Mrs. Joe Havel who lives 15 miles northeast of this city, whose head was crushed by a hammer in the hands of her husband three weeks ago, is still alive. After the wounds were sewed up, she went into a stupor caused by pressure on the brain. Dr. W. S. Evans trephined the skull to remove the pressure last week and the woman is gradually recovering. She is with her daughter in Rogers.

Messrs. Miller, McGath and Wille pulled off their Poland China sale last Monday at Brannigan's barn as advertised in the Journal, and as a result the herds of about one hundred Platte county farmers are enriched by some of the best blood in the country. Farmers in this territory have come to know that these men deal on the square and offer as good stock as can be found anywhere. Every man who brings such stock to Platte county is adding to the county's permanent wealth.

ERNST AGAINST SNAG.

Treasurer Becher Determined not to permit Ernst and Bender to vote themselves illegal salaries.

It is a dull week at the Platte county court house that does not turn out at least one good-sized quarrel among the democratic office holders. And last week surpassed all previous weeks in that line, including even the preceding week when at the close of the committee meeting two prominent democrats had a fist fight.

This time the quarrel was between Dietrich Becher, county treasurer and Julius Ernst who last year drew nearly $500 more than the law allows.

Ernst went to the treasurer's office, armed with a warrant for supervisors' salary. Treasurer Becher knew that Ernst had drawn out nearly his legal allowance of $300 although the year is not nearly gone. Investigation showed Ernst had collected within a few dollars of the $300 limit, hence the warrant was paid. But this notice to Ernst that the treasurer was determined to stand with Swanson, Kierman and Goetz in protecting the people's pocket-book, brought on a storm that would make thunder sound like the feeble purring of a sick kitten. Ernst had just come from a meeting of the supervisors in which he had voted against allowing treasurer Becher $10 to buy a mailing list from which to send out notices to taxpayers to save the expense of service through the sheriff and he evidently believed he had done all the law requires of an official in the way of economy. At any rate he was greatly displeased to find a fellow democrat who had the nerve to stand by the law, and he did not hesitate forcibly to express his views on the subject. No blows were struck, but deeper wounds were left than if a knife had been used.

Commenting on this latest "court house scandal", a prominent democrat remarked: "This Ernst-Becher quarrel removes the last hope we had of getting the fighting factions together. The Telegram, the Ernst-Bender organ, which is known secretly to oppose Becher, had said so many good things about Becher in its columns that we believed all differences had been overcome. But now the fight is opened again and nothing can stop it. The republicans will win out now in spite of us. This is our reward for having our organization run by a set of grafters and our chief party organ always defending them. We will be defeated this fall, and we ought to be, for turning our organization over to such a set."

Had On Their Fighting Clothes.

Monday was an unusually interesting day in Columbus, especially for the eight people who were concerned in four fist encounters which took place during the day. There seemed nothing wrong in the atmosphere but the trouble was in the people and more than one spot of claret soiled the various battle fields. Eleventh street contributed two of the bouts, Twelfth one and Thirteenth one. The on Twelfth was between two of the city's most popular business men.

Reception.

The society event of the season was the reception last night at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Snow in honor of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kelly, who were married last Wednesday in Chicago. Nearly two hundred guests were present and every detail of the reception was carried out with perfect precision and brilliant effect. In the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Snow, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kelly, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Kramer and Mrs. Mayer, of Chicago. Mrs. Kramer's sister.

The rooms were all brilliantly lighted and decorated with red roses. In the den Misses Mary Howard and Eva Walker served punch and the men found cigars and easy chairs in Mr. Snow's smoking room. Mrs. J. B. Geitzner and Mrs. P. J. Hart directed the guests to the dining room where ice cream was served, the Misses Marcia Perkins and Clara Reeder presenting them with carnations as they entered.

A delightful musical program was given, the vocal numbers by Mesdames Reeder, Rathburn, Evans, and Miss Garlow. Miss Whitmoyer gave a piano number and Prof. Sike and Mrs. Garlow gave a piano and violin duet.

