Many Years Ago.
(From files of Journal June 14, 1871.)
There was a brilliant exhibition of Northern Lights Saturday night.

Will T. Rickly has moved his grocery store to Eleventh street, two doors east of the Journal office.

Joseph Tiffany called at the office Friday, and tells us that the North Settlement on the Loup is in a flourishing condition. Forty-three families are soon to make it their permanent home. The whole valley is destined to a rapid settlement, as has been evidenced by this spring's work.

Major North is erecting a residence two miles west of Columbus on the State road.

J. H. Watts was a Columbus visitor Friday. He says crops on Lost Creek are looking fine notwithstanding the dry weather. Mr. Watts has corn that is from two to three feet high.

Mr. Morgan of Merrick county has just travelled from Omaha to Columbus with team, and informs us that the largest and finest looking field of corn he observed is on the Pennsylvania Farm six miles east of Columbus, owned by David Anderson.

Three Pawnee Indians attempted to steal a team of horses from the farm of William Thomas in Butler county, one day last week, but they were frightened away by the arrival of Mr. Thomas.

Pigs are fed on Bartlett pears in California, and it may be added that freight rates are high.

Rev. J. Elliot has laid before us an ancient newspaper, the New York Morning Post, published every Tuesday and Friday in New York City. The date of this number is November 17, 1783. The paper is about 18 by 20 inches, and contains a great many quaint and queer items. Besides the usual advertisements of houses to rent and for sale, we see the proclamations of British Admirals; and the orders of the commander-in-chief of the American army. "The Tory's Soliloquy" brings to mind the evils of civil war, and "General Washington's Farewell orders to the armies of the United States" gives us an idea of old time spelling, as well as deepen our veneration of the Great Republic's first president.

Last Thursday a terrific hail storm visited the region near Becker's mill on Shell Creek. The hail stones were as large as hen's egg and penetrated the ground to the depth of an inch. A violent wind accompanied the hail. The log house of Mr. Arnat was blown like an ordinary shed in an ordinary wind.

C. A. SPEER.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Bosserman of Lincoln have decided to make Columbus their home. Mr. Bosserman represents the wholesale firm of Granger Brothers, Lincoln in the territory tributary to Columbus and he finds Columbus the most convenient point from which to work. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bosserman, old settlers of Fillmore county are also here for six months and may decide to make Columbus their permanent home. These two families are valuable additions to Columbus social and business circles.

The Journal desires especially to commend the Prince of Pilsen which will be seen at the North Opera house tomorrow night, not only to its city readers but to many readers living along the branches leading to Columbus. The Prince of Pilsen is perhaps the best musical comedy that has ever been written. Lincoln and Omaha are the only other cities in Nebraska that will see it. Manager Saley must have put up a strong talk to secure the attraction for Columbus and the people of this city who have criticized the attractions booked here, in some instances with good cause, should give their most loyal support in making this excellent attraction a marked success. The North Opera house will stage anything that can be staged at the Boyd in Omaha and the good companies would just as soon stop off in Columbus if they can attract the crowds. It is a plain matter of business with them. If the Prince of Pilsen attracts a paying crowd, other things of the same class can be booked easily. If Prince of Pilsen fails to attract a large crowd it will be evidence that our people do not want good things in Columbus. But there will be a packed house. Crowds from Albion, St. Edward, Genoa and other branch towns can come to Columbus on the evening train, returning in the morning and see the same attraction they would pay much more to see in Omaha. If only plays like this are booked, Columbus might enjoy theater crowds from adjoining towns that would be an object of envy to Omaha.

For Sale.

POINTS.

Pocket Joints—Preventing cement from falling out and making an absolutely air-tight joint which will not open.

No Gas—The open top magazine, in combination with a gas flue, not found in any other base burner, prevents all explosion or escape of gas.

Circular Bottom Flue—Carrying the heat around the outside of the bottom thus increasing the radiation.

Large Hot Air Flue—Taking the cold air from the floor, or if preferred from the outside, through the center of the bottom and upward between the draft flues, in this way coming in contact with the hottest part of the stove.
