The past week has recalled to many an old soldier the song of thirty-five years ago, beginning: "When Johnny comes marching home again, Hurrah! Hurrah! We'll give him a hearty welcome then, Hurrah! Hurrah! The rosters will show, and the men will show And we'll all feel gay when Johnny comes marching home."

When Commodore Schley captured the Spanish fleet off the coast of Cuba, the Spaniards were found to be out of coal. Bad for the Spaniards, wasn't it? Well, now, don't you be like them, but leave your order at once for your winter's supply of both hard and soft coal with C. A. Speice & Co. 4t

In time of peace, prepare for war; in other words, during the heated season, prepare to war against the cold of next winter. Go to Speice & Co., and they will show you how to conduct this warfare to your advantage. Success in any endeavor lies in the application of good common sense to the facts of the situation. 4t

At about 11 o'clock Thursday the soldiers for Fullerton arrived on the Union Pacific and were greeted at the depot by hundreds of their friends, the Fullerton and St. Edward bands and the Genoa Ladies Marching club, besides a large host of Columbus citizens interested. There were twenty of the soldiers, and they took their train for home at 2:30.

The man who stole Joe Mahaffey's two pairs of pants, watch and $3 in money Saturday night from his residence, must have concluded that he should not make use of the pants, and so returned them.

One Colfax county farmer has lost thirteen spring calves, and another nine by some new complaint. The symptoms are a gradual falling off in flesh, then refusal to eat, and shortly the animal drops over dead.

A member of the city council at Fremont has introduced a resolution providing that the screens and other obstructions placed in front of doors and windows of saloons, be removed, according to the state law.

In many parts of the settled portion of Nebraska sneak thieving is being practiced both day and night. Anything salable that they can lay their hands on and carry away, seems to be the motto of the gangs.

Denton W. McKee, a member of Co. K of Columbus, arrived Wednesday morning. He was in about sixteen engagements. He was twice promoted, first from private to corporal, then to sergeant.—Schuyler Quill.

Died, Friday last at her home near Wattsville Lucy, widow of Robert Nicholson, in the eightieth year of her age. Her husband died a number of years ago. They were among the early settlers of that part of the county.

Carriages were sent from here to Columbus Wednesday evening to meet our Soldier Boys, and bring them home to remain over night with their parents. Then went Thursday to the reception Madison tendered Co. F, of which they were members.—Creighton Statesman.

"Coin" Harvey, it is said, made a short speech on imperialism, to a very small audience, Wednesday evening of last week at the opera house. The fixed ratio of 16 to 1 is of course a dead issue (never having had a logical reason for existence), and imperialism will be, for the same reason, in the same category this time next year, just as was Caesarism against General Grant.

