After the Bird-Killors.

The search for frozen birds in New York city cold storage house, made by the state game inspector, is ended, and it appears that in its course nearly 49,000 birds were discovered, all of which, it is alleged, were killed out of season. Criminal and civil actions are to be brought at once against several persons.

Mr. Caine offered to give £50 to a hospital fund through the man who would make the best pun on his name within five minutes. Brains cogitated for a few minutes, and then, just as the time was about to expire, and Mr. Caine thought he was about to escape, John Watson said: "Don't be in such a hurry, Caine."

Full Weight Counterfeiters.

A knid of counterfeiting that has become popular in England of late is the manufacture of spurious shillings out of genuine silver. As the same amount of silver contained in a shiling is worth only about one-half of that sum the coiners reap excellent profits. All of the false shillings detected heretofore have been cast in a mold, but it is pointed out that were the counterfeiters to enlist the service or an expert engraver and die-sinker detection would be almost impossible and the only obvious remedy would be to increase the size and weight of the coins.

Icebergs. No port lamps gleam along our sides No banners float on high:

No human lookout raises glass To scan our seas or sky.

No Admirals above our decks 'Mid guns and gunners stand; In hidden sheath to send the sound Of warlike, stern command.

Yet all the navies of the world Our bows in vain assail: We fear no smoking battle tower That thunders through the gale.

By captains gray our path is marked, By sailors white and old: For us the phantom rockets glare And phantom bells are tolled,

In misty, unremembered ports Our beacon lights we set By hands long gone from mortal view, By forms that men forget.

And we may wander on our course 'Till time at end shall be, For in our breasts are locked the hulls Of ships once lost at sea. -John James Meehan in the Criterion.

The folly of planting some kinds of trees in the fall in some of our northern latitudes is frequently well illustrated by the results of that practice. Recently the writer of this had occasion to look over a large mass of shrubbery that was planted last fall, the planters insisting that that was the proper time to plant. This spring at least two-thirds of the plantation is dead and most of the shrubs will have to be pulled up and replaced. The ad-

No Other Region in the World Abounds in Such a Variety of Attractions. The most wonderful scenery in the world is in Yellowstone National Park, the great natural curiosity shop of the universe. local land office of the requisite maps and plats, showing the surveys and subdivisions of sections and quarter sections of the lands. An investigation into the matters presented by this petition and information elicited by the department through correspondence with the local land office at Wakeeney corroborated the statements of the Kansas officers representing the state.

Acting Secretary Ryan has directed the commissioner of the general land office, Mr. Hermann, to call upon Cox and other individual applicants for these lands to show cause why these applications should not be rejected and the lands made over to the state under the recent act of congress granting the unappointed lands in the reservation to the state for agricultural college purposes. It is a settled rule in the department that a former decision for an entry of land will never be vacated upon an ex parte showing and hence Cox and his associates are accorded an opportunity in this instance, to fully set forth their claims and views. The papers presented recently strongly indicate that the department can not
