

Allen S. Olmsted Wins in Court—The Foot-Ease Trade-Mark Sustained.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The Supreme Court has granted a permanent injunction with costs against Paul B. Hudson and others of New York City, restraining them from making or selling, or causing to be made or sold, any article of footwear which is identical with the "Foot-Ease" shoe. The owner of the trademark, "Foot-Ease," is Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., and the decision of this suit upholds his trademark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing on the market the spurious and similar appearing preparation involved in the case. This court declares was designed in imitation and infringement of the genuine "Foot-Ease" trademark rights. Each package of the genuine Allen's Foot-Ease has the distinctive signature of Allen S. Olmsted on its yellow label.

Of Marshal Field III, an amusing story was recently told at Lakewood. The boy, according to the story, approached an old lady in a Lakewood hotel and said to her: "Can you crack nuts?" "No, my dear, I can't," the old lady replied. "I lost all my teeth years ago." "Then," said the little boy, extending two hands full of walnuts, "please hold these while I go and get some more."—Denver Times.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Dr. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Dr. F. J. Cheney's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by Druggists and Dealers. The extraordinary popularity of fine white goods this summer makes the choice of Starch a matter of great importance. Defiance Starch, being free from all injurious chemicals, is the only one which is safe to use on fine fabrics. Its great strength as a stiffener makes half the usual quantity of Starch necessary, with the result of perfect finish, equal to that when the goods were new.

Mrs. Willard Tells How She Tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and In Time.

Mrs. T. C. Willard, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham: "I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words."

"Before I wrote to you, telling you how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money on medicines besides, but it all failed to help me. My monthly periods had ceased and I suffered much pain with fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing-down pains, and I was so weak I could hardly keep around. As a last resort I decided to write you and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful that I did, for after following your instructions, which you sent me free of all charge, I became regular and in perfect health. Had it not been for you I would be in my grave to-day."

"I sincerely trust that this letter may lead every suffering woman in the country to write you for help as I did."

When women are troubled with irregular or painful periods, weakness, displacement or enlargement of an organ, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion or nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. Refuse all substitutes. For 25 years Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, has under her direction, and since her decease, been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

LETTER FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

The Presidential Booms Beginning in Good Season—"Peerless Leader"—Possible Presidents—George Cortelyou Considered.

WASHINGTON.—Scarcely in the history of the country have there been more presidential booms two years in advance of the nominating convention than there are at the present time. As one star differs from another star in glory, so one boom outshines another in the preparatory race. For the past two or three weeks the Bryan boom has eclipsed in interest and attention nearly every other one in either party. The suddenness with which it again sprang into bloom and the prominence the cue time "Peerless Leader" of Democracy is achieving in his tour around the world have given the mention of his name unusual interest, but there are more than William J. Bryan in training for the Democratic nomination in 1908.

Congress affords quite a list of the distinguished Democrats who have their lightning rods erected for the electrical disturbance two years hence. There is young Senator Bailey, who is mentioned as the head ideal of young Democracy and as Judge Parker has suggested that the Democrats go south of Mason and Dixon's line for a candidate, Mr. Bailey has been put well to the forefront. There is William R. Hearst of the house who is actively in the field, while Gov. Folk, of Missouri, and Mayor McClellan, of New York city, are having their booms.

On the Republican side there is no dearth of candidates at the present writing. Vice President Fairbanks is in it very strongly and if, for any reason he should drop out, his state of Indiana may push her Loy orator, Senator Albert J. Beveridge. Then there are Secretaries Taft, Root and Shaw in the cabinet and Speaker Cannon up in the house, not to say anything about the persistent La Follette of Wisconsin. Senator Foraker, of Ohio, has his boosters as has also Gov. Cummins, of Iowa.

FROM STENOGRAPHER TO IMPORTANT PORTFOLIO IN CABINET.

The three secretaries in the cabinet are not all the presidential probabilities now in Mr. Roosevelt's official family. There is a quiet, conservative but forceful young man at the head of the great post office department who is making somewhat of a record and attracting no little attention. This is the able and successful chairman of the Republican national committee, Hon. George Bruce Cortelyou whose public record reads like a romance and is an inspiration to every American youth. To rise from the humble position of stenographer to the fourth assistant postmaster general to one of the most important portfolios in the cabinet shows the possibilities of American public life and the ability of an American young man to accomplish that great progression.

