Farwell of Rev. Luce.
Sunday was the last day of Rev. Luce's work in the city as pastor of the Methodist church, and at both morning and evening services large congregations were present to hear the farewell sermon. Rev. Luce has been pastor of the Columbus church three years and during that time has won the love and respect of his congregation. He has been instrumental in building up the church to a strong institution financially, increasing the membership from 148 to 230. During the three years pastorate, the people have raised a total of $6123. There is now an average attendance in the Sunday School of 122; the Epworth League has 70 members and the Junior League 44. Many improvements have been made in the church and parsonage and the close of this conference year finds the financial and spiritual condition in better shape than ever before. Rev. Luce retires from the ministry to make his home in Omaha, where his wife, who is an invalid, can receive better care and be free from many duties relative to a minister's wife. Rev. Luce has been asked to accept the position of treasurer of the Methodist hospital in Omaha. Mrs. Luce left Saturday and Mr. Luce Monday, for Omaha, afterward going to visit in Lyons. There will be no preaching services in the Methodist church next Sunday, but the pulpit will be filled the following Sabbath by the new pastor.

When the new Norris & Rowe's Shows Trained Animal and Circus Combined makes its appearance at Columbus Monday, September 19th, the children will have no cause to complain of lack of fun for the owners have secured the services of twenty of the laugh-provoking, jesting fellows known to all juveniles as clowns. All sorts and conditions of jesters are there—tall, thin clowns, short pudgy clowns, the stupid clown who is always getting into trouble, and the mischievous clown who is always making trouble, little clowns who simply chatter with glee for the very joy of being let loose; and last but not least the animal clowns who enter so heartily into the spirit of fun as their human brethren. The clown dog—who always puts his foot into it, the clown monkey and this year, what do you think? Why a tiny clown bear and if you don't think he can be funny just watch him, that's all. The fun of the clowns happily blends with the many other big features that Norris & Rowe have provided for this seasons entertainment with their new big shows.
