

Eminent Doctors Praise Its Ingredients.

We refer to that boon to weak persons, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fife one of the Editorial Staff of THE ELECTRIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"Unicorn root is a valuable article as a tonic, invigorant or  makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "In Helonias we have a medicine which is more effective than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to woman it is seldom that a case occurs which does not present symptoms for this remedial agent." Dr. Fife further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias in female cases: Pain in the womb, uterine hemorrhage, atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability associated with the presence of reproductive organs of women, continuous sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weak condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhea (suppression of absent menstrual periods), arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs (stomach, liver, intestines); hand; diarrhoea; sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If most or less of the above symptoms are present in your case you will do no better than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Fife, of Illinois, M. D., of Bonaventure College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all extrabirth conditions  and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Snedder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal:

"In relation to the question of whether there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic used in all diseases."

Prof. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding and congestive dysmenorrhea) painful menstruation."

The "Favorite Prescription" faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Use the Means at Hand.

It is not money so much as brains that the small merchant wants for advertising—the handicap of deficient capital is as nothing compared with the handicap of defective thinking. Whatever excuse may be given for failing in business, the lamest of all is "lack of means to advertise," because the business does not exist that cannot be exploited profitably with the means at hand.

ULCERS FOR 30 YEARS.

Painful Eruptions From Knees to Feet Seemed Incurable—Cuticura Ends Misery.

Another of those remarkable cures by Cuticura, after doctors and all else had failed, is testified to by Mr. M. C. Moss of Gainesville, Texas, in the following letter: "For over thirty years I suffered from painful ulcers and an eruption from my knees to feet, and could find neither doctors nor medicine to help me, until I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills, which cured me in six months. They helped me the very first time I used them, and I am glad to write this so that others suffering as I did may be saved from misery."

Belgium's Good Work.

Though Belgium has an area of but 11,372 square miles, which is less than one-fourth the size of the state of New York, and a population of only 6,500,000, it has accomplished within twenty years a mighty task, opening up to the world a vast territory covering an area of 800,000 square miles with a native and white population of about 30,000,000.

European Breakfasts.

Mark Twain, in speaking of the typical European breakfasts, said: "Do you know what I'll do? I'll nail a piece of cuttle-fish bone to the chimney, and every morning I'll hop up on the mantel and take a pick at it with a tin bill. It will be just as filling and much cheaper than a European breakfast."

It is evident that Mr. Clemens prefers the typical American breakfast dish of Pillsbury's Vitos with good cream and sugar.

TWICE-TOLD TESTIMONY.

A Woman Who Has Suffered Tells How to Find Relief.

The thousands of women who suffer backache, languor, urinary disorders and other kidney ills, will find comfort in the words of Mrs. Jane Farrell of 606 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., who says: "I reiterate all I have said before in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

I had been having heavy backaches, and my general health was affected when I began using them. My feet were swollen, my eyes puffed, and dizzy spells were frequent. Kidney action was irregular and the secretions highly colored. Today, however, I am a well woman, and I am confident that Doan's Kidney Pills have made me so, and are keeping me well."

Rainfall and Sheep Raising.

In parts of Australia where the average rainfall is not more than ten inches a square mile of land will support only eight or nine sheep. In Buenos Ayres, the same area, with twenty-four inches of rain, supports 2,500 sheep.

(From the Chicago Journal, Nov. 6, 1905.)

When Commissioner Garfield went to the Chicago packers and asked permission to inspect their books, the condition was made that no information he might obtain therefrom would be used in court proceedings against them.

Mr. Garfield gave this pledge, it is stated, and the packers allowed him to study their business in all its details from the inside.

Now, it is announced, the results of his study have been turned over to the government department of justice to be employed in legal prosecution of the packers.

Commissioner Garfield would not have ventured to give the pledge that was demanded by the packers without instructions from Washington. He pledged, not his own word, but the government's. It is not his good faith, but the government's, that is in question now.

The Journal has no concern for the packers, except as they are citizens of Chicago. If it can be proved that they are guilty of engaging in a conspiracy in restraint of trade, they ought to be punished.

But their guilt, if they are guilty, must be fairly proved. They must be given a square deal.

Since the government has elevated its vision to such a height as to overlook the nest of defiant criminal trusts in New Jersey, almost within the shadow of the capitol dome, in order to fasten itself a thousand miles away upon Chicago, the government and the President cannot be too careful to avoid suspicion that they are more anxious to prosecute western offenders than offenders in the east.

Some of the methods already employed in this case have not been particularly distinguished for decency. When the government breaks into a man's house and steals his private papers, when it drags the wives of packing-house employees into court and puts them under heavy bonds, it is hardly dignified, not to say honorable, anything. I was too scared.