Mr. Cortelyou is "attending to his knitting" very industriously and conscientiously. He is striving to make one of the best postmasters general the country has had just as earlier in his career he made one of the best stenographers in the service and later one of the best secretaries to the president that was ever in the White House. The presidential bes is not distracting George Cortelyou's attention from the manifold duties that rest upon his shoulders as a real, actual director of Uncle Sam's stupendous postal system. There are a great many men in the Republican party who believe that the policy two years hence will be to nominate a man of conservatism and ability. They will want a man who is thoroughly acquainted with the machinery of government and who has had experience under administrations of widely differing character. They say they want a man who can perpetuate the best ideas of the Roosevelt administration and carry them out with the savvy and force of William McKinley. They say they want a man not so strenuous as Mr. Roosevelt, but one who will be as determined and they are looking to George Cortelyou as that man.

CONGRESS AND THE REPORT OF THE KEEP COMMISSION.

Congress has not much use for a commission created by itself and has a great deal less for a commission established by some other branch of the government. There has been at work for many months a group of very earnest conscientious young men in the government service known as the "Keep Commission." These young gentlemen have been studying the system of doing business in the various departments and have been formulating new ideas as to the conduct of this business. They have examined into the personnel of the government employees with a view to increasing the efficiency of the latter, they have discussed the hours that government clerks should work and the number of days they should have as annual leave and as sick leave and they have brought their minds to bear upon that much discussed topic of a civic pension list, on the retirement of clerks after their efficiency has been impaired. The findings of this commission are all very interesting and the members of it can prove the great advantage their new systems would be to the government, but unfortunately for them congress has something to say and legislation is needed to reconstruct circumscription offices and to dislocate the Tithe Barnacles of the service.

THE AIRSHIP WAS A NINE-DAYS' WONDER.

Washington had a genuine sensation a few days ago when an airship paid a visit to the city and its operator sailed around the monument, alighted in the backyard of the White House, arose and flew up to the capital where he circled around the great dome and then settled to the earth on the east front as gently and as gracefully as a butterfly on a flower. Other cities have witnessed these exhibitions and are somewhat blasé on the subject of airships, but old, conservative Washington had not before experienced the thrill of this new invention. Washington does not consider it good form, anyway, to take up with new ideas until they have been tried out in other localities. The airship, therefore, was a nine days wonder to the inhabitants to this dignified capital.

It was at the capital that the airship caused the greatest excitement. The grave and reverend senators and members of the house became as curious and excited as schoolboys. They tumbled over each other to get a view of the strange visitor. The fact that the machine was to attempt the flight over the city had been well advertised and keen-eyed page boys had been stationed on the lookout for it. When they caught a glimpse of it circling around the monument they rushed in to the house and senate and the word was passed around in an instant "The airship is coming." Old Senator Culdon and Senator Pettus, of Alabama, fairly ran a foot race to reach the balcony outside the senate chamber and they were joined shortly by all but five of the gray beards and the younger members of the senate. All the senators, but three or four, hastened to watch the maneuvers of this queer "bird." One of those who refused to leave the chamber was Mr. Benson, of Kansas, who had just been sworn in to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Senator Burton of that state. His colleague, Mr. Long, went up to him and said: "Senator Benson don't you want to see the airship?" "Long," replied the new senator, "I know I am just from Kansas, but you can't see any green in my eye. I know enough not to blow out the gas and, by gum, you can't fool me with an airship," and the old man missed the most interesting sight that has occurred in the national capital for years.

NO CONEY ISLAND ATTRACTIONS AT WASHINGTON.

There is probably no other city in the United States of the same population as Washington where popular amusements are less patronized than right here. While roller coasters, shoot-the-chute, side shows and all forms of amusements make their proprietors rich at every popular resort, they are dismal failures when established in the suburbs of Washington. Most of the wage earners of this city are government employees and compared to the workers in other cities, particularly in manufacturing centers, they are mighty poor spenders. Out of curiosity the government clerk may take a trolley ride to the suburb and spend as much as half a dollar in some of these forms of amusement, but he does not go very often.

