Ticket, fifty cents each.

—Among literary notes in a recent number of the Lincoln Journal is the following: Ernest A. Gerrard will have a poem in the January number of "Everybody's Magazine." He has recently finished novel treating of the "corn king," the railroad question and the "patent insider" of country newspapers. At present he is working on another novel dealing with the Americanization of a German family.

—Dr. Chas. I. White, the magnetic healer and vitaphone physician, will on and after next Monday, Dec. 24, be at the Clothing House, where he will treat diseases of the eye, and all chronic diseases. He treats catarrhs, granulated lids, total and partial blindness, without the surgeon's knife, or medicine. Epilepsy or fits, diseases peculiar to the female sex, paralysis, goitre, tumors, heart, nerve, blood, liver, kidney, bowel and stomach trouble, rheumatism, etc. The doctor's proposition is, if he does not cure or greatly benefit he will refund all money paid for treatment. Dr. White has been successful in many cases, where learned physicians have said there was no hope. If you are a sufferer with disease and pain, no matter what the nature, call and consult him at the Clothing House next week.

—The farm has the reputation of being the best place to begin life and it certainly is the best place to end it. All who pursue the occupation in the most approved method will avoid debt, overwork and scrub stock, and in doing so more pleasure will be found than in any other place. The occupation is healthful, respectable and it is left with the farmer himself to make it profitable.

—Lows Homestead.

—Miss Mary Reed of Morrison, Ill., cousin of Miss Mary Borowiak who has been visiting here since last winter, was married in the Presbyterian parsonage Wednesday evening to Mr. Oliver Baker formerly of Morrison, Ill., Rev. Becker performing the ceremony. The couple left on the evening train for Giddings, S. D., amid showers of rice. Miss Reed has made many friends here, who will wish her a happy future.

—At the supper Wednesday evening in the Maennerchor hall given for the benefit of the Catholic hospital, the crowd was so large that two and three stood in line waiting their turn for a place at the table. A great many tickets were sold throughout the country for a dance on the store given by the Gray Mercantile Co. The range was won by Nick Adams who, we believe, held about six tickets. Although the expenses were quite high, the ladies cleared $320 on the supper and stove together.

—Wednesday morning of last week, about 3 o'clock there was a collision of two freight trains at Benton, in which C. B. Hodgson, fireman, was injured internally and Trainman Kelly was severely bruised. Two of the cars were very badly wrecked. Harry Hohl of this city, who had charge of the station, has resigned his position. It is understood that the engineer says he believes the switch was properly set just before he reached it, the inference being that in an unguarded moment the change was made.

—Frank Spulak, a young Maple Creek farmer, has a right to consider himself lucky. Wednesday, while going from Anton Kunhart's store to the mill, he lost a pocketbook containing six hundred and forty-five dollars in money and a draft for four hundred dollars.

—The book was found by Mr. Kunhart before Frank had discovered his loss. When Anton returned the purse and contents to him Frank was as surprised as he was thankful. It was lucky for him that the book was found by an honest person.

—Howells Journal.

—Success in growing forage crops, such as grasses, clovers, etc., depends much on getting good seed. Seeds of these plants found on the market are often badly adulterated with other seeds, or are old and have lost their vitality, or may have been "brightened" to make them look fresh and their vitality destroyed in that way. The difficulty in getting good grass seed is notorious. At the University of Nebraska school of agriculture students are taught how to detect adulterations and to ascertain the per cent of good, strong seed in any sample.

—State Superintendent Fowler has made the following ruling in response to the question, "Have the women a voice at the primaries held in cities for the nomination of members of the boards of education?" "Section 4, subdivision 2, chapter Ixix, Compiled Statutes, confers upon women having the necessary qualifications the right to vote at any school district meeting or school election held in any district, village or city. I am of the opinion that this statute confers upon women possessing such qualifications the right to vote at primaries held in cities for the nomination of boards of education."

—The Columbus Commercial Club has been organized with Henry Bagatz, president; C. C. Gray, vice president; James E. North, secretary; J. F. Berney, treasurer; Jacob Greisen, M. Brugger, G. A. Schroeder, J. B. Geitzner, J. F. Berney, W. A. Way, Augustus Boettcher, Bert Galley, C. C. Gray, J. E. North and Henry Bagatz, directors. The secretary has provided headquarters for the club at his office in the Commercial bank building, and is ready for business. Columbus has heretofore had organizations with similar objects in view, but doubtless this one will prove the most effective of any for the general interests of the city. Long may it exist to do the work expected of it.