Mrs. Kelley was lovely in a bridal gown of white broadcloth and lace and carried a bouquet of bride's roses.

Early in the evening the K. K. K.'s, a club of boys serenaded the bridal couple in most modest manner for boys, and later were serenaded by the Columbus band.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley left this morning on a trip through his territory.

Leave During Night

Through the work of Mayor Dickinson, Columbus is at last rid of one of the country resorts established in the Lutjeharms property one mile west of Columbus, just after Mayor Dickinson pronounced his ultimatum against those resorts within the city limits.

The two girls in question are Maude Baldwin and Emma Washer and they left during the darkness of last Saturday night, leaving Louis Lutjeharms, who was foolish enough to sign their recognizances, to hold the sack to the tune of $200.

The girls were brought into Justice O'Brien's court by Officer Rossiter on a complaint made by Mayor Dickinson charging them with keeping a house of prostitution. The girls were in jovial mood when they entered the sacred domains of the justice court, and declared they would "lay it out" in jail. Later in the evening, Louis Lutjeharms, their landlord, came to their rescue, signing their bond to appear in court, at the same time he notified them to vacate his property immediately. Deprived of a domicile in which to make a living, the girls decided to depart with all the most valuable of their belongings.

The case has been carried up to the district court where Lutjeharms will have to produce either the girls or the money.

Mayor Dickinson's persistent pounding away in the interest of law has made owners of houses afraid to rent them to people of bad repute for fear of prosecution.

A Big Week.

The people of Platte county should not overlook the date or forget the importance of the Poultry and Stock show to be held in Columbus this week, beginning December 18.

A few progressive men in Platte county working diligently for years in the poultry business have brought Platte county to the very front in poultry raising, not only in Nebraska but in the middle west. Whenever Platte county birds are entered in a contest for prizes they win their full share, no matter where competing birds come from. It is this showing that has turned the eyes of poultry men all over the country to the Platte County Poultry Association, and led them to make liberal entries in our annual local exhibitions. Though it is no longer proper to refer to them as local exhibitions. The exhibition this year promises to outstrip all its predecessors. And to provide for the numerous entries and large crowds next December, the officers have prevailed upon Thomas Brannigan to make a large addition to his sales barn.

Mr. Brannigan is constructing an addition 64 by 80 feet which will provide ample room for an excellent display.

To the poultry exhibit this year has been added hogs, of all the leading breeds which will be exhibited and sold during show week. It is the purpose of the enterprising management to develop the association until it takes in all the industries of the county making an annual fair of large proportions. Boone county has been made famous by its excellent fair association which has stimulated progressive and scientific methods of agriculture at home and advertised the county abroad.

The Platte County Poultry and Stock Association will do as much for Platte county with proper encouragement.

A new line of guaranteed pipes and smokers' articles at The Bowling Alley.

The Compauv K reception and dance has been postponed to October 28 on account of the bad weather.

A late telegram announces the death of Mrs. Inhoff at Huntington, Oregon. The body will be brought home for burial.

Miss Florence Kramer accompanied by her aunt, Mrs. B-n Mayer of Chicago returned home last Saturday. Mrs. Mayer will visit here several weeks.

L. G. Zianecker, moved into his new barber shop on 13th street last Monday. There is no finer barber shop in Nebraska than Mr. Zianecker's. It is large, light and beautifully furnished.

The new Phillips building is being pushed rapidly. The foundations are complete and work started on the first story. Jack Parker of Albion is doing the brick work and "Jack" pushes everything he takes hold of.

Judge Katterman has issued marriage licenses as follows since the last issue of the Journal: Geo. Eismann, Humphrey and Kate A. Supenchek of Bellwood; Gerhard Schutte, Leigh and Sophia K. Brandes, Columbus; James G. Lee and Emily J. Hennessy of Platte Center.

