State Journal:—Those who are not rethinking on the strength of Dr. Carroll D. Evans in the coming senatorial struggle are making a mistake they may discover when it is eventually too late.

Literary department Woman's club will meet at the home of J. A. Douglas on Friday, Feb. 16 at 3 p. m. Program: Quotations of current events by each member of the club. Book review by Mrs. Ray D. Eaton.

Our own Bixby will lecture at the Congregational church Tuesday night, February 20, on Enoch Arden. A simple announcement of this fact through the columns of the Journal will be sufficient to pack the house.

Otto Roen has been appointed weigher of mails between Omaha and mail between Omaha and Orden. The postoffice department is going to weigh the mails for ninety days and this appointment covers that period.

The County Teachers' association at Platte Center last Saturday was a success. The attendance was large and the program good. Papers were read by A. J. Mason, and Principal Loomis of Creston, and Superintendent Sherman and Miss McClaren from Columbus. The musical program was also good.

Mr. A. L. Bixby, the well known poet, philosopher and humorist of the State State Journal will give a reading of Enoch Arden at the Congregational church Tuesday evening, February 20. An admission of 25 cents will be charged the proceeds going to the Ladies Auxiliary of the church. There will be special music. Come out and hear our old friend "Bix."

Manager Saley announces the engagement of the West and Vokes big musical company in "A Pair of Pinks," at the North Opera house, Tuesday, Feb. 27th. This organization is well and favorably known and embraces, besides the expert fun makers, West and Vokes the quaint comedienne Margaret Daly Vokes in her celebrated "rube" characters and specialties, the funny little Hebrew delineator, Stewart, as Ikey Lock, the acrobatic comedian, Eddie Jude, and a number of other comedians equally as prominent in the fun field. A big snow girl chorus, handsomely gowned and an equipment of attractive scenery and costumes will be specific features of the production which will be given here the same as in the larger cities.

Our fellow citizen, Dan Bray, the veteran sportsman of Nebraska, will have his portrait in the frontpiece of the Nebraska State Sportsman's Association. This honor comes to Mr. Bray as the only surviving charter member of that association who has attended all its meetings. The next meeting of the association will be held in Lincoln from June 5 to 8. The Lincoln Star has the following to say of the program: "The Commercial club will assist the Lincoln Gun in the entertainment of visitors during the state shooting tournament of the Nebraska State Sportsman's association, which is to be held in Lincoln June 5, 6 and 7 and 8. The program of entertainment will include an exhibition of fancy shooting from automobiles at the state fair grounds and a tour of the city by automobile in which sixty machines will participate. The program for the meeting soon will be published in book form. The frontpiece will be a portrait of Dan Bray of Columbus, the only surviving charter member of the association still active in its councils. The meeting will be the thirtieth annual one. Mr. Bray has attended all of them."

Carl Reinke.

Carl Reinke one of the two last survivors of that company of brave pioneers who settled and laid out the city of Columbus, passed to his final rest last Sunday. He was buried this afternoon, Rev. Munro officiating at the funeral.

The death of Reinke remove one of the historical characters of Platte county, and Nebraska.

The early history of the state would be incomplete without the story of his life.

Fortunately, Mr. Reinke during his life, in 1899 gave Miss Martha Turner a brief sketch of his life which appears in the columns of the Journal and which is reproduced here as a permanent contribution to the early history of Platte county.

Jacob Lewis, who has been an invalid for several years is now the only survivor of that early party of pioneers.

Carl Reinke was born in Prussia, in 1828, coming to the United States in 1854, and to Columbus as one of the very first settlers in 1856. Mr. Reinke, helped erect the first building in Columbus which was called the company house, and which now stands just north of Kersensbrook's dwelling. When Mr. Reinke found the Shell Creek valley he thought he never saw an anywhere so grand a country, and he still thinks there is no better anywhere. He bought by hard work, for there was at that time no homestead law yet), a farm of 463 acres about six miles north and four miles east of Columbus, where for many years until he moved his family to Columbus in 1891, he made his home. Henry Rickett bought the old home several years ago. Mr. Reinke tells many interesting stories of pioneer life of the long snow storms lasting several days at a time, when it was dangerous to be out of doors at all. The last week of November, 1866, Mr. Reinke says the snow was four feet on the level; in ravines in which big places the snow was twenty feet deep. The storm had continued so long that everybody thought the world was near the end. In these early storms, wild animals such as elk would often break through the snow, sinking to the body and then perish, unable to help themselves. The only person who perished in these dreadful storms in this neighborhood was John Kumpf, father of Mrs. William Bocher, Mrs. Lesebe and Charles Kumpf. Mr. Kumpf lived near Mr. Reinke. In returning home from Columbus one day he lost his way in the storm and was found first by Mr. Reinke frozen stiff. This was about the 30th of December, 1863. Mr. Reinke is a friend of the Indians, and thinks they have been given a worse name than they deserve. The only trouble he ever had with them was in August, 1857. He and Henry Lesebe were on top of his home abutting the roof, when some Omaha Indians came along and ordered them to give them food. They saved them what they thought sufficient, but they wanted more and finally Mr. Reinke put them out of the house bodily. This enraged one to shooting with his bow several arrows through the windows, but upon aiming a good run at him the Indian with his companions left. Mr. Reinke was married to a most excellent woman, Margaret Pilling, September 20, 1861. They have had six children born to them, four of whom are living. Mrs. W. T. Ernst, Mrs. George Bradshaw, Mrs. Walter Butler and Mrs. Ollie Stevenson, Mr. Metake has a brother, Ferdinand Reinke, living at Ewing, Nebraska, a half sister, Mrs. August Ronge and another sister Mrs. Gabens, living near this city. Mr. Reinke is one of the directors of the Commercial bank.

