The engine on No. 12, died at Columbus last Friday morning and No. 4's engine which came along an hour later pulled No. 12 to Omaha, the Omaha Columbus freight engine being used to pull No. 4. The dead engine was double headed to Omaha for repair by an extra from the local yards.
The "Chicago Lady Entertainers," the first number on the High School Lecture course and the first entertainment to test the acoustic properties of the new gymnasium building was a marked success, both financially and in quality as an entertainment. Miss Estelle Clark's monologues were as interesting as the excellent musical program and the parts were so harmonized as to round out an evening of delightful entertainment which will create an eagerness on the part of the people of Columbus, to patronize the High School Lecture course this winter.

Nearly forty of the young friends of Otto Stanley surprised him last Wednesday night at the home of his grandfather, W. H. Randall on West Seventeenth street, the occasion being Otto's eighteenth birthday anniversary. They took "taigs to eat" with them and had a rollicking good time.
Uncle Tom's Cabin played to a fair sized audience Wednesday night. It was the same old play and the spectators seemed to enjoy it. Uncle Tom got killed as usual, little Eva died and Topsy stood on her head. Lawyer Marlee got shot in the foot, and Simon Lagree got the worst of it for killing Uncle Tom.
Henry Imig and Charlie Korgi went hunting to the lakes Sunday afternoon. Going shooting is nothing new but the luck of it all was the wasting of much ammunition and the misfortune of Imig falling head-over-heels into a boggy of mud. While Imig was scrambling for dry footing his companion let a half dozen mallards fly to safety from near the end of his gun. Both declare that the other should have shot the birds, but it has leaked out that Korgi was afraid to shoot for fear of straining his new hammocks as the distance to the birds was too great after he got ready to pull the trigger.

District Court.
Judge Reeder has ground out a goodly number of law suits since the last issue of the Journal. In the case of Roberts against Thayer in which the plaintiff won in the county court, the verdict in District court was in favor of the defendant.
In Stanley G. Satterlee against the First National Bank of this city, the finding was for the defendant. The plaintiff, an employee of the Northwestern Railroad was sued in Chicago on a promissory note for $150. He sued to recover damage alleged to be due him for the trouble and inconvenience and loss of time incurred in going to testify in the case.—John C. Rempel secured judgement of $304.15 in a foreclosure proceeding against Fred A. Scofield.
Frank A. Pollard was awarded a verdict against E. F. Townslee for $24.45 the amount of commission alleged to be due the plaintiff for selling a stock of hardware of the defendant at Silver Creek.—In the case of John Foreman against Michael Likely the plaintiff was awarded damages in the sum of $77.50. The damage resulted from an overflow of water over the plaintiff's crops caused by ditches made by the defendant to divert water from his own land.
Expense Statements
The annual batch of numerous expense statements have been filed at the office of the county clerk. Among all the reports filed there is not a single one showing the amount handed to a friend to be placed "where it will count," nor the amount of "tips" to bartenders.
However those candidates whose expenses ran up into the hundreds of dollars, were wise enough to report less than the $100 limit above which the law forbids them to go.
The reports of some of the candidates are doubtless correct, but others were doubtless careless of the law in making their reports as they have been in the administration of the duties of their offices.
J. M. Kelley spent $16.50. He was frank to say that $1.50 of it was for cigars and $4.00 for "help". R. L. Rosetter didn't spend anything. O. H. Smith made a complete itemized statement showing a total of $64.95 most of which was spent for livery and sending out literature. E. B. Webb spent $57.67 and C. J. Carrig $73.30 most of which was charged to livery, hotel and car fare. John Ratterman paid $18.60 to the Platte County Argus and a total of $30.60 for his re-election. It cost John Graf $26 to succeed himself and D. A.

Becher $88.50. L. H. Leavy says his re-election cost him $70.20, and $1.20 of this amount he paid for "horse-feed." William J. Newman paid $16.50 for the pleasure of defeating Julius Ernst, $5 of which went to the County Central committee.
Louis Lightner paid $37.75 for the honor of running for reseat and Dr. P. H. Metz says that his re-election cost him $10.
The other candidates neglected to file their expense statements either because their expenses were too small to mention or because their consciences shrank from the duty after looking over the peculiar statements of some of their fellow candidates.