"We walked and walked without meeting anybody. After a while we came to a doorway. He said we'd go to the undertaker who buried my mother. He said we must get rid of the body right away—that if I did not do as he said he'd fix me, too.

"I took off her little clothes, and, oh, judge, they were all bloody. I put them in a tub to soak, dressed her in clean clothes, and he took her in his arms and we went out together. I didn't say anything. I was too scared.

"And we went back to the house. I didn't speak, but he threatened to fix me if I said anything. We went to bed, but I didn't sleep. I was awake all night thinking about Gertie. I think she slept a while."

Plan to Hide Body.

"I washed her little face, but she was dead—just as he said. Then he told me we must get rid of the body. I said to wait until morning and then we'd go to the undertaker who buried my mother. He said we must get rid of the body right away—that if I did not do as he said he'd fix me, too.

Woman Falls in Hysteria.

Here the examination ended. Agnes Renaude, mother of little Gertrude Hyland, told in the General Sessions Court at New York the sordid, brutal story of her life with Gustav Dinzer, her common law husband, and how the man, after she had brought the child to live with them, began abusing the helpless infant and finally, in fit of jealousy, beat her to death and compelled the mother to help him to hide the body. At the end of the horrible recital the woman went into violent hysterics.

The story began with the young woman's relations with Hyland, the father of her baby. Then she told of meeting Dinzer and her life with him, until her own child was taken to his home to die.

"Up to that time," she said, "my relations with Dinzer were pleasant. After the baby came Dinzer began to mistreat me. He began to hit me with his shoes. He'd punch Gertie and slap her in the face and call her a 'brat.' She wouldn't call him 'Father' and that made him mad.

"Once he knocked her down so hard that she lost her breath and her eyes rolled up. When I threatened to leave him he told me if I did he belonged to a secret order which would punish me. Then he showed me a knife. He said it was dipped with poison. After a while he began hitting Gertie every time she came near him. He used to say, 'Keep that brat away from my children.' I begged him please not to hit Gertie, but he would not listen.

Horrors of Tragic Night.

"On the night of Sept. 4 we came in about midnight. He'd already hit me on the stoop. He told me to get some beer, and I was afraid because Gertie was there. Then he pulled off a shoe and hit me on the head with the heel."

For the first time the plaintive monotone of the woman was charged with a note of acute bitterness. She took off her hat with its veil, and bent her rather shapely head until the black mourning bao at the back showed and put her hand in the place where the boot heel struck. She paused a moment, swallowing convulsively and moistening her lips. She did not vouchsafe a glance at Dinzer, but the accused murderer never removed his eyes from the woman's face, biting his lip and drumming with his fingers on the table in front of him to conceal his nervousness.

"I cried out with the pain and he went out," the witness continued.

"Then he came back where I was sitting at a table trying to stop the blood from running over my face, and he hit me with an iron bar. Then he grabbed the baby out of the bed, carried her in the parlor and threw her on the floor. He knelt down by her and hit her eight times with his fist as hard as he could.

"Don't hit her any more," I said. "For God's sake, don't. I'll take her away to-morrow. I'll throw her out on the fire escape," he said.

Tries to Save the Baby.

Seattle Celebrates Birthday.

"Yes, sir," said the Georgia hunter. "A drove of wild geese came flying over, and, for a wonder, they were so close together that for a length of a mile and a half they hid the sun, so that the chickens went to roost at midday. I climbed to the woodshed—so as not to strain the gun—and fired both barrels; then, quickly reloading, I gave 'em another broadside and for two days thereafter the farmers were picking up dead wild geese all over the settlement! What'll you fellers take to drink?"—Atlanta Constitution.

Beauty Spots of Paris.

No people are more celebrated for their love of beauty than are the French, and the government keeps pace with their artistic tastes. In Paris each little crook in the street has its tiny park, its trees and flowers, its benches and refreshing shade. Each "three corners"—which are numerous—has its miniature park, its electric light, its fountain and reposeful quiet. The people appreciate these favors, and even the loafers affect an air of eminent propriety.

Size of the Sun.

We sometimes see a huge ring or halo round the moon, occupying a space in the heavens so large that ninety moons' breadths would but just suffice to span it. Yet the body of the sun would fill all that space were we had approached within 2,000,000 miles of him. Once on his apparent surface, were we permitted to travel theron, and with the speed of an express train, it would require five whole years of continuous journeying before we could make the circuit of his orb.

Medicine Men Retain Secrets.

Bishop Hanlon of Uganda, in describing some of his experience in central Africa, said recently that though many of the medicine men had been converted, they could not be induced to carry their confession so far as to divulge their undoubted valuable remedies for native diseases. Some of the converted medicine women were not so reticent, but their revelations were generally worthless.
