Birds in Attack.

Birds display great skill and cunning in the chase, the attack and in guarding themselves from injury during the struggle for supremacy. The secretary bird is the inveterate enemy and untiring pursuer of the snake. All sorts, even the most venomous, he hunts with a zest that is at once interesting and amusing.

The snake flees from its foe, who follows, watching every opportunity for a blow. When the reptile turns the bird uses one of his wings as a bureau places the total products of shield and strikes with his foot. The snake buries its fangs in the wing, but leaves the poison in the plumage and the bird escapes unhurt.

Repeated blows from the powerful claw confuse and disable the snake. and at last it falls, to be at once dispatched by thrusts of the sharp beak into its head. The bird then tosses his victim into the air and, catching it as it falls, swallows it.

LIFE INSURANCE AGAIN.

Some of the Bright Spots. (Chicago Tribune.)
There has been much discussion the last few months upon what the press has called scandals in some of the large eastern life insurance companies, and while attention has been riveted upon the difficulties of these institutions the public h almost grown to believe all are alike, and are inclined to censure all for the shortings of the few. In looking over the situation carefully there seems to be some companies located in the west that have neither speculated in Wall street securities nor invested in them. All their assets, including both re-serve and surplus are invested in first mortgages on western improved farms, the best security in the world, and drawing a good rate of interest. One such company that certainly exhibits a clean record, as shown by its reports, has its home office at Lincoln, Neb., and conducts its business under the name of The Old Line Bankers' Life of Nebraska. It is nearly twenty years old, but has never done much talking about itself. It has grown conservatively and quietly and has made progress each year along lines that its policy holders approve. Practically all of its assets of a million and a quarter dollars are invested in first mortgages on the best of farms, and not a dollar of past due interest is shown in its report. Its earnings last year for its policy hold-ers was more than 11 per cent on its mean reserve, the cost for new business written is less than any of the leading life insurance companies in the United States, and its death loss per thousand was less by one-half than any of them. Unlike many companies organized in recent years on the remains of some funct assessment order or company, it started originally as an old line company, and has no assessment business weighing it down. Its surplus already earned for its policy holders is in amount equal to 33 per cent of its entire reserve, its statement of assets does not show a single dollar of the many items like agency balances, bills receivable, premium notes, stocks and bonds, real estate, "other assets." etc., which make up a considerable portion of the assets of many companies, but it consists of money and loans, and nothing else. The public will discriminate more and more in the future between companies, not as to size as in the past, but quality. and the one that can show a clean record, and ability through conservative management to pay good dividends, will receive in the future an increasing patronage from that great conservative portion of the public who are not looking for speculation in a life contract, but for protection and reasonable returns on their inpanies has done nothing more. It will cause the western people to wake up to the fact that, as illustrated above, they have as good companies as any in the world, capable of taking care of all business offered, and when taken managing it as you would manage your own affairs, and showing results that no eastern company has up to date been able to dupli-

SPLENDID WORK OF RAILROAD MEN IN AN EMERGENCY.

Enormous Amount of Traffic Successfully Handled on Single Track in Face of Heavy Handicap-Shows Quality of American Train Crews.

The well-known writer on railroad subjects, Mr. Frank H. Spearman, in his book entitled, "The Strategy of Great Railroads." describes the surprise of the general manager of one of the eastern trunk lines, on a hunting trip in the north woods, who suddenly found himself on the right of way of a splendid, well-built railway line, apparently of a construction and equipment similar to the New York Central or Pennsylvania, along which thundered in quick succession heavy trains of iron ore, splendid passenger equipment and general freight service of surprising proportions. This was the Peninsula division of the Chicago & North-Western Railway, which covers the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, including the hardwood district and Lake Superior iron and copper region, with a surprisingly efficient net work of lines that connect the mines and forests with important lake ports, and with through rail service to and from the outer Along this busy ore-carrying line a splendid exposition of the loyalty, intelligence and general good team work that can be expected of the average railroad man and the efficiency of the rules laid down for his guidance in an emergency, was given a few days ago, which so greatly pleased the superintendent and other officials that the story has finally crept into public print, and it is well worth repetition in these columns.

It was all occasioned by a very heavy sleet storm that fell in the Upper Peninsula a few days ago, which threw down practically every telegraph line in the region in a few hours, and left the 464 miles of the than women manage women. A man division absolutely without telegraphic service for no less than fortyeight hours.

The ore movement has been espethis emergency every mine would have to shut down on account of the shortage of railway cars to move their product unless the road was kept open in spite of the storm. There was nothing that could be done by the chief train dispatcher; both he and the division superintendent were temporarily out of the game. was one of these emergencies where the "man behind the gun" must make good, or the case was a hopeless one. And make good he did, in true blue, loyal style, with that splendid initiative that makes the average train crew typical of the qualities we admire in our American troops.

There was no way in which to get orders for train movements, no means by which division headquarters could be kept advised of where their trains were, and to the onlooker, no means existed by which the train crew could keep track of the whereabouts of trains in the opposite direction. It was an emergency of the gravest character, and was met with a splendid exhibition of good judgment and intelligent grasp of the science of railhis 104th birthday recently. He has road operation that is perhaps without voted the democratic ticket since he an equal. They managed, on a single track line, without telegraph lines, for two whole days and nights, to keep every iron and copper mine in the district supplied with equipment and moved all trains practically on time.

4.971 cars were moved over the division Friday and Saturday, Oct. 20 and 21, and one hundred and twentyfive freight trains and no less than thirty-four passenger trains were taken care of upon the division, all handled on time on a single track, without accident, mishap, or delay and without the help of a train dispatcher. Can anyone beat that record of loyalty to employers, hard work and intelligent grasp of conditions?

Any man who has ever handled the train movement of a busy railway di vision will appreciate how very much is involved in the work these trainmen did, hurrying to and fro over sleet covered cars, keeping cool, and ready to meet every emergency by application of the operating rules pro vided for their guidance.

he search has been going on for years, no city has yet been found preminently suited for the honor. BABY CAME NEAR DYING. From an Awful Skin Humor-

-Scratched Till Blood Ran-

Wasted to a Skeleton-Speedily Cured by Cuticura. "When three months old my boy broke out with an itching, watery rash all over his body, and he would scratch till the blood ran. We tried nearly everything, but he grew worse, wasting to a skeleton, and we feared he would die. He slept only when in our arms. The first application of Cuticura soothed him so that he slept in his cradle for the first time in many weeks. One set of Cuticura made a
