

Alaska: The Great and Rich. Alaska's extreme breadth from east to west is 2,200 miles in an air line. According to Prof. Guyot, a recognized authority on all geographic matters, the island of Atka, in Alaska, is as far west of San Francisco as the coast of Maine is east of that city; or, in other words, San Francisco is the great middle city between the extreme east and west of the United States, says Jay Moore Latimer in Metropolitan Magazine, a fact which is very difficult for the eastern minds to grasp. The breadth of Alaska from north to south is 1,400 miles. Now about the coast line! According to the United States coast survey the shore line of Alaska, up and down the bays and around the islands, measures 25,000 miles, or two and one-half times that of the Atlantic and Pacific coast line of the remaining portion of the United States. The coast of Alaska, if extended in a straight line, would belt the globe. Nearly 40 years ago, when Secretary of State Seward proposed that the United States should purchase this vast tract of land, the people throughout the length and breadth of the union shouted: "Folly! folly! $7,200,000 for an iceberg!" Nevertheless, Secretary Seward was wiser than his day and generation. He introduced the bill before congress; and there after stormy and lengthy debates he secured its passage, and the United States received from Russia the greatest of all her possessions.

Coal Industry in Montana. The coal mining industry in Montana has, according to the records, just entered the second quarter century of its history. So far as known, the first coal produced in the state, or the territory, as it was then, was mined in 1850, in which year the production amounted to 224 tons. It was not until 1859, however, that the industry assumed any importance, the production increasing nearly 500 per cent. from 141,467 short tons in 1859 to 363,301 short tons the following year. During the next six years development advanced rapidly, until in 1865, it exceeded 1,500,000 tons. Comparatively little fluctuation was shown by statistics of production from 1895 to 1906, but in 1906 considerable improvement was evident, the production having increased from 1,643,832 short tons, valued at $2,823,350, in 1905, to 1,829,921 short tons, valued at $3,240,359, in 1906, a gain of 106,089 tons, or 11.3 per cent. in quantity, and $417,007, or 14.8 per cent. in value. The number of men employed in the coal mines of Montana increased from 2,181, in 1905 to 2,394 in 1906, the average number of working days being the same (243) in both years. The average production per man in 1906 was 764.4 short tons, against 753.7 in 1905, and the average daily production per man was 3.15 tons in 1906, against 2.10 tons in 1905.

Problem of Air Navigation. Apropos of the prevailing acute interest in aeronautics abroad, a foreign critic intimates that the United States is far behind other countries, and speaks rather sturdiingly of our alleged nonprogressiveness. But there is no occasion for getting "hot under the collar" because of the insinuation, soothingly remarks the Troy (N. Y.) Times. That other countries are greatly in the lead of the United States in this matter really remains to be proved. And even if the allegation be true, what assurance does it furnish that this country will long remain in the rear of the procession? Americans have a knack of "catching on" which serves them excellently when necessary. The old world had a big lead on automobiles, for instance. But it has not taken long for the United States to work its way to first place in motor-car production. It would not be at all surprising if, after everybody else has done his best and fallen short of turning out a successful flying machine, some American should come along and perfect an airship which would surpass all others.

People who have been sneering at skimmed milk will be humiliated to learn that a German chemist has discovered a mode of manufacturing from it a substance having the qualities of celluloid and vulcanized rubber, but which is not inflammable. Hereafter skimmed milk will be used for making "galalith," the new material, and cream will be a mere by-product.

They landed 2,000,000 pounds of fish on one wharf in Boston in one day. More than two pounds of brain food for each inhabitant. And they had baked beans for breakfast on the same day. What's the use, remarks the Brooklyn Eagle, of trying to keep up with Boston?

IN THE LIMELIGHT

HAS LANDED THIRD TERM

Curtis Guild, Jr., who has been elected for the third time governor of Massachusetts by the phenomenal majority of 106,000, and that, too, in spite of the spread of free trade ideas in his state, is one of the very few men in public life who seem to yield to public opinion when they think it is misdirected. Guild is a bulldog in some respects. This was shown when he refused to commute the sentence of Charles L. Tucker, who was convicted on circumstantial evidence of murdering Mabel Fayer. Many of the best people in the state petitioned the governor for clemency, but he couldn't be convinced and Tucker, guilty or innocent, was hanged.

