The appointment of W. C. Hayes as Locomotive Superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will be folowed by a distinct change in the plan of over-seeing locomotives in service. The positions of "Supervisors of engines and trains" have been abolished and traveling engineers substituted, who will report to the new official at Mt. Clare, Baltimore. The road has been divided into the following subdivisions and a traveling engineer appointed for each: Philadelphia to Washington; Baltimore to Brunswick; Brunswick to Cumberland; Cumberland to Grafton; Grafton to Benwood and Parkersburg; Pittsburg to Cumberland and Wheeling: Wheeling to Sandusky and branches; Chicago to Akron. The plan is expected to produce economical results with an improved service.