T. Friedhof has filed a petition in district court praying for an injunction to restrain the Union Pacific Railroad from grading and doing other work to widen its right-of-way through the northeast quarter of section 19, township 16, range 2, owned by him. He claims that the railroad is entitled to only 100 feet through his land, whereas it is trying to use 200 feet.

The Mieses Sheehan entertained twenty-four young ladies last Saturday afternoon at a parcel shower for Miss Anna Hohen. The rooms were beautifully decorated, red predominating both in the rooms and table decorations. The parcels were placed on a table in the parlor and opened by Miss Hohen. Many valuable pieces of silver and cut glass were presented. Luncheon was served in three courses, Miss Eva Walker and Miss Alice Kavanaugh assisting. Miss Hohen will be married tomorrow morning at the German Reform church to Dr. Frederick Baumgart of Danville, Ill.

J. T. Bixby is here for this week from Omaha with a proposition to give Columbus a free illustrated write-up in the Sunday edition of the World-Herald, in consideration, only of a certain number of paid-in-advance subscriptions to the paper he represents. He will directly call upon the representative business men of our city and make known to each one the particulars of his project. From information furnished the Journal it appears that Columbus will be given an unusually generous offer. Mr. Bixby is an early day Columbus printer and a pioneer newspaper man in Nancon county.

$10,000 DEFICIT.

The taxpayers of Platte county are again paying 7 per cent interest on over $10,000 worth of outstanding warrants, which the treasurer lacks funds to take up. This deficit is due to two causes. First, the failure of the railroads to pay their taxes; and second, the failure of the supervisors to make the heavy high enough to meet such extraordinary expenses as the constant payment of 25 per cent more than the legal rate for all the county printing, the payment of illegal supervisors' salaries and the maintenance of a bridge trust, which is forced to make enough extra out of Platte county taxpayers to maintain an expensive lobby in Lincoln, and to pay for transportation to take supervisors to the Pacific coast.

We need legislative action to force the railroads to pay their taxes as private citizens do, and we need a change in our county offices that will lop off the burden of high taxes in Platte county.

Bucking the Line.

The Columbus high school football team went to Kearney Saturday to play against the Kearney Military Academy. The team has played three games this season all of which resulted in a tie.

The game with Kearney was fought with muscle and skill, and while Kearney is considered one of the strongest aggregations in the state our boys easily held them to a nothing to nothing score to the finish.

It rained hard during the game which made playing, especially end runs very hard. The Columbus players were: Gray, I. B.; Botterton, I. B.; Katterman, R. B.; Neater, G.; Schwarz, C.; Hayes, I. G.; Dickinson, T. G.; Davies, I. T.; Held, R. T.; Adams, I. C.; Cass, R. A. Subs: McAllister, Bosticher, Coach, Graves.

CITY TEAM VS. DAVID CITY.

While the high school boys were playing a shut-out game at Kearney Saturday, the Columbus City team was doing similar things over at David City to a stalwart bunch of Bohemians.

When the game ended neither side had made a single point. Both teams put up pretty ball and the game was free from accident.

The game suited the crowd in attendance but the Columbus players and their manager Jim Christensen were sore. They are not sore over the hard line work done during the game, but decidedly sore at a Mr. Green, the youthful manager of the David City team. Just before the game ended the Hon. Green manager played "home speed home" on our boys and failed to pay their expense guarantee. That was the smallest trick to ever be reported by the Journal, and the young man responsible for it will never win friends. Our boys had money and did not walk home.

Twenty-Second Infantry.

The 22nd Infantry regiment stationed at Fort Crook will long remember their trip to Columbus where they spent last Sunday. Crowds of citizens went to their camping grounds in Baker's pasture north of the Loup bridge to witness guard mount and they all felt repaid. The movements of the soldiers were executed with precision and accuracy. The regiment makes a march each year for the purpose of discipline, and Columbus was doubtless selected as a favorable point at which to spend Sunday because of the military atmosphere which exists here.