In manufacturing towns where the skilled workmen and even the laborer have a pocketful of money on Saturday evening they want to spend it on themselves and families and consequently they patronize these merry-go-rounds and tent shows to the limit. In the last half dozen years several popular amusement schemes have come to grief in the suburbs of Washington. This year a courageous syndicate established a "Luna park," but judging from the indifference of the general employer, that enterprise seems likely to follow the wake of its several predecessors.

Kidnaped the Wrong Person

"Well," resumed the man from Missouri, thus encouraged, "according to the way they tell it up at Sitka, there were two Eskimo villages somewhere above the circle, but not very far apart, and for some reason or other that doesn't figure in the tale, these two villages were not on speaking terms with each other. In fact, there was a sort of an east Kentucky feud on between them, and whenever a man from one village met a man from the other there was some kind of trouble between them. I don't know whether it was a battle with snowballs or a blubbering contest, but anyhow it nearly always ended fatally for somebody maybe an innocent bystander. Well, in one of these villages there was a beautiful maiden. Now, gentlemen, you understand I am simply repeating what they told me up there, and they didn't crack a smile when they said it. There was a beautiful maiden in one, and in the other there was a young man who could outrun, outspare or lick any other man in that section of the ice box, according to claims of his fellow-citizens, and, of course, they set great store by him. This here mighty man of valor was scottin' around one day, when he happened to meet the beautiful maiden aforesaid, who had inadvertently strayed from her parents' Christmas castle. The result was the same as usual. The Eskimo man was smitten sore and the Eskimo maid was clean gone on him before the aurora borealis could give warning. Well, the young fellow made all kinds of overtures to the girl's pa; offered him Lord's tusks and husky dogs, and the Lord only knows what else, for the young woman, but the old man laughed him to scorn. Then the youngster played what he thought was a winning card—rolled in a barrel of Standard oil, enough to feed the family all winter, and offered to swap even. This staggered the stern parent and he came pretty near makin' a deal, but the neighbors butted in about that time and the whole party chased the lover out of the city limits. He went back home, swearin', by jiggers, he'd have that maiden if he got his feet wet in the attempt, and that, they say, is a terrible oath for an Eskimo.

"Well, after considerable fidgetin' and nosin' around he decided the only way to get her was to sneak in at night, or when they were all asleep, and carry her off by force. Now, according to what they told me up there, these Eskimos don't sleep in feather beds like civilized people, but they crawl into bags, pull the draw string tight over their heads and snooze until the alarm clock rings. Young Lochnivar he puts out from town along about ten o'clock in the evening, accordin' to our reckoning, and after trampin' miles over the ice, climbin' a mountain, slidin' down a glacier and crossin' a great chasm on a log, he reaches the land of the foe and the home of the girl. He bribes the night watchman with a bottle of hair oil and then slips into the snow palace of the obdurate sire. Of course, the whole family was sleepin' in the reception hall. That's a way the Eskimos have, they told me there. They say it's warmer and more sociable. But when they're all sleepin' in sacks and the lumination is poor this congregatin' together adds to the difficulties of making a selection. But Lochnivar didn't hesitate. Could his heart be mistaken about which sack contained his beloved? Gosh! No. He picked up the likeliest bundle, threw it over his shoulder and hiked for the suburbs. It was a pretty hefty package and there was evidently some objections from the inside of it, but our hero toiled steadily homeward. It was a risky job to skin across that chasm on a slippery log with such a load, but he did it, and he climbed the glacier and he sealed the mountains. "Long about gettin' up time he staggered into his own village and up to his own hut, tired out, but safe and victorious. Now, by jiggers, the beautiful maiden was in his possession. Now he would feast his eyes upon her shining countenance. Now for one long, fond embrace. Trembling with impatience, he tore open the sack.

"Gentlemen," said the Missourian, as he paused to relight his cigar, "if what they told me up there is true, the shock must have been terrible."

"Well, don't keep us in suspense," exclaimed the red-headed man, "what was in the sack?" "The Missourian blew three smoke rings and then calmly replied: "His heart was mistaken. It was the old man he had carried off."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Where the Treasure Is," Etc.

"Harold," said the heiress, "I have been thinking."

"Thinking of me, precious?" asked Harold.

"Indirectly, yes. I have been thinking that, were you to marry me, everybody would say you only did so in order to get my money."

"What care I for the unthinking world?"

"But, oh, Harold! I will marry you."