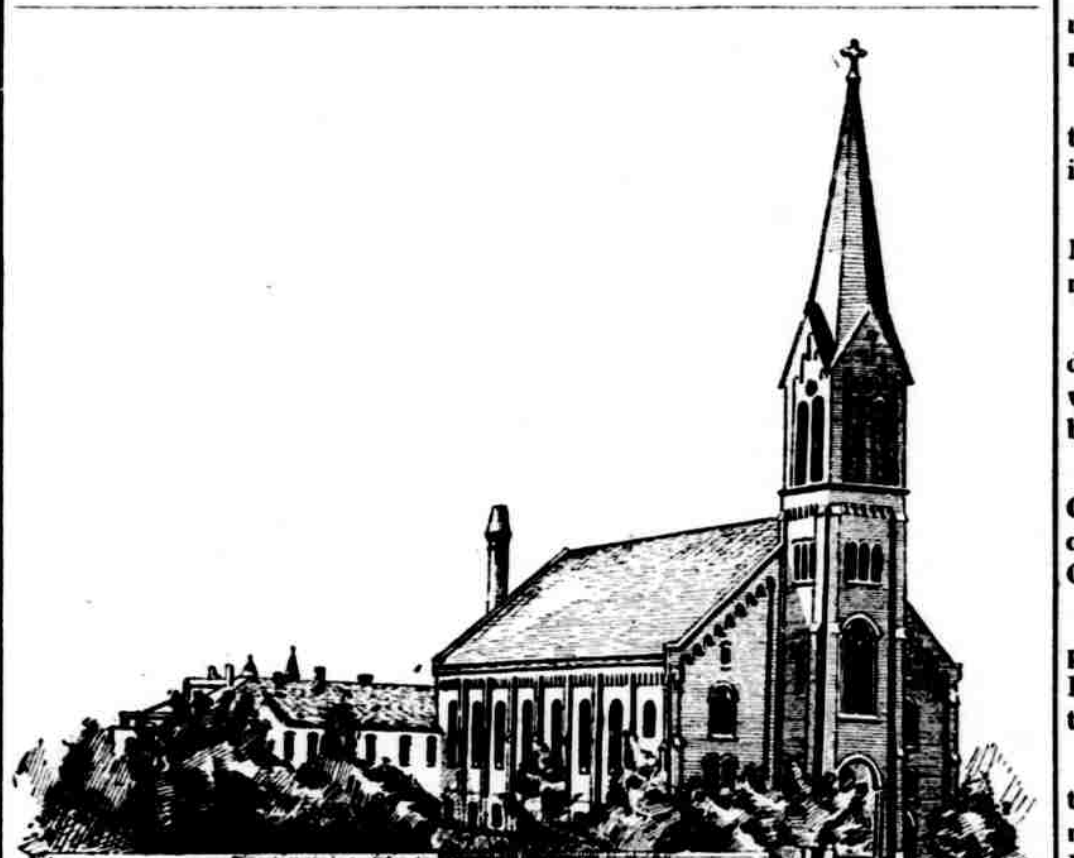

I. Gluck and children returned Sunday night from Chicago, Mrs. Gluck remaining there for a while. Mr. Gluck thinks that Nebraska people ought to be satisfied with their lot this year, and that certainly business men here have no reason to complain when the conditions under which they work are compared with their brethren in the city.

Mrs. Bertha Jaeggi has composed the music for a song, the words written by Mrs. W. A. McAllister, which they received a few days ago from the publisher. As we go to press on Tuesday, all we can say is that every preparation is being made, according to the program published in last week's JOURNAL for the formal welcome to the heroes of Company K, Wednesday, September 6.

THE CATHOLIC CONGREGATION AT HUMPHREY was organized in the year 1883, when the first church was built where the present building stands and in 1885 it was found necessary to enlarge the building. The present church, a picture of which we give above, was erected in 1883 and finished in 1884. Dedicated, September 20th, 1884, by Rt. Rev. Bishop Scannell of Omaha. The cost was $32,000. The building is handsomely erected in pressed brick, is 164 feet long and 60 feet wide. The steeple is 170 feet high, with a tower clock-cotting $725. The main altar, a present from Mr. Thomas O'Leary, cost $1,500; the two side altars cost, each, $500. The paintings on the walls and ceilings were done by Mr. Kloor of St. Louis at a cost of $1,000. The pipe organ also cost $1,000. The windows, with the exception of the three sanctuary windows, cost each $55. The sanctuary windows cost each $155, given by the following: The window representing St. Francis was presented by the members of the 3d order of St. Francis; the window, "St. Anthony," was given by Anthony Eisenmenger, Anthony Osterhoff and Anthony Weibel. The window, "Sacred Heart of Jesus," was presented by Mr. Sullivan. The fourteen stations of the Cross were imported from France, and were given by Gerhard and Joseph Brockhaus at a cost of $670. The steam heating apparatus for the church cost $1,630.

The congregation consists of about 200 families, mostly Germans. The first pastor was Rev. Theodor Arenty, succeeded by the following named priests: Rev. Jacobus Nolte, Rev. Rudolph Korstmann, Rev. Angelus Bill and the present pastor who has been there since January '99, Rev. Florentius Kurzer. Beside the pastor, there reside three priests, the pastors for St. Mary's, for Tarnov, Madison and St. Anthony's.

The monastery is immediately back of the church, and the school building west of that. The school is attended by about 280 children with four teachers as instructors. The building seen to the left of the church is the monastery. The church structure is the most magnificent in Platte county, and one of the very finest in the state of Nebraska.