Not the least among the memories which the officers of the 22nd regiment carried away with them was the delightful informal reception given in their honor by Colonel and Mrs. Carroll D. Evans at their beautiful home on Sunday night. An informal musical program was contributed by Mrs. E. H. Chambers, Mrs. Evans and Carroll Evans, and a dainty luncheon was served in the dining room.

The guests of honor were Col. Pratt, Maj. Bern, Capt. Ayers, Capt. Wilcox, Capt. Kilborn, Lieut. Gill, Lieut. Little, Lieut. Elliott. The other guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Robinson, Mrs. Humphreys, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Howard and Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Abbott.

Ladies' and gent's clothing cleaned, pressed, dyed and repaired.—R. S. Palmer, The Tailor.

Lively Week in Court.

This has been a lively week in Justice O'Brien's court. Dr. McMahon secured a writ of attachment on some carpets and rugs belonging to Maude Baldwin to collect a dentist's bill of $16.

Steve McAllister sued Herman Kersenbrock for a commission of $75 for selling the Home restaurant, but the defendant had a set off which the court decided was worth $5.90 more than the claim.

Cricket Myer and Mrs. Jorgensen were brought into court on complaint of Mayor Dickinson on a charge of "prostitution". Cricket gave her recognizance to appear for trial Friday and incidentally gave Mayor Dickinson a lecture on his cruelty in persecuting a reformed woman like herself. Mrs. Jorgensen wanted thirty minutes to get bail. She found a man but she rode out of town with him in the direction of Silver Creek and has not yet returned.

The Old Reliable Columbus State Bank

Chancellor Andrews.

The state university being opened for the year, certain of the democratic papers of the state are taking their annual shot at the chancellor thereof.

It will be remembered that Chancellor Andrews was elected to his present place by a populist board of regents, his selection being due to his advocacy of free coinage of silver. Since that time he has become convinced that the free silver idea was wrong and he has publicly said that he was mistaken in his former views on that subject. Likewise, practically all the other former champions of free silver have openly or tacitly acknowledged a change of heart, with the exception of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan's position on the money question is somewhat as follows: "I was right as I always am, and I still believe in it though I do not advocate it any longer, and we will talk about something else."

The latest cause of complaint against the chancellor is his opening address to the students of the university this year. As usual, he has been largely misrepresented. One sentence taken from his address has been played upon most widely by his enemies, namely:

"But I do maintain and declare that after all the main thing is the piling up of wealth."

By picking out isolated sentences and concealing of distorting the context, one could prove Abraham Lincoln a drunkard, Roosevelt a murderer, Bob Ingersoll a christian or Henry Ward Beecher an atheist, and each would stand convicted out of his own mouth. It is an old trick and it is dishonest of course.

What the chancellor said was this: From an economic standpoint, the best thing for all the citizens of a country is that the country should accumulate wealth; that it should be better if the wealth were distributed, but still it is better to have some rich and some poor than to have all poor; that every citizen should labor, not toward the getting of money, but toward the production of wealth. And he summed up in the following paragraph which so far has not been quoted by the estimated democratic knackers:

"I do not speak of the millennium. In a day much nearer than that, it shall be all but the very best, seem better—that a man shall act in all things with scrupulous justice, dealing to each his due, and helping to build high the pile of social and general wealth than that he scheme to best his fellows at any cost, in order to live in a great house, ride in a private car, sail a yacht, and rot, when dead, under an immense pile of marble."

It is a fact of some significance that the students of the university, not only a majority but all of them, are solid in support of the chancellor and have been so through all the years that he has been subjected to partisan attack. Most of the papers that are against him are of the yawp class the kind that take up any cry that is raised by the main yawp and continue it until the leader changes the tune. The leader in this case is of course the Omaha World-Herald. The World-Herald is a great newspaper and has great influence, and it might be in better business than deliberate misrepresentation of a public educator.—The Boone County Advance.
