WHAT THE ELECTION OF OUR LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES MEAN.

They will vote for Norris Brown for United States senator, who will uphold Roosevelt. This is the most important consideration, as should the democrats succeed in electing a senator he would as a matter of fact be against the administration. They will vote and work for the reform advocated in the republican state platform, such as anti-pass, reduction in freight and passenger rates. These are the major issues before people of Nebraska today and they touch the homes and interest of every business man in Platte county.

Can the democratic candidate for governor be depended on to stand for the reforms advocated by his party? Was he not nominated with the aid of corporate influence over George W. Berg, whom the railroads did everything to defeat? Will Platte county democrats place confidence in the democratic nominee after he was instrumental in turning down the most pronounced anti-railroad man in their party or will they get in line and vote for the ticket for the sake of party. This is not the time to abandon the great reforms now in progress and for which the republican party, mainly through President Roosevelt, is responsible. We know the republican candidate for governor, George L. Sheldon is with the people, and no honest man, no matter what his former political belief has been, can afford to stand still or cast his vote for a candidate or party whose past record has been a blank in the reform now going on.

During his term of supervisor John Swanson has ever been watchful of the interests of the people. That he has the confidence of his constituents is shown by his unanimous renomination by the republicans of district No. 3. John Swanson, more than any other man, was responsible for stopping the custom of supervisors over-drawing the amount of salary allowed by law, and on his showing the people turned down the democratic members of the board and placed the republicans in control. During the last year as chairman of the board he has been conservative and careful of the interests of the county, and that his selection was a wise one is shown by his excellent record. The republicans of district No. 3 will return John Swanson for another term, as he stands squarely on the record he has made during the last two years.

While it is the more important of the two elections of our legislative candidate means more than sending a United States senator to uphold President Roosevelt. There are state issues which the republican party is pledged to carry out, and Messrs. Saunders, Prowett and Leuschen are to be depended on to stand on the last state platform adopted at Lincoln.

The Tribune, the third English paper for Columbus, was issued last week with F. H. Abbott as editor. The new publication is bright and new, and is republican in politics. May the editor have all kinds of success in his new venture.

Bryan and Shallenberger are stamping the state together. The question now arises, which one has modified his views on the government ownership question.

Hon. J. F. BOYD, Republican Candidate for Congress, 3d Congressional District.

A Strong Candidate

The action of the Republican Congressional Convention in the nomination of Hon. J. F. Boyd was one of wisdom, and a just recognition of the rank and file of the party. Judge Boyd is one of the common people; he belongs to them, and they belong to him, and this result will be demonstrated at the November election. He is able, clean, fearless in the advocacy of what he believes right; these and other commendable characteristics have won him friends everywhere. The nomination is one which is acceptable to the people of the whole district, and especially so to the people of the judicial district whom he served so faithfully, and exceedingly grateful to his home county.

J. F. Boyd was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, August 8, 1853, and is 35 years of age, in the prime of life, and with the wisdom and experience that is only gathered by the lapse of time. His parents were of German-Scotch descent, a race that in its rugged integrity and force of character has filled many of the brightest pages of American history. With his parents he removed to the vicinity of Galva, Illinois, in 1857, and remained on the farm, assisting in its operation until 22 years of age. In addition to attending the district school, he had the advantage of two years higher study in Abington college. Commencing the study of law at the age of 23, in the office of T. E. Milchrist, who was afterwards United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois during president Harrison's administration, he was admitted to practice by examination in open court by the supreme court in 1878, and immediately thereafter entering the office of his preceptor as a partner, remaining five years. In 1883 Mr. Boyd removed to Nebraska and located at Oakdale in the practice of the profession for which he had been fitted by well directed study and practice in court. Mr. Boyd has been prominently identified with the growth of Antelope county and has been active in all public enterprises which have come within his sphere of influence. While not an office seeker, and not an office holder in the common acceptance of the term, he has frequently been called upon to fill positions of trust and responsibility. Twice he was elected county attorney of Antelope county. In 1888 he was nominated for this position and elected and was renominated by acclamation in 1890 and ran 600 votes ahead of his ticket. In 1892 he was again nominated, and elected in face of a majority for the populist ticket, that ran into the hundreds. In 1900 he was nominated for judge of the 9th judicial district and was elected by a majority of 291, running 300 ahead of President McKinley in Antelope county, and being the first republican ever elected in the district. He was renominated in 1903 and was elected by a majority of 1700. In all of these terms the affairs of the office were conducted in a manner satisfactory to all law-abiding citizens. While elected upon the republican ticket, on taking charge of the office its affairs were placed on the high plane that raises the interest of the public above and beyond self and party. At the end of the second term as county attorney he was pressed to again become a candidate, but realizing that there were other men in the party worthy of recognition, he graciously declined in their favor. A man's worth and popularity should in a manner be measured by the regard in which he is held by neighbors and associates. Gauged by this standard Mr. Boyd is in every respect a model candidate. In Oakdale and adjacent townships he has always received the endorsement of a handsome majority. Always easily approached by the great body of the so-called common people, this characteristic has been retained on all occasions. Poverty in his eyes is neither a crime nor a bane to friendship, but always rather an added plea for help and assistance when required. No poor man ever appealed to him in vain for legal advice or assistance in a meritorious case. Often he has defrayed the expense of litigation from his own resources. Money nor the lack of it was never allowed to defeat the ends of justice. Starting in life without a dollar, Mr. Boyd has been successful in all his business enterprises and now owns and successfully operates one of the largest stock farms in Antelope county. Not in the least of his business ventures which have proved remunerative, is an experience in the newspaper business. In connection with his brother

Doctors Said He Would Not Live

Peter Fry, Woodruff, Pa., writes: "After doctoring for two years with the best physicians in Waynesburg, and still getting worse, the doctors advised me if I had any business to attend to I had better attend to it at once, as I could not possibly live another month as there was no cure for me. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me by a friend, and I immediately sent my son to the store for it, and after taking three bottles I began to get better and continued to improve until I was entirely well." C. H. Dack.