Dr. Jungbluth Killed.

The Saturday Omaha Bee contained the following account of the death of Dr. Jungbluth of Leigh, whom many Journal readers know:

"Dr. Edward C. Jungbluth was killed here today in a runaway accident while on his way to visit a patient. The accident occurred at the home of Fred Dasebrook, seven miles southwest of town, to whom place the doctor was going to see a little boy. When driving through the field from the main road to the house his team became frightened at a dog and started on a run. They were unmanageable and the doctor reined them toward the side of the barn. When they struck the pole broke and the broken end struck him somewhere on the body. He jumped to the ground, but stood only for a moment. A trained nurse who was riding with him escaped unhurt and went to his assistance. There is no scar on the body and where he was struck is only a supposition. He lived only forty-five minutes after the accident, the doctor and his patient dying almost at the same minute. The deceased was 37 years old and leave a wife."

To this account Dr. W. S. Evans of this city adds some facts. Dr. Jungbluth had called Dr. Evans by phone just before leaving Leigh and asked him to drive to the Dasebrook home to meet him in consultation. Dr. Evans says that the broken tongue struck Jungbluth just below the heart. The instant he was struck he asked the nurse if she were hurt and then said, "I am hurt and I am going to die at once." The sudden death of the young doctor is especially sad from the fact that he leaves a young wife who is in a critical condition.

Thomas Caffry.

Thomas Caffry died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Bernhardt Caffry on west Seventeenth street, Monday, February 13, after three weeks illness.

Thomas Caffry was born in Illinois thirty three years ago and has lived in Columbus from infancy.

He served in the Spanish-American war with Company K and then enlisted in the regular army where he served three years.

Besides his mother, he leaves two sisters, Mrs. M. Ostello of this city and Mrs. J. Kus of Evanston, Wyoming and three brothers, Walter of Denver and John and Patrick of this city.

The funeral will be conducted Thursday forenoon from the Catholic church.

A Decatur Fobes.

E. Decatur Fobes died at St. Mary's hospital last Sunday after a lingering illness with tuberculosis and was buried Tuesday from the Methodist church.

The deceased was born May 17, 1851 at Waukegan, Ill., and has lived many years in Columbus. Two of his daughters have recently died of the same disease. He leaves a wife, two daughters and one son who reside on west eighteenth street.

Great Eastern Canal Sold.

The meeting of the stockholders of the Nebraska Central Irrigation Company last Friday night was the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of the company.

About four years ago the board of directors of this company authorized H. E. Babcock and F. Jaeger to dispose of the Great Eastern canal which takes its water from the Loup river near Genoa. Recently these gentlemen sold this big property to an eastern company known as the Loup River Power and Irrigation Company, and this stockholders' meeting was held for the purpose of confirming their negotiations.

It is gratifying to know that the stockholders of this company, among whom are the most progressive and representative business men of the city, are not alone in their zeal for power development in Nebraska. A few weeks ago the State Board of Irrigation officially approved the water rights of this company, entitling them to the use of 2700 cubic feet per second from the waters of the Loup and in two instances in the last few years our state legislature has enacted measures favorable to the investment of capital in power development as a means to the encouragement of manufacturing in the state.

The final approval of the company's water rights by the state and the recent sale of the property mark perhaps the most important step of the power scheme and the citizens of Platte county would do well in the near future to initiate our state officials in their zeal to do whatever comes to their hands to encourage this great enterprise.

Farmers' Institute.

The Farmers' Institute for the winter will be held at Columbus Monday and Tuesday, February 27, 1906.

It is time that the people began preparation for making the meeting a great success. Interest and attendance will be amply repaid by the value to be gained. The people should make of the Institute a large social gathering of agricultural people for the discussion of subjects that are of value to them, and for the promotion of all their interests. It should become a permanent feature of the educational side of the community.

The value of the meetings will depend on the interest of the people of this community. They can make of it what they will, a success or a failure. The state management may perform its part well, and the speakers may give valuable addresses, but unless the people attend the meetings all the work will have been done in vain. You are paying taxes to support this work. You should come to the meetings and get the value of your money back. The time of such men as come here to address the people is valuable. There must be a full house at every meeting if the community is to receive the value it should from the meetings.

The progressive farmers will attend the Institute. No time need be spent in telling them to come out. But the farmers who do not usually leave the farm should be stirred up. The women and young people should be brought out. Every Institute has something of value for them, as well as for the experienced farmer.

The subjects that will be discussed are of practical interest to every farmer. The men who will speak are practical and successful farmers who are recognized as leaders in their lines of work.

Everybody should make plans for attending every session of the Institute.

THE ORIOLES.

They are all fine. "Miss Bargett, the reader and illustrator, was a prime favorite and is certainly fine. Miss Tinker's "Genovieve" was grand and her other numbers were good and Miss Anderson showed rare skill as a pianist and when it comes to whistling, we must give Miss Sture the floral wreath, as she is the best lady we have heard.

The queen of whistlers, ah and more—A queen's pleasure to adore. The queen whose coronet brightest gleams. The quietest one among the queens. A queen whose grace and beauty meet. And make her charms thus doubly sweet. Fair queens, whose presence gently seems. To enter in among our dreams." The Wyand News Oct. 26, 1905.

A large audience thoroughly enjoyed the entertainment. Each member of the company was excellent in her line and we have nothing but words of commendation to offer. H. L. Hawke, secretary, Hebron, Ohio.

The Orioles will be at the H. S. gymnasium, Wednesday evening at 8 p. m.
