SOME PAINT FACTS—

1. Pure Linseed Oil is the foundation of all Paint Durability.
2. The general prejudice against Ready-Mixed Paints is based on the fact that most of them are adulterated with inferior oil.
3. All paint is first ground into a THICK PASTE, and the Ready-Mixed paint maker then dilutes every gallon of this paste with a gallon of "oil"—you have to take his word for its purity.
4. When you buy Ready-Mixed Paint, you pay the Ready-Mixed price for this canned "oil," or from 1/2 to 5 times the market price for the fresh, pure raw oil in your local dealer's barrel.
5. There is a paint whose makers STOP when the paste is completed; content with the profit on the paint alone and knowing that any 15 year old boy can mix this paste and the pure raw oil, both bought separately from the local dealer. Simply mix together, gallon for gallon, no less, and nothing else, and YOU know you have an absolutely pure Linseed oil paint that has cost you at least 25% less than any "High Grade" Ready-Mixed Paint. An honest price for both paint and oil and your own personal knowledge of its purity and durability.
6. This paint is Kiln-dried House Paint, which is made in a full line of standard, popular and DURABLE colors. It is not a patent paint. It is just the good old time-tried paint materials, ground together ready for you to thin down with the pure raw oil.

Convention for Columbus.

(Friday - Daily)

James Nevels returned from Omaha today where he has been in attendance at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Retail Liquor Dealers' Protective association. It transpires that Mr. Nevels got more than a re-election as president of the association.

Through his efforts Columbus was named as the place of the annual meeting for 1906.

This means an attendance of about 500 delegates in Columbus from from three to five days, and they are a bunch who will leave money in the town where they meet. This will be an event of greater commercial value to Columbus than is often secured by one man, and the business interests of the city owe thanks to Mr. Nevels for the successful effort which he made to bring the meeting here.

While there will be some of our citizens who conscientiously oppose all forms of liquor traffic, nevertheless it must be recognized that no class of men is more anxious for a decent and law-abiding conduct of the retail business than the men who compose this association.

At the Omaha meeting P. P. Riede of Lindsay was also elected a member of the executive board of the association.

Huge Task.

It was a huge task, to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, but Electric Bitters did it. He writes "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on chair without cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache, and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach. Guaranteed by Chas. Dack druggist, price 50 cents."

BEAUTIFUL EYES.

"The Windows of the Soul" From the Artist's Viewpoint.

What is the definition of beautiful eyes? Why are some eyes beautiful and others ugly? What makes the eye beautiful? To this a Paris artist, an impressionist, makes the following reply:

"Eyes are beautiful according to their size. Small eyes may twinkle, but they cannot express. Little eyes may twinkle like stars, but they cannot blind you. Eyes that are under-sized may glow, but they can never fascinate.

"The eyes must be prominent. Sunk-in eyes are sad. Eyes that lie deep in the eye sockets make you think of treason, of strategy, of deeds that are dark, not deeds that are open. Deep student eyes may be indicative of deep student thoughts, but they are not attractive.

"Dry, hard eyes are never lovely; neither are eyes that have wrinkles over them or between them. Eyes that are lined with crow's feet are always unlovely.

"The color of the eyes is said to depend upon a pigment which supplies them with color. But this coloring pigment is not always reliable. Deep blue eyes will look faded if one is tired. The color pigment does not flow freely. If agitated they will darken and deepen in hue.

"Dark brown or black eyes will grow still darker and blacker when one is excited. But when one is weary or has used the eyes to excess they will look faded. The moral is do not use the eyes too long and do not use them at all when you want to look your best.

"Big eyes are almost always beautiful.

"Prominent eyes are apt to be handsome, but they are repulsive if too prominent. The woman whose eyes stick out of her head has little redress. If she can manage to grow fat the prominence will be less noticeable. A fleshy face generally conceals the prominence of the eyes.

"The best color for ideal eyes is a deep brown. Velvet brown it was called in the old fashioned novels. Great velvet brown, fawnlike eyes were ideal.

"The eyes to be beautiful must be swept by very long lashes which shade them and give them a depth and brilliancy not their own. Every device is used to make the lashes grow, but where this cannot be accomplished then the eyes must be darkened in other ways. They must be kept healthy, which is always a point of beauty with any eyes.

"Long eyes are always desirable. There is a certain quizzical beauty about the long, almond shaped eye which is most bewitching. The eyes of the orientals are very attractive, long and brilliant and full of fire.

"Round eyes were once considered very pretty. True, they are babyish, but they are very seldom really handsome. They are apt to degenerate when one gets a little older into pop eyes, a term applied to eyes that stick out of the head and are devoid of beauty. Round eyes become pop eyes at thirty.

"The handsomest eyes—and all women should pray for pretty eyes—are long, dark, brilliant and well shaded with lashes. They are big and glowing and expressive, and there is that quality about them which one calls deep. Deep, beautiful dark eyes, heavily shaded with sweeping lashes, are a special gift of the gods vouchsafed to few, but very much admired wherever they are found."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Bad Imitation.