Mr. Putney is at present working in the interest of the Woodman lodge, and was formerly deputy grand master workman of the A. O. U. W. He has visited Columbus several times. Mrs. Putney was a member of the Degree of Honor.

It seems impossible to find any idle men who are willing to work. Every day ranchmen are in Anaworth looking for men for the hay fields. One ranchman told us Monday that he would be obliged to sell off a couple hundred of his cattle this fall, owing to his inability to secure help in putting up hay for winter feed. And yet pessimistic poets continue to howl hard times.—Anaworth Star-Journal.

The following from the Bellwood Gazette, of county states a fact that was advertised sometime ago in THE JOURNAL. Bridges will wear out; they must be repaired occasionally, but after this one is repaired, the southside customers will, as usual, come to their usual places of doing business: "Many of the old time patrons of Bellwood, from Polk county, did trading at our stores this week owing to being unable to cross the Platte wagon road bridge, which is undergoing repairs. Now is a good time, we believe, for our business men to put in their best ticks and hold this trade."

The reception here of Company F of Madison Wednesday night, a little after 9 o'clock, when the B. & M. passenger train arrived, was something like that of the early morning before for Company K. Those who live at Madison were on board with their Captain, Charles W. Jens, who had been first lieutenant and also acting captain of Co. K. The Ladies Madison Guards, Miss Cora Sauer, captain, the company composed of fifteen young ladies dressed in very neat uniform, were at the front in the reception. The Fullerton band, the St. Edward band, the Columbus Cornet band and the Columbus Drum Corps furnished the music, while numerous unorganized individuals transported furnished any amount of noise. Joy was unconfined, and the crowd filled both railroad depots (the B. & M. at the incoming, the Union Pacific at the outgoing), the streets and sidewalks between, and all were jubilant over the return of the soldiers who had gone around the globe at their country's call; had braved danger and death in many different forms, and had finally returned to their own country, to loved Nebraska, and were now about to make their last move for "home, sweet home."

Elmer Smith, who left this city some weeks ago to take position with a party of engineers on the survey of a route for the Nicaragua canal, was heard from by Mr. Reeder by letter Saturday last. He has been placed in charge of ten men for the work, and they have arrived at Greytown, in pursuance of orders. It seems that five surveys have been made, but none of them proving satisfactory routes, this survey is ordered further south than the others, to determine the "possible feasibility" of a route. They will go through a practically unexplored region of country, and may have some odd experiences before they get through with their work. At Greytown the nights are cool. The party occupy the building belonging to the Old Maritime Ship Canal company. Around them is all sand, but 100 yards away begins the jungle. It certainly must have been a gratifying fact to Elmer that, after a thorough survey, as to special qualifications for the task, he was put in charge of this party of men composed of college graduates and men of ten years' experience in the business.

C. N. Abbott died in Texas, while on his way to a watering place for his health, having been ailing for a number of years. His age was about 54. He was son-in-law of Joseph Gardner, brother-in-law of Scott Gardner of this city, and formerly lived at Gardner station on the Union Pacific. For the last ten years he had been a resident of Crowley, Louisiana.

Wednesday last, Frank Mehrberger and two older brothers were fishing in the Loup near Oconee, and Frank had gone into a place where he had often been before, but in the meantime it had become a deep hole, and all that the brothers could do did not avail to save Frank from drowning. The body was not found till Thursday afternoon, about a mile and a half from where he disappeared. The remains were brought to this city Friday, funeral services held at the Catholic church and the burial in the cemetery near by.

Schuyler needs a park and needs one badly. Columbus has a nice little park that adds considerably to the rate of the town, to say nothing of appearance. Let us have a park.—Schuyler Quill. Not very many residence properties in Columbus but are supplied with trees in abundance and lawns, making scores of fine private parks. The founders of the city provided at an early day for a number of public parks, setting aside blocks of land in different quarters of the city for the specific purpose. It is one of these, near the business portion of the city to which the Quill refers, and which is a wonderful satisfaction to the city and its temporary guests, as well, many of whom, traveling salesmen, make it a point to reach Columbus to enjoy any extra time they may have. A good public park, conveniently located, well kept and safely guarded against roughs is a great good thing for a city.