—It was on Eleventh street and it happened about 4 o'clock. Crash after crash of glass was heard and soon a crowd gathered near the enraged man in front of the Borowiak saloon. A strong, stout-built man, his right fist clinched, his left hand containing a piece of curtain rod broke slanting at one end. He had kicked and punched the window glass in the front of the saloon, till few whole lights were left, all the time ejaculating in wild rage against the men he had in mind. He had been hurt on the right side of his head, and there was a plentiful flow of blood in evidence there. He said they thought they had knocked him unconscious, but he'd show them, and thus he went on. A crowd gathered near him; the police-tap on the fire-bell near by had been made, and the ordinary citizens, although evidently interested in preventing further harm being done to himself or others by the man with the formidable-looking wooden bayonet, were not inclined to rush into single-handed and unarmed conflict with the man who seemed to have already come through a deadly, bloody contest. By this time a large crowd had gathered; the frenzied man was evidently cooling somewhat, probably seeing that these folks around him meant him no harm. Chief of Police Schack and U. P. police Grady walked up to the man and secured him, taking him to the city jail, not, however, without struggle and protest on his part. Thus far we have simply tried to convey in words a picture of what we saw. Walter Caffrey was utterly beside himself that was plain to be seen, and the next morning, to the policeman he said he felt mean, but didn't know what had happened at all. Borowiak, when interviewed, said when Caffrey came into his place, he attempted to do a thing not allowable anywhere, and the clerk took him by the arm and walked him out at the back door, when he turned around and kicked out a panel of the door, and this is when he was struck on the head twice by a stick. It seems that after this Caffrey went out and around to the front of the store. The damage done is estimated at about $25. The saloon fixtures were immediately removed to the new place of business at the corner, recently vacated by Easton.

OUR CHRISTMAS OFFER.

One of our fine hand-colored dollar and a half Medallions free with each dozen cabinet photographs from now until Jan. 1, 1902, at Saley's Art Studio.

—The entertainment given at the opera house Friday evening by the City Band, assisted by Miss Julia Walker and Garlick's Orchestra, was first-class in every particular, the combination of talent forming a pleasing variety throughout the evening. We are sorry to learn that Director, E. C. Hockenberger, has handed in his resignation, which he does for the sole reason that he cannot spare the time from his business duties. Under his direction the band has done most excellent work, and the success which they have won has certainly been deserved, and rightly their due, not only because of native ability, but harmony of purpose, persistence in practice and attention to duty. When the first note was struck Friday evening, all together as by one performer, without waver, clear and distinct, it was an assurance of the training that had been undergone for the entertainment, and of the treat before us so far as the Band work was concerned, and the audience were not once disappointed in the rendition of the program.

Miss Julia Walker has a voice singularly clear in quality of tone, and we believe, could readily be heard in the lowest cadences throughout a hall six times the capacity of the opera house. As a leader of orchestra and a trainer of young violinists, Prof. Garlick's evidenced his unusual skill, and he and those under his charge were accorded their due share of the honors of the evening. Those who were not present missed a delightful entertainment.

—Henry T. Spoorly thinks it mighty queer that with the numerous newspapers of the city more attention has not been given to the question of street grading. In his interview with a JOURNAL reporter, he expressed himself freely in his usual vigorous language, which we do not attempt to reproduce, but his objections are against the ditches; the cow patches, etc. When we suggested our opinion that the grade ordinance was a fairly-good measure, he replied that the streets were supposed to be for the accommodation of the public and the convenience of property-holders along them, but contended that there were places where these ends were not subserved, especially where the gutters were deep and near the crossings where culverts did not reach the full width. As the weather is now, it is not so noticeable as it will be when snow covers the ground, and the danger-places become more or less hidden. The objection he made to the grade-plate on either side of the grade is that they will grow to weeds, and will be an added expense to keep them in order. The narrowness of the grade was also referred to, especially on some of the streets which are too narrow at the best, and scarcely wide enough for two good-sized loads of hay to pass each other, without one of them going pretty well down into the gutter. The JOURNAL expresses the hope that when the grading of the streets, the cross-streets and the entrances to alleys is completed, the results will be so generally good that the work will be satisfactory to the community.

—The JOURNAL job department has just completed the printing of a finding list for the public library, a convenience to patrons, for which they can well afford to pay the 10 cents asked for it by the committee in charge. During its more than thirty-one years existence as a journal of local events, and an advocate for better things, THE JOURNAL has favored the establishment of free, public libraries in the city, and these efforts have not been without effect. What is at hand is a most excellent beginning, and some day the city will have a large library and reading room that will be a great credit to the community. We believe that public benefits should be provided by the public for the public, and think the state law in this regard is ample for the object. With the nucleus now established, it ought not to be a difficult matter to increase the list of books one or two hundred each year, and this can readily be done if all of us will live up to our privilege in the use of the good books, suitable to our several likings and needs, that are now at our disposal on the library shelves. Non-residents of the city may draw books, on the same terms as residents, except that in addition they are to pay for such privilege the small sum of one dollar a year. For several years past the Woman's club of the city has been giving considerable attention to the work of the library, and its present status is doubtless mainly due to them, together with the board of directors, J. G. Reader, W. M. Kern, Mrs. M. Brugger, Mrs. F. H. Geor, Mrs. S. A. Brindley, I. H. Britell, Mrs. J. B. Geitzner, Mrs. W. A. McAllister and S. C. Gray, and the committees under their charge. The librarian is Miss Fannie Geor. The room will be open Tuesday and Saturday afternoon and evening each week.