"My own dear—"

"And I will not have the people say unkind things about you, as I have arranged to give all my fortune to the missionaries. Why, Harold! where are you going?"

Harold paused long enough on his way to the door to look back and mutter: "I'm going to be a missionary!"—Judge.

New One to Mark.

Talking of Americans, I met at dinner the other evening, for the first time in my life, the great Mark Twain. A droll-looking and droll-mannered gentleman, who did not, however, say any very good things on his company. Oddly enough, I told him a very ancient American jest which I remembered from the time I was in jackets. He had never heard it, and laughed so loud that the other end of the dinner-table insisted upon knowing the reason. It was a very fast-trotting mare that an American gentleman drove, with a friend by his side. After awhile the friend inquired what century it was they were passing through—the milestones came so quick that he was misled.—From the Life of Canon Alinger.

Since Using Doan's Kidney Pills, Not a Stone Has Formed.

Capt. S. L. Crute, Adjt. Watts Camp, U. C. V., Roanoke, Va., says: "I suffered a long, long time with my back, and a felt draggy and listless and all the time. I lost fifteen my usual weight, 225, to 170. Urinary passages were too frequent and I had to get up often at night. I had headaches and dizzy spells also, but my worst suffering was from renal colic. After I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I passed a gravel stone as big as a bean. Since then I have never had an attack of gravel, and have picked up to my former health and weight. I am a well man, and give Doan's Kidney Pills credit for it."

TRADE AND TRAFFIC.

The trade of Chili is almost entirely in the hands of Europeans. France imported $300,000 worth of apples from Canada last summer and fall.

In 1904 Denmark sent to England over $5,000,000 worth of butter, valued at $45,000,000.

It is estimated that 1,000,000 tons of steel rails for 1907 delivery are under negotiation, and that fully half that tonnage has already been placed.

It is said that the hides of American live cattle sent to England to be killed and eaten are by prearrangement all sent back across the Atlantic, there to be tanned, and, maybe, reshipped to England as leather or in boots and shoes.

CLEVER DOCTOR.

Cured a 20 Years' Trouble Without Any Medicine.

A wise Indiana physician cured 20 years' stomach disease without any medicine as his patient tells:

"I had stomach trouble for 20 years, tried allopathic medicines, patent medicines and all the simples, remedies suggested by my friends, but grew worse all the time."

"Finally a doctor who is the most prominent physician in this part of the state told me medicine would do me no good, only irritating my stomach and making it worse—that I must look to diet and quit drinking coffee."

"I cried out in alarm, 'Quit drinking coffee!' why, 'What will I drink?'"

"Try Postum," said the doctor, "I drink it and you will like it when it is made according to directions, with cream, for it is delicious and has none of the bad effects coffee has."

"Well, that was two years ago, and I am still drinking Postum. My stomach is right again and I know doctor hit the nail on the head when he decided coffee was the cause of all my trouble. I only wish I had quit it years ago and drank Postum in its place." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Never too late to mend. Ten days trial of Postum in place of coffee works wonders. There's a reason. Look in pkg. for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville."

Neuralgia and Anemia are Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

For nearly a generation the people of this country have known Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, during which time proof of thousands of cures by this remedy has been published and confirmed and not one person has been harmed in the slightest degree by their use. The pills contain no opiate, narcotic or stimulant, nor any drug which could injure the most delicate constitution.

"For over a year," says Miss Charlotte Van Salisbury, of Castleton, N. Y., "I suffered from neuralgia and palpitation of the heart. My skin was pale and all over and I was troubled with dizziness, fainting spells and fits of indignation. I was very nervous and would start at the slightest sound. At times a great weakness would come over me and on one occasion my limbs gave way under me and I fell to the sidewalk."

"Of course I was treated by our local physicians and also consulted a noted doctor at Albany, but nothing they gave me seemed to benefit me. One day I read in a newspaper about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and I immediately gave them a trial. I soon felt much better and my color had begun to return. I continued using the pills and by the time I had taken eight boxes I was entirely cured."

"My sister, Sarah Van Salisbury, suffered terribly from anemia. She was pale and thin and was feared that she would become a victim of consumption. She tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and in a short time she began to gain in strength and weight. She is now strong and well and we both heartily recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are in ill health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box, six boxes for $2.50, by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Descriptive pamphlets free on request.
