldn't stand upright any longer and is flat. Trees here and there through the city, lost tops and branches, but the greatest damage, estimated all the way from $50 to $125, was done at the city waterworks. Spoking to Clinton C. Gray, chairman of the waterworks committee of the city council, he said the first information he had was when he was about retiring for the night, he heard some one running on the sidewalk, and very shortly thereafter some one came to his door and yelled: "Mr. Gray! Mr. Gray! Come right away to the waterworks." It was Mr. Berger, Louis Hald, Al. Armstrong, Mr. Dussell with engineer Burrell and his helper Mr. Berger, worked till midnight to get matters in shape against emergency of fire. A force of men have been since at work and will probably have the premises much as usual by this, Monday evening. The smoke-stack which was blown down was sixty feet high, twenty-seven inches in diameter, made of No. 8 steel, with quarter angle irons, and anchored with new guys made of heavy 7-strand wire rope, which stood the strain all right. One of the anchor posts, however, was snapped off, the one at the southwest, and the tall pipe lifted, and was cast off toward the northeast; the lower part of the stack where it was joined to the boiler, called the breeching, was thrown to the floor in front of the boilers. John Burrell had been standing right there about ten minutes before that moment, and as the thing weighs about a thousand pounds, it was doubtless fortunate for him that he concluded to retire when he did—about 9:30.
