COLLISION AT SEA

STEAMER COLUMBIA RUN DOWN BY A FREIGHTER.

SEVENTY LIVES LOST

The Vessel Carried 242 Persons, 177 of Whom Are Accounted For Up to the Present Time.

San Francisco, Cal.—in a collision between the passenger steamer Columbia and steam schooner San Pedro, off the Mendicino coast, 150 passengers lost their lives. The Columbia was sunk and lies completely submerged in the deep waters of Shelter Cove. Captain Doren, master of the Columbia, stayed with his vessel and is among those lost.

Later-Hourly the death list of the marine horror off the Mendocino county coast shrinks. The best advices Monday night were that 177 of the 249 souls on board the steamer Columbia escaped death when that vessel went to the bottom near Shelter Cove between midnight and 1 o'clock of Sunday morning. One hundred and seven of the Columbia's passengers and thirty-seven of its crew have been brought to this port by the steamer George W. Elder, which towed the colliding schooner San Pedro from the scene of the disaster to Eureka. A late message from Shelter Cove says that three more life boats have been picked up. one of them containing eighteen persons, another fifteen and the third not reported. The survivors who were brought to this port are being cared for at the hotels and in private houses. The citizens of Eureka, moved to unanimous action by pity and the distress of the victims, have supplied sufficient quantities of clothing and all neces sary medical attention without stint or price. A committee of citizens under the leadership of Mayor Ricks has charged itself with the duties of the hour and is performing them with energy and all possible speed. A segregation of the Columbia's passenger list shows that in its cabin it carried seventy-eight men and ninety women and girls; in its steerage, twenty men and one woman, a total of 189. Discrepancies, however, between the full list furnished the purser on sailing and some of the names given b survivors who have reached here indicate that the total passengers may have been greater in number.

Sixteen of the names given now are not found on the steamship company's list. Adding to the 189 accredited passengers the fifty-nine of the sixty members of the Columbia's crew gives a total of 249 lives jeopardized in the midnight collision.

San Francisco, Cal.—Sixteen names were added Tuesday to the list of sur vivors of the Columbia-San Pedro collision. These sixteen passengers were in a boat which landed at Shelter Cove. The boat also contained two dead bodies, that of Mrs. Lewis of Pasadena, Cal., and an unidentified man, presumably a sailor.

The Pacific Coast company's dock at the foot of Broadway was crowded with people when the high black hull of the Pomona hove in sight around the bend in the water front, The first comment from the watchers was, "She brings no bodies." for the flag at her stern rail was flying at the masthead. The starboard rail of the Pomona was black with passengers and here and there among them as the vessel ran alongside the wharf could be discerned members of the ill-fated Columbia's crew, whom the crowd upon the dock picked out by the nondescript clothing they wore. An erroneous report had been spread that the Pomona brought a number of the Columbia's passengers and this in part accounts for the throng of eager men and women assembled upon the dock. When the gang plank was hoisted to the Pomona's deck officers of the Pacific Coast company had difficulty in restraining people from clambering aboard.

Captain Swanson of the Pomona came down from the bridge to the gang plank head after his passengers and after the Columbia's crew landed. Though sixty hours had elapsed since the midnight horror off the Mendocino coast, and though he had played no part in the scenes following, his emotion was such that tears filled his eyes again and again as he spoke for a brief moment or two with the newspaper men.

"I don't know that I can add anything to the accounts already given," said Captain Swanson. "I asked several officers of the Columbia crew for a statement as to just how the collision occurred and what followed it, but they said they were not at liberty to talk until after they had reported to the company officials here in San Francisco. Of course, I did not want to press them."
