FAREWELL.

With this issue of THE JOURNAL the Turner family will transfer all their interests in the plant to Mr. Kennedy of St. Edward and Mr. Abbott of Fremont as stated in our last issue. After nearly thirty-four years of newspaper work under the same firm name the paper will be turned over to two enterprising young men whom we feel confident will meet the needs of the public as the years go by and the town grows to become the best city in central Nebraska.

May 11, 1870, THE JOURNAL was established by M. K. Turner & Co., the members of the company being Allen C. Turner and his son Moses Kennedy Turner, who came directly here from Cadiz, Ohio. The senior member died in 1891 and M. K. Turner passed away in 1902. Since then, relatives who had been connected with the working force of the office have continued the business in the same firm name.

In reviewing the years of the existence of THE JOURNAL would be to give the history of the development of Nebraska, for a local paper was not limited to one county and its surrounding territory, in those early days.

THE JOURNAL in the early days chronicled the news not only of Platte, but Madison, Stanton, Merrick, Polk, Butler, Dodge and Colfax counties. Omaha was thought and spoken of as a near-by town. Settlers from where Oakdale and Norfolk are now located, came to Columbus to do their trading, and one of the features of THE JOURNAL was to give interesting and truthful accounts of the country, in an effort to encourage immigration.

With the exception of the Golden Age, a paper which was published just twelve issues in the year 1886 in Columbus by C. C. Strawn, and another, the Platte Valley Journal, of one year's duration by O. T. B. Williams, THE JOURNAL is the first publication in the city, and probably the oldest in the state west of Omaha which has been maintained under the same firm name.

The press now used to print the pages of THE JOURNAL is one which was used by E. Rosewater for the first issues of the Omaha Daily Bee, which was established in 1871. The press today, like much of the machinery made in those days, seems to be as good as new, and turns out as clear a print as any of the latest inventions.

In the opening announcement of the publishers of THE JOURNAL, they stated that the paper would be conducted along independent lines, that is "saying what we think on any subject which we choose to write upon without feeling under any obligation whatever to do our thinking second handed." This policy has been continued throughout all these years.

Politically, THE JOURNAL has always represented republican doctrine, and has endeavored at all times to advocate the best interests of that Grand Old Party, which we believe represents today, as it did thirty-four years ago, and has done continually during all the intervening years, the best interests of the whole people of the United States. The publishers never contemplated changing their political views, for the reason that no other party at any time seemed to meet the needs of the many as did the republican.

To our correspondents who have assisted us very materially in the gathering of news, we wish to say that yours is an important place to fill, in the maintaining of a country newspaper. We have not had a great number of these, but to all, and especially those who have faithfully looked after our interests in the country districts, we most heartily extend our thanks for the time and patience you have taken in our behalf. J. S. Truman of Genoa has for thirty or more years past furnished this paper with the government weather report. J. H. Drinnin, Mrs. Stevenson, H. E. Reed and W. D. Benson have all helped to make the columns interesting by their clean, pointed and newsy letters and we earnestly commend you to the new publishers, who solicit the aid of all in their endeavor to give the public all the news.

In this connection we wish to also thank Mrs. Hattie Boydson who, in the early years of THE JOURNAL'S existence, contributed many poems to its pages, and to Mrs. Mary Baird Finch, also a poetess who has all these years occasionally brightened the columns with her beautiful verses. Both these ladies have been highly honored in the field of poetic journalism, and we are proud to say that their early work with this publication. A. C. Tyrrell, now in Asheville, N. C., was one of the faithful friends in former years who will be remembered by many of our readers.

In reviewing the past, an interesting feature to us has been the very pleasant associations with our contemporaries. The friendliest feeling has always existed between ourselves and others in the same work, and in the future we will ever look back with tender thoughts to those happy social office calls.

The following named papers have been launched in this city at different times since the first issue of THE JOURNAL, mentioned in the order of their starting the publication: Columbus Era, established by W. N. Henley, and now the present Telegram property; Republican, F. P. Burgess; Independent, Em. J. Potts; Gazette, by the Burgess family; Platte Valley Democrat, Wentworth & Son; Wochenblatt, now the Biene, Dr. Schoulan; Sentinel, A. L. Bixby, now the Argus plant; Columbus Leader, W. M. Hutt; Times, W. L. Dale; Edict, Walker & Ewing.

To our subscribers and other patrons we wish to express sincere thanks for substantial encouragement, without which no business can exist. We ask equal forbearance toward our successors, and that not one reader will be lost, but many gained.

The Turner family will continue to make Columbus their home and retire from newspaper work to engage in other occupations.

SOME MORE ABOUT SEED CORN.

To Wallace Farmer an Iowa correspondent writes that in looking over his seed corn he finds that on some ears where the corn is firm and the cob very dry and the kernel looks clear the end of the kernel shows a spot, and he wishes to know whether kernels of that kind are good for seed.

