REMEMBER THE NEWS

William Week returned Saturday from South Dakota, where he made an investment in land.

J. G. Cochran received a message Sunday that his brother a brakeman on a railroad in Wyoming was seriously, if not fatally, injured. Mr. Cochran left on Monday morning to see him if possible before he died.

Jef Lake who has been doing carpenter work at Columbus for the past couple of months, returned home the latter part of last week.

T. E. Alderson purchased eight cars of cattle for his feed yards while in Omaha the first of the week. The cattle arrived here Wednesday morning.

While trying to break a piece of board over his knee, last Saturday, S. T. Fleming injured his knee so that he was compelled to remain home most of the time until Tuesday.

Mrs. J. Chappel who has been visiting with her sister Mrs. Ed. Hoppen, returned to her home at Columbus the first of the week. Little Miss Margaret Hoppen went to Columbus with her for a couple of weeks visit.

Genoa.

From the Leader.

Report came north of town to the effect that John Jernberg was assaulted by some drunks, who were sent out of town by the marshal Tuesday, and that he was compelled to defend himself with a neck-yoke. One of them went after John with a knife.

The birds brought a rumor to this office this morning to the effect that Arthur Dorr of Woodville township was bound by the so called Holy bonds of matrimony, to one of St. Edwards fair damask, yesterday. If the report is true it's all right and here's best wishes to the Lender. If it isn't true it ought to be, and we hope Arthur won't have any luck until it is true.

One hundred and seventy-five tickets were sold for Albion at this station last Friday, that being the number of Woodmen; candidates and friends who went up to that city to attend the big Woodmen rally. Both the concert band and drum corps accompanied the delegation. The drum corps and their goat attracted much attention. Over three hundred candidates were adopted and nearly a thousand Woodmen were present. Genoa won the prize for the largest claim, having 62, while St. Edward had 61 and Albion 60, the other towns represented having a smaller number. Genoa was also entitled to the prize for the largest delegation, but at this writing no decision has been announced from the fact that while St. Edward admitted that Genoa had the largest delegation, in the parade, they claimed that a large number drove in, and that while more tickets were sold at Genoa than at St. Edward the number who drove in were sufficient to out number this town. The decision is up to Albion as the prize was offered by the commercial club of that city.

HUMPHREY

From the Democrat.

School Dist 42 has closed in order to give the older pupils an opportunity to pick corn. Miss Anna Biedinger, the teacher, is spending her vacation with her parents.

Mrs. Swelbold and sister, Mrs. Moth, only of Oklahoma, returned to Humphrey last Monday after a visit of a few weeks with friends and relatives at Winfield and Wakefield, this state. Will Alderson returned home Wednesday evening from Omaha where he was a few weeks ago to submit to an operation by Dr. A. P. Condon. He has recovered nicely from the effects of the operation and is apparently in his usual good health.

P. E. McKillip has begun the erection of a beautiful residence on his lot northwest of his old residence which he sold to Jon Bender. The new residence will be on the cottage order—one story and will cover considerable ground.

The property belonging to Dr. Neef formerly of Humphrey, but who departed leaving several unpaid bills behind, was sold at constable sale last Saturday afternoon. The piano which was also attached and advertised to be sold was replaced by the Bonnet Co. of Omaha, the company putting up a bond to secure the payment of the claims against it. It appears that the piano did not belong to Dr. Neef as it was sold to him on the installment plan and only $50 had been paid on it, but the company made the mistake of not placing on record the mortgage they held against the piano. We understand the piano company will enjoy the case to the court in an effort to avoid paying out which have acquired and claims which the sale of the doctor's property failed to satisfy. Dr. Neef is now

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

Wonderful Personal Charm of the Old-Time Patriot.

