At a recent meeting of the Columbus township board, where the annual settlement was made, the treasury was shown to contain one thousand and fifty dollars ($1050). It was also shown that the amount of lumber used for bridges and culverts was a considerable sum, and we would suggest that the taxpayers of the township turn out at the next annual township meeting which is held at the Town hall, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April, and there discuss the question of authorizing the town board to have constructed one concrete culvert at a place where in their judgment a test of its durability and lasting qualities could be made. Situated here, as we are with millions of tons of the best of building sand to be had for the hauling, and cement at a reasonable cost, it does seem that the building of small culverts with concrete would be good economy for the township. Let us all turn out and be heard.

Owing to a mistake in identity, H. Guiles used medicine from the wrong bottle yesterday afternoon, when he applied treatment to his afflicted eye. It seems that he has medicine from some eye specialist, contained in three bottles of similar size and shape. Two of the bottles contain medicine for dropping into the eye, and another holds a preparation for external application. By mistake Mrs. Guiles handed him the medicine for external use and he put several drops into his eye. It can easily be imagined that the mistake was soon discovered and a physician was at once summoned. It is now hoped that the eye may be saved.

Mr. Abbott has lately closed a deal in Columbus where he has secured the subscription list and good will of the Platte County Argus. This will give Mr. Abbott by far the largest circulation ever enjoyed by a Platte county paper. In return for this Mr. Abbott has traded his job department to the former proprietor of the Argus. This change is one which will be very welcome to the business men of Columbus as that thriving city has long been burdened with an over supply of papers.
