We understand that Mr. J. P. Becke has taken a contract for the construction of a wagon bridge across the Blue river in Polk county. Mr. Becker understands the streams of Nebraska as well as any other man in the state, and will undertake to build our Polk county neighbors a good bridge.

One of our enterprising threshers test ed the powers of his machine the other day in a peculiarly novel manner, and we are gratified to learn that it did its business "like a little man," although in a very remunerative manner. The thresher's pocket book got worked up into the straw on the feed board and puesed through the machine "unbeknown" to the owner until a twenty-five cent piece was found on the straw stack, then a fifty cent piece was found, then the pocket book itself, almost as good as ever, but there was a XX that was non cet, and has not yet made its appearance.

Don't Be a Knocker.

When you see something in the paper that you don't like, you have a perfect right to get just as mad about it as you want, but it won't do you any good. If there wasn't something in the paper every week to make somebody mad it wouldn't be very much of a payer. But after you get over your madness you want to stop and think the paper is not printed for any one person, but for many bundreds of them, and that the article that displeases you is just the one that suits someone else. If you see something in the paper that doesn't please you the best thing to do is to pars it up and see if you can't find some other item that does please you. The editor that can get out a paper that pleases everybody and displeases nobody has not yet been born-when he is born be will have wings long before he gets into the newspaper business.-Shelton Clipper,

There stood on a side track in this city last Friday a string of palace stock cars that contained the largest individual shipment of imported horses ever brought to this country. They were the property of Frank Iams of St. Paul, this state, and consisted of Clyde and Belgian stallions and marcs. They were certainly a high class lot, and represented a large amount of money.