In December, 1893, a few days after Congress had for the first time met in our new metropolis, I was one morning sitting alone in the parlor when the servant opened the door and showed in a gentleman who wished to see my husband. The usual frankness and ease with which I met strangers were somewhat checked by the dignified and reserved air of the present visitor, but the chilled feeling was only momentary, for, after taking the chair I offered him in a free and easy manner and carelessly throwing his arm on the table near which he sat, he turned toward me a countenance beaming with an expression of benevolence and with a manner and voice almost femininely soft and gentle entered into conversation on the commonplace topics of the day, from which, before I was conscious of it, he had drawn me into observations of a more personal and interesting nature. I know not how it was, but there was something in his manner, his countenance and voice that at once unlocked my heart, and in answer to his casual inquiries concerning our situation in our new home, as he called it, I found myself frankly telling him what I liked or disliked in our present circumstances and abode. I knew not who he was, but the interest with which he listened to my artless details induced the idea he was some intimate acquaintance or friend of Mr. Smith's and put me perfectly at my ease—in truth, so kind and conciliating were his looks and manners that I forgot he was not a friend of my own until on the opening of the door Mr. Smith entered and introduced the stranger to me as Mr. Jefferson.

I felt my cheeks burn and my heart throb, and not a word more could I speak while he remained. Nay, such was my embarrassment I could scarcely listen to the conversation carried on between him and my husband. For several years he had been to me an object of peculiar interest—in fact, my destiny—for on his success in the pending presidential election, or rather the success of the Democratic party (their interests were identical), my condition in life, my union with the man I loved, depended.—"Washington in Jefferson's Time," by Margaret Bayard Smith, in Scribner's Magazine.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It's as difficult to find a friend as it is to lose an enemy.

A luxury becomes a necessity after you get used to it.

Unless you have money to burn don't try to keep the pot boiling in a poker game.

It's difficult to convince a man that his money isn't on a sure thing until after the race.

Don't worry over trifles. If you must worry, pick out something worth while, then get busy.

When you have them they are opinions; when other people have them they are delusions.

When a man tells you how you ought to run your business, just take a look at the way he is running his own—Chicago News.

Balzac's Buttons.

Balzac wore a blue dress coat with metal buttons. A play of his, "Les Ressources de Quinola," was in rehearsal at the Odeon theater in Paris, and Balzac, ever hopeful, expected an immense success. In order to appear in gala costume on the opening night he ordered a blue dress coat lined with satin, the buttons of which were of solid eighteen carat gold. "Quinola" was a ghastly failure, and for some time after it left the bill Balzac was exceedingly hard up. Whenever ready money failed him—and ready money failed him often—he used to cut one of his buttons off and sell it to a jeweler, and to the day of his death the coat with the gold buttons and its successors were called by Balzac and his friends "Les Ressources de Quinola."

HOLIDAYS IN MEXICO.

They Are Numerous, but Are Not All Local Celebrations.

The visitor in Mexico is apt to be surprised at the number of holidays celebrated here and made the occasion of rejoicing, with accompanying music and decoration, and is likely to think that the Mexican does nothing but celebrate.

With his religious and national feast days, the Mexican does have many holidays of more or less general importance, and when he is not celebrating these he may be celebrating the day of his patron saint or of that of some member of his family, so that it seems to require little inducement for him to celebrate. If a member of the family goes out of town for a few days or weeks, his return is celebrated in some mild way and his welcome home made pleasant.

But not all of the celebrations which take place in the capital are Mexican, as the foreign colonies contribute their share of feast days. The Americans celebrate their day of independence on the glorious Fourth of July, and ten days later the French celebrate the fall of the Bastille, and so it goes, the British celebrating the birthday of their king, the Italians the entry into Rome of the troops of united Italy, the Germans the birthday of the kaiser, the Swiss the day of the formation of the confederation. The Spanish celebrate the birthday of their king, and in September their feast of Coronados is important enough to last three days. No doubt there are other celebrations not so public or prominent, such as the Chinese New Year and others, but the above goes to show that not all the feasting in the capital is done by natives. An interesting point, however, is that foreigners who come to Mexico are soon the keenest for the coming of the various holidays, and Mexican, religious or their own, are jealously demanded as leisure days from all houses of business, or commerce.—Modern Mexico.