THE CHILEAN "YAPPA."

It is similar to the "Lagnappe" of New Orleans.

Residents of New Orleans and northern readers of Cable's stories of the city are familiar with the interesting and gracious custom of small tradesmen of giving lagnappe. The word, commonly pronounced "lanyap," refers to the small present which the dealers make to their customers as a sort of inducement to call again. The custom is so firmly established that the people are in the habit of waiting for their little present after they have made their purchases, and children ask for it. Mrs. Hort in her book "The Garden of the Pacific" describes a similar custom in Valparaiso. The Chileans, however, call the gift a "yappa," which one readily sees is kindred to the word used in New Orleans.

"I used to frequent the fruit market, which was well stocked. The fresh figs were the largest and sweetest that I had ever seen or tasted, and I made a point of daily bringing some home for breakfast.

"The first time I selected the number which I wanted the girl placed them between leaves in my basket and then laid another half dozen on the top. I supposed that she wished me to buy an extra quantity and shook my head in the negative. She smilingly explained that it was for a yappa. As I had nothing more to pay, I was agreeably impressed by the custom.

"The Chileans exact the yappa as their due. We were in a confectionery shop one day when a small child came in and held up a centavo (halfpenny) for some sweets. The man handed them to her. She held up her other hand and hissed out, 'Mi yappa,' and got it." —New York Globe.

THE SAIS OF EGYPT.

A warning Ranner Who Bellows Like a Bull as He Goes.

The sais is a runner who keeps in front of a carriage and warns common people out of the way and who beats them with a stick if they do not hurry up about it.

It is obvious that to do this he must run quickly. Most men when they run bend their bodies forward and keep their mouths closed in order to save their wind. The sais runs with his shoulders thrown back and trumpeting like an enraged elephant. He holds his long wand at his side like a musket and not trailing it behind him like a walking stick, and he wears a soft shirt of white stuff and a sleeveless coat buried in gold lace.

He is a perfect ideal of color and movement, and as he runs he bellows like a bull or roars as you have heard a lion roar at feeding times in a menagerie.

There are sometimes two of them running abreast, dressed exactly alike and with the upper part of their bodies as rigid as the wind pressed against their sides and with the ends of their scimitars and the long tassel streaming out behind.

As they yell and bellow donkeys and carriages and people scramble out of their way until the carriages they precede have rolled rapidly by. Only princesses of the royal harem and consuls general and the heads of the army of occupation and the Egyptian army are permitted two sais; other people may have one.

WHEN THACKERAY STRUCK.

A letter written by Thackeray to the proprietor of Fraser's Magazine is quoted under the head of "When Thackeray Went on Strike." As a matter of fact, Thackeray, so far from acting on the principle of unionism, acted on precisely the opposite principle and asserted his right to individual preference. "Well," he says, "I dare say you will be very indignant and swear I am the most mercenary of individuals. Not so. But I am a better workman than most of your crew and desire a better price." He ends amiably. "You must not, I repeat, be angry or, because we differ as tradesmen, break off our connection as friends." —London News.

A BARBAROUS POLICY.

After the Dutch had taken the Moluccas from the Portuguese they introduced the cultivation of the clove tree into their own possessions, cut down all the clove trees of the Moluccas and pronounced death on any one who would plant a single clove bush or gather or sell a pound of the product. Expeditions were sent from their other eastern possessions every year to cut down any bushes that might have accidentally started in the Molucca islands. This barbarous policy made the islands a desert, for, deprived of their forests, the volcanic soil was washed away, and the population starved or was deported.

HIS FAIR SHARE.

The Chinese always have understood the great art of making the punishment fit the crime. Man or joss, if he offend, gets exactly his deserts. Vice-roy Shum, who was anxious to see the end of the heavy rainfall, was very angry with the guardian joss of Canton, who remained deaf to all prayers to bring about a little sunshine. A Wesleyan was dispatched to the temple with orders to uncover the roof over the joss' head and let him have his fair share of the rain.

WOMAN'S LOVE.

"Which of the two do you think you will love the longest, Peter or Paul?" "The one who will forget me the quickest." —Paris Figaro.

EMERSON'S PRAYER.

Whittier and Emerson were taking a drive together when they passed a small, unpainted house by the roadside.

"There," said Emerson, pointing out the house, "lives an old Calvinist, and she prays for me every day. I am glad she does. I pray for her."

"Does she?" said Whittier. "What does she pray for, friend Emerson?"

"Well," replied Emerson, "when I first open my eyes upon the beautiful world I thank God that I am alive and well as near Boston."

PAINT WHICH LASTS.

Painters, and all others who understand paint, know that white lead and linseed oil make the best paint. Good, lasting paint cannot be had if either pigment or oil is adulterated.

Many of the so-called white leads sold now-a-days have barytes, rock-dust, silica, gypsum, etc., in them, and little real white lead.

Linseed oil is also frequently adulterated. Such mixtures are dear at any price.