The black spot occurs when the tip of the covering of the germ is removed because of complete maturity. We would not reject ears of this kind unless we had a superabundance of seed. If the weather conditions should be normal these grains will grow but if the ground is cold when the corn is planted and germination is delayed, bacteria may find entrance and the stalk may be weakened. In short, these black spots show damage. Whether we would plant these or not would depend on whether we had sufficient seed without them.

Further, he says: "In your issue of February 19th you say after four days look at your corn and see how many kernels have two sprouts. Do you mean to say that if I plant some corn and each kernel shows but one sprout that that corn will not be safe to plant?"

There is but one germ in each grain of corn planted, and hence, strictly speaking, but one sprout. This sprout, however, turns both up and down, and both the upward and downward parts of it should be fully developed. Grains which show this vigorous development of both the part of the plant that is intended to go into the air and the part that goes into the ground should be preferred above all others. The more vigorous the corn, the more clearly will be developed this two-fold sprouting.

Almost within the limits of the little city of Louisville, this state, is located one of the most wonderful and wealthiest Kaolin banks in the world. Twenty years ago the product of this bank was shipped abroad to be used in the manufacture of high grade chinaware, but never on an extensive scale, and practically no effort has been made to develop the bank. So far as known there is no other Kaolin bank which will compare with it in the United States, except one in New England, which has proven a gold mine to the owner.

"DAN PARKS," the famous painter, has been secured by the management for an appearance at the state fair at Lincoln, August 30. The cost of the appearance is said to be double that for Croesus, which was $1,000.

Lincoln Letter.

Warden Boemer has purchased a thousand yards of gray woolen cloth to be made up in suits for the "good" boarders at the penitentiary. The Nebraska prison will be the only one in the world to operate under the "promotion" system. The west cell house will not be ready for many weeks but Warden Boemer wishes to have his arrangements completed so that when the big, new clean room is ready for occupancy the better behaved convicts can doff the stripes and leave the gloomy old quarters for a more airy and cheerful abode.

In an open letter signed by J. L. Tooten, the regents of the state university uphold Chancellor Andrews in his determination to accept the Rockefeller donation. One paragraph of the letter is of great interest and will be received with satisfaction by all friends of the chancellor whether they coincide with his views or not. This paragraph replies to the repeated insinuations cast by an Omaha paper and based upon the purchase of certain lots adjacent to the university campus.

Last winter the legislature was asked to appropriate $8,000 for the purchase of real estate near the university, neither the number nor the description of the lots being given. Later it was discovered that but $5,000 was expended in this way, and while no direct accusation was made, the public was led to believe that the chancellor had received $3,000, expended $5,000 and placed the balance where he thought it would do the most good.

It is explained that the $8,000 was asked for with a view to picking up stray lots here and there near the campus, that $5,000 had been so invested and that the remainder of the appropriation remains in the state treasury and will remain there until the board sees fit to invest it in other property.

The regents also explain that the constitution of the state, as well as acts of the legislature leave the board no option but to receive all donations made to the institution. The board's interpretation of the law in this respect is hotly disputed by those opposed to accepting the offer, and the verbal war goes on merrily, but with the charges of fraud in the real estate deals happily eliminated.

March 23, the distributing car of the Nebraska fish commission left the hatcheries at South Bend with a consignment of 200,000 trout fry to be "planted" in the small streams tributary to the Niobrara. The first stop will be made in Antelope county and the last in Sioux county. State veterinarian Thomas has recommended a lime and sulphur dip for cattle infected with lice, mange and other troubles of that nature and insists that the same shall be applied the moment the ailment is known to exist in a herd.

The statutes give the veterinarian authority to prescribe treatment and fix a $50 penalty for refusing or neglecting to follow his suggestions.

The very strained relations between the two wings of the Nebraska democracy and the fact that Leo Herdman is the recognized leader of the anti-Bryan forces have brought on rather a warm little war between that astute politician and a number of the "regulars"—a war of epithets, charges and counter charges and absolute falsifications chief, and most prominent among which, is the absurd story that a republican supreme court at the behest of the Hill-Harriman interests, has promised to retain Herdman as clerk so long as he continues to oppose Mr. Bryan and stirring up strife within the ranks of his party. This preposterous statement was invented by the Bryan followers and has since been published with reiteration by a few republican papers.

Contempt proceedings might be in order if such statements were not beneath the contempt of any court.

The republicans of the first district convened at Lincoln last Tuesday, nominated Congressman Burkett for a fourth term, endorsed John L. Webster for vice-president, and C. H. Morrill for national committee man, chose Judge Barton of Pawnee City for presidential elector and W. J. Crandall, Lincoln, and Frank E. Helvey, Nebraska City, for delegates to the national convention.

The work of H. C. Lindsay as chairman of the state central committee was commended, and a resolution urging his appointment as United States district attorney for Nebraska was unanimously adopted.

