Escaped Prisoner Caught. Norfolk, Neb., October 26.—(Special).—Having driven back to Norfolk with his second stolen rig, George Hart, the Columbus jailbird who escaped in the delivery last Sunday, was recaptured here today. Hart had gone to work in the sugar factory and was taken from the machine and was locked in jail. At noon he was taken back to Columbus by the deputy sheriff, who has been here all the week waiting for something to turn up. Hart declares that he didn't had just broken out for the purpose of getting exercise. Otherwise, he said, he wouldn't have come back to Norfolk where he was known, having been arrested here only a week ago on the original charge. He says the food in the Columbus jail, though it was great stuff, didn't come fast enough to suit him, and that's the reason why he wanted to get out.

Blend Coal $5.50 Per Ton at Yard. This coal is a large ton. Mr. Tomose was night porter in the Union Pacific round house in this city. He has resided in Columbus about a year and a half.

NEBRASKA.—On his trip to St. Louis John Schmoeker tells us that he was impressed by the improved condition of the Nebraska farms over that of Missouri. In the orchards in south eastern Nebraska apples are now lying thick under the trees showing an abundance of yield, buildings and all surroundings plainly indicating the thrifty condition of the state. It is not so evident with the state of Missouri. At the exposition Mr. Schmoeker says he thought Nebraska had the very best exhibition of all the states in the Agriculture building. The industries of sugar beets, alfalfa, culture, dairying, hog raising, etc., were all wonderfully portrayed by moving pictures. On Nebraska day, Tuesday, he says he visited the state building, but up to the hour he was there no Columbus people had yet registered their names.

Thrown From Carriage.—Mrs. Nick Adams was thrown from her carriage Thursday night about 11 o'clock near the residence of Mrs. E. J. Young one mile north of town, as she was returning home from the Hospital Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams, their two sons, Carl and Nick and Miss Nettie, consisting the teacher of their district school were in the carriage and as they were riding at a fast rate the carriage wheel jolted into a rut and Mrs. Adams was thrown out between the wheels. When picked up from the ground she was unconscious, and was brought back to town to the office of Dr. Tiesing, where she was cared for until this afternoon when she was taken to the hospital.

No serious trouble is anticipated aside from severe bruises on the right side, where the carriage wheel passed over her body.