Buckstone, the popular English comedian and dramatist, was rather fond of telling the following story, although it was somewhat against himself:

One night Pechter, Sothorn and Buckstone were leaving the Haymarket theater some little time after the performance was over, when suddenly Buckstone discovered a billsticker posting an election placard right upon the front of that sacred house of comedy.

"How dare you, sir!" he said in his peculiar guttural and jerky manner. "How dare you post bills upon my theater?"

The man paid no attention, but went on lathering the placard, which he put up with an air of quiet defiance.

"You miserable billsticker!" said Buckstone, his mummery coming out very pointedly with his temper. "If you don't desist, you scoundrel, I'll have you locked up."

Whereupon the man, quietly making a closing dab at the poster, said, "I'll have you locked up, you impostor. If you don't mind, for giv'n' such a bad imitation of Buckstone—could do it better myself." London Telegraph.

Mahogany.

Dr. Gibbons, an eminent London physician in the latter half of the seventeenth century, had a brother, a West India captain, who brought over in his ship some logs of this wood as ballast. As the doctor was then building a house in King street, Covent Garden, London, his brother thought they might be of service to him, but the carpenters, finding the wood too hard for their tools, laid the logs aside as useless.

Soon after Mrs. Gibbons wanted a candle box, and the doctor called on his cabinetmaker, Wollaston, in Long Acre, and asked him to make one of some wood lying in his garden. Wollaston also complained that it was too hard. The doctor said he must get stronger tools. The candle box was, however, made and approved, inasmuch that the doctor then insisted on having a bureau of the same wood, which was also completed and was so much admired, especially by the Duchess of Buckingham, that the fame of mahogany rapidly rose, and it soon came into general use.

THE EGG IN HISTORY.

It is Surrounded by Many Ancient Legends and Beliefs.

Like many another term in Christian nomenclature, the word "Easter" is derived from pagan sources. The Saxon goddess of light, Estra, was honored with an annual festival at the vernal equinox. The Jewish Passover was also regulated by the March moon, and the resurrection of Jesus occurred at this season. In later centuries the great Christian festival came to bear the pagan name Easter and to be celebrated at a time coincident with the Jewish feast.

Since remotest times the egg has symbolized re-creation. Persian tradition has it that the world was hatched from an egg at the season which corresponds to the vernal equinox, for which reason eggs are still given for New Year's presents by the Persians. The druids said that the sun, a great egg, hatched from itself the earth and other planets.

By the Chinese it is believed that the world was formed of two parts of a great egg. From the yolk man came forth. He then waved his hand, and the upper half of the shell went upward and became the concave heavens, the lower half reversed, making the convex earth, and the white albumen became the seas.

When Christianity took over various of the Saxon rites the Paschal eggs of the Jews were vested with a new significance, namely, the resurrection of Christ. They were colored red in memory of the blood shed for man's redemption.—Chicago News.

The Hester's Advantages.

"If we economize," said the husband, "we will soon have a house of our own instead of having to live in rented property."

"But I'm not sure I should like that," answered the wife. "I couldn't drive nails anywhere I please in the walls or woodwork of our own house, you know."—Chicago News.

Fooled Him.

"Why am I like a pin?" asked Mr. Jones triumphantly of his wife. He expected she was going to say, "Because you are so sharp," and he was simply paralyzed when she replied: "Because if you should get lost it wouldn't be worth while to spend time looking for you."

Trees.

Trees have about them something beautiful and attractive even to the fancy, since they cannot change their places, are witnesses of all the changes that take place around them and as some reach a great age they become, as it were, historical monuments, and, like ourselves, they have a life, growing and passing away, not being handmade and unvarying, like the fields and rivers. One sees them passing through various stages and at last, step by step, approaching death, which makes them look still more like ourselves.—Hum boldt.

The Jewel Murder.

(Friday's Daily)

The following dispatch from Nogales, Mexico, is quoted from a San Diego, Cal., paper, relative to the disappearance and supposed murder of Luther H. Jewell, formerly of Platte county, mention of which was made in yesterday's Journal: "Luther H. Jewell, capitalist and mining man from San Diego, has been murdered and his body burned near Lazo, Sonora, Mexico, according to a Mexican at Liano. Three Mexicans and Luis Garcia, who told the story, are under arrest."

"Colonel Fred Jewell, of San Diego, brother of the supposed murdered man, with several others, accompanied Garcia to the place where the latter said the murder had been committed. A heap of ashes was found, Garcia had been shadowed days by a detective in the employ of Colonel Jewell. The first information was obtained from him yesterday while he was drunk. When sober he pointed out three Mexicans whom he accused of the crime.

"Colonel Jewell, with three friends and a Mexican policeman, rode twenty miles to the scene of the crime and captured three men at a neighboring ranch."

Dying Of Famine.

is, in its torments, like dying of consumption. The progress of consumption, from the beginning to the very end, is a long torture, both to victim and friends. "When I had consumption in its first stage," writes Wm. Meyers, of Cearfon, Md., "after trying different medicines and a good doctor, in vain, at last took Dr. King's New Discovery, which quickly and perfectly cured me." Prompt relief and sure cure for coughs, colds, sore throats, bronchitis, etc. Positively prevents pneumonia. Guaranteed at Chas. Dack's drug store, price 50 cents and $1 per bottle.
