which the congregation joined, with conscious appreciation of the full sentiment of the tender yet triumphant lines of the majestic hymn. Rev. Olcott pronounced the benediction.

It is surmised that the lady had been engaged lately in three cases of burglary. When questioned by a Herald reporter if she had yesterday complied with the law regarding truancy from school, the Miller boy, who was barfooted and dirty, replied that he had observed it in the forenoon but not in the afternoon, and the Follansbee boy stated that he had not been near the school at all. There is no question but they are both fit subjects for the reform school and the sooner they are sent there the better. This is the conclusion arrived at by the Herald, and there can be little doubt but that the Reform school is one of the most important institutions along the line of corrective measures. If at all possible, however, prevention is much better in every respect than cure. The first tendency of the child towards a vagrant life is evidenced in a shirking of childish duties in the home, and a determined effort to carry the policy of shirking to greater lengths, and apply it in every direction. It is this tendency and determination, unchecked from within or without, that hardens into misdemeanor and crime—a growth more or less unconscious in the victim until an unforeseen crisis comes that may open his eyes to the wrong he has been doing, and to the catastrophe that yet lies before him. Show the very youngest shirker his wrong thought; correct his way, and keep him thus in the right path, whether he undertake shirking the duties at home; or truancy from school, or shirks his study when in school. Across the moral nature—there is always a good foundation upon which to build for a good character. Since writing the foregoing, we see by the Fremont Tribune report, that the boys have admitted that they had broken into Mrs. Egan's store within the past ten days, with an attempt at a sixth. The twelve-year-old boy has been taken to the reform school at Kearney.

Tuesday evening of last week about thirty persons were present by invitation at the reception room, St. Francis academy, for a school for professional nurses. Dr. C. D. Evans, in a neat speech, stated the object of the gathering to be the institution of a school for the training of nurses. He spoke of the good work that had been accomplished at the hospital, and it was appropriate that those exercises should be somewhat in the nature of commencement exercises also, and referred to Sister Fugantia, who was presented the first diploma of the school in recognition of her very faithful ten years' service. Edgar Howard was called upon by an address, and briefly eulogized the work of the hospital; spoke of the influence of woman in the world, and highly praised the Catholic sisterhood for their religious fidelity to the duty assigned by themselves. Pupils to the school must be members of the Franciscan sisterhood, or those intending to become such. The lecturers will be Drs. D. T. Martyn, C. D. Evans, F. H. Geer, H. A. Hanson, D. T. Martyn, jr., J. C. McKinley of Humphrey, A. E. Moore of Platte Center, J. H. Lowery of Leigh. The board of trustees are Father Marcellinus, Sister Lucia, Sister Inez, Sister Mary, Sister Ann, Sister Mary, who is also secretary and Dr. Martyn, President, Dr. Martyn, Treasurer, Dr. Hanson, Secretary. After the presentation of the diploma, an elaborate banquet in the assembly room, where all enjoyed themselves with feasting and listening to the speech of Father Marcellinus as toast master and the responses of Judge I. L. Albert, G. W. Phillips and Father Ryan. The school starts with a membership of twenty-two, and the brightest prospects for a career of usefulness.

Notice had been given a day in advance that memorial services would be held at the Methodist church Sunday evening in honor of the nation's dead president, and, in consequence, a large congregation of people was present. Throughout the exercises were listened with the closest attention. Invocation was made by Rev. Bosch, after which Superintendent Kern of the public schools read from manuscript a brief sketch of William McKinley, and the names of those who were present at the time that not as a soldier, but as a citizen, he died in the line of duty. His name appears among the great men in history, but as a civilian, devoted strictly to duty in every station in life he was called upon to occupy, a loyal conscientious and faithful, and a lover of peace. W. A. McAllister, commander of Baker post G. A. R., followed in remarks upon the nobility of character of the dead president and denunciation of the crime that had brought universal grief to the nation. Rev. Cory spoke of the martyred president as peculiarly faithful in all his relations of life as son, as husband, as citizen; of his ancestry as religious people, commending his life to American youth as well worthy their imitation as to loyalty to conviction, devotion to truth and to duty. Music peculiarly appropriate to the occasion had been prepared by the choir, the last hymn being that which President McKinley was quoted from on his death bed, "Nearer, my God, to Thee," in the singing of Last Wednesday afternoon at about three, the corner stone of the North Opera House was laid with the impressive ceremonies of the Masonic craft, under charge of Grand Master Evans, who called to his aid Master Schroeder of Columbus lodge and other local Masons. The copper cauldron deposited in the cavity of the stone holds the future generations who may tear down the structure to erect a greater one on the site, copies of Columbus newspapers; copies of the Omaha Bee and the World-Herald; the roll of auditorium stockholders; samples of 1901 American coins up to the value of twenty-five cents; an assortment of postage stamps; a roll of the city and county officials and of the membership of Lebanon Masonic lodge and a steel engraving of Jones Welch City and Platte county officials were present by invitation of Lebanon lodge. Many citizens were witnesses, for the first time, of the Masonic ceremonial, which has come to be a favorite one on such occasions. The use of the corn, the wine, the oil, the square, the level and the plumb, not also as natural objects, but as symbols of spiritual truth, embodying the apartment and the deep things of Masonry, formed a picture not soon to be forgotten by those who were present. The ceremony took place at the southeast corner, the stone bearing the inscription "September 11, 1901."

The Cleveland, Ohio, Leader of the 14th gives portraits of E. D. Fitzpatrick and R. L. Bomster with a character sketch headed "Comrades for fifty-two years." The article tells of their childhood spent together as playmates, their earliest together, and each nursing the other through sickness when shot in battle, of their coming west and living neighbors, of helping each other politically, and of their returning to Cleveland to visit old haunts and attend the G. A. R. reunion.

Chester, the ten-week-old infant child of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jones was found dead in bed Sunday morning. The child had suffered since birth with heart trouble. When found dead by the mother, he was still warm and had evidently not suffered any at the last. Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in the Methodist church, by Rev. Corey, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery. This is the second child Mr. and Mrs. Jones have lost by heart trouble.