The contract between the Fremont Canal & Power company and the J. F. Kelley Electrical company of New York for the financing and engineering work on the proposed power canal has been extended until April 1. As originally drawn, the contract expired March 15, but the Kelley company has been allowed two weeks more in which to accomplish the undertaking.

The last to withdraw from the gubernatorial contest is W. H. Harrison of Grand Island, leaving a clear field to the present incumbent, J. H. Mickey, for a re-nomination. It is well. With a united party and the standard bearers Roosevelt and Mickey there is no reason why the state of Nebraska should not give a republican majority of 25,000 or better at the November election.

THE NEBRASKA FARMER will open a new department April 1, called "Nebraska's Resources and Industries." This department will embrace all that the title implies. Contributions relative to real estate transactions, land values, immigration, organization and development of local agricultural enterprises, advantages for homesteaders and investors, examples illustrating notable success in farming, dairying, horticulture, live stock raising, worthy achievements of success in any industrial line, are solicited from all persons interested in presenting Nebraska's resources and advantages to the homesteading public.

ACCORDING to the new year book of the Nebraska State Federation of Women's Clubs a great deal of philanthropic work was done last year. The Syracuse club gave $675 to a library fund. The club at Albion gave $100 in money and $25 worth of books to the library. The Omaha club supports several worthy charities. There are 119 clubs in the federation, twenty-two of which were admitted during the year. The entire membership is 4,527.

Ten friends of the University of Nebraska have raised the third of $100,000, which John D. Rockefeller said must be a condition under which he would give the other two-thirds for a university temple. The proposed gift has been opposed by many Nebraskans, who did not want to accept Rockefeller's money, and the matter threatened to become a campaign issue. The temple will be built soon on the university campus.

Law Breaking in Columbus.

Sunday evening the ministers of the Presbyterian, Methodist, Congregational and Baptist churches preached upon the subject of law breaking in the city of Columbus, and as there was a desire among many to hear these discourses, we herewith summarize the sermons. Rev. Halsey said:

"Patriotism should begin at home and defend the home. Environment has much to do with the making of character. The home environment does and must extend beyond the four walls of the dwelling. All parts of our 'home city' should be such that our boys and girls may go and come without danger of evil influence. What parent has not high aspirations for his offspring? He would see realized in them the ideals he has failed to reach. They must have better opportunities and environment." He then spoke of the notorious breaking of law by saloon keepers, vendors of tobacco, dice-throppers, Sabbath desecrators and others, with impunity. He asked if there were no public prosecutors sworn to enforce law? He suggested that right minded citizens should wait upon the incoming administration and pledge themselves to support the mayor, council, police officers and others in the strict enforcement of law.

Rev. Luce used the following line of thought for his discourse: "Scripture lesson Ezekiel 22d. Law-breaking one of our most common sins. Rules of home disregarded; city ordinance defied; state law broken, and national laws violated. 'Euclea's Gam' generally obeyed until recent years, men of wealth and high position break the laws without fear of conviction or much humiliation. See the Northern Securities Merger case. It is decidedly a flagrant breaking of the Sherman law; but the attorney general declares that the government does not mean to run amuck.' We need development of the spirit of true law-enforcement till the sentiment of our manhood shall demand and carry out its enforcement. The spirit of insubordination is seen on every hand, in home, in school and country. Strikes are lawlessness; so are mobs; whether among men and women or among boys and girls. See the strike in the York school. Columbus is not the worst city, but that is no excuse for our allowing lawbreaking. Officials in this city or country must have the public opinion to sustain them. I call your attention to the laws that are broken in this city, not all of them, but some of them: Gambling places; in stores and shops frequently by dice and other ways. The spirit of getting something for nothing is abroad; the children are started in these ways early in little things, but they grow. Gambling is a curse to a people whether the operators are successful winners or losers. The saloon keepers open at unlawful times and on the Sabbath. I am told there is at least one that does not open on Sunday. I do not admire his business, but I do commend his character as a law abiding citizen. According to the laws of this state the saloon that complies with the laws is to be protected, and I advise everybody to see to it that the laws are kept, whether he be prohibitionist or saloonist. The saloons do not keep the laws as a rule in many other respects, namely, the having of screens or something that is offensive to that end; many of them sell to minors on Sunday."

Rev. Ulmer in his sermon showed by reading extracts from the statutes of Nebraska and the city ordinances, which deal with the sale of liquors and tobacco, with gambling, billiards, obscene literature, houses of ill-fame and the desecration of the Sabbath, how the laws are habitually and unrestrainedly broken. That such lawlessness must generate an immoral and anarchic atmosphere which greatly endangers the morality of the rising generation; and that practically the only thing we can do for the immediate future is by moral suasion to bring such a pressure to bear on our official representatives that they will enforce our laws and ordinances.