In like manner Guild refused to mitigate the punishment of a man who had been in solitary confinement for 34 years, and in that time had educated himself in the languages and sciences. Guild, the man without sentiment, could not see any call for clemency and the man is in solitary imprisonment yet.

AVERTED GREAT STRIKE

David Lloyd-George, M. P., president of the British board of trade, is the hero of the hour in England, having prevented a strike that would have "tied up" all the railroads in Great Britain. Lloyd-George and Richard Bell, also an M. P., head of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, got together and convinced capital and labor that arbitration was better than a fight.

Lloyd-George is 44, the son of a school teacher, educated at a national school in a Welsh town. From the obscurity of a provincial law office Lloyd-George has fought his way, unaided by wealth or social prestige, to the front rank in parliament.

MAY SOON LEAD TAMMANY

Thomas F. Foley, Tammany leader of the second district, who was recently elected sheriff, is a typical specimen of the born and bred New Yorker. He has been a politician ever since he was 13 years old, when he went out to support his widowed mother and two younger children. An unerring memory for faces and names and a sunny smile were his whole stock in trade, but he soon proved himself a man to be reckoned with. He made money in the saloon business. He was never slow about dipping into his roll to help a family in distress, and he would peel off a $50 or a $100 bill with the remark, "Don't hurry about repaying that little loan. It will be when your missus is better and your boy is working."

Once a year he made it a practice to take all the women and children in his district for an outing, and the little ones would talk about it for months. He would address every man he met by his Christian name and ask after his wife. Every woman he would ask about her children. He had no children of his own, so he adopted all the children of his district.

He has all the geniality and all the shrewdness of his Irish forefathers. He had a dispute with Paddy Dwyer, the district leader, over some $30 worth of patronage, and although Paddy was supposed to hold the district in the hollow of his hand, Foley beat him handsomely and has been leader ever since. He has always avoided office-seeking, for he recognized the public prejudice against saloon-keepers in politics, and one term as councillor and one as alderman made up his public career. He was forced by his friends into the fight for sheriff, and with his recent success he is likely to be leader of Tammany before many years.

ENEMY OF THE KAISER

Maximilian Harden, known throughout Germany as "the enemy of the kaiser," is the editor whose sensational charges of immorality against the "Round Table" crowd in Emperor William's court brought public disgrace to Gen. Count von Moltke.

Harden turns from immorality in court to criticism of the monarch without the slightest hesitation. Every week his paper, Die Zukunft, ridicules the emperor. He has done it for years and his attacks have earned him three terms in a prison fortress.

Harden served the sentences cheerfully. From his cell he continued each time to edit his paper and to present without interruption the idiosyncrasies of his majesty in a dashing sarcastic style peculiarly his own.

But from the emperor down to the smallest official clothed with a little brief authority, none are immune from his merciless onslaughts. In 20 years Harden, the firebrand, has become a power for the betterment of political and social conditions in Germany. He began as a casual contributor to the local press. His vitriolic articles were often rejected and he determined to start a paper of his own. Die Zukunft (The Future) was the result.

Harden gained particular prominence in his defense of Prince Bismarck when the young emperor dismissed the iron chancellor in 1890. Later the chancellor became his warm friend. This friendship added to his fame and aided materially in the financing of his newspaper venture later.

Die Zukunft became a weekly review of radical tendencies. It was a success from the start. Harden's frankness in telling the truth about the kaiser regardless of all the public prosecutors in Germany was a revelation. The sarcastic Berliners laughed immediately and subscribed by the thousands.

ON CONCLUSIONS. It doesn't pay to jump at conclusions. Once we had a dog that had a bad habit of jumping at conclusions. When he had no other animal's conclusion to jump at he would go round and round in a circle for half an hour at a time, trying to reach his own conclusion.

That puppy would wait until a cow had gone past and then jump wildly at her conclusion. As is the custom of people similarly afflicted, once he reached a conclusion he hung to it till he was kicked loose. As is usual also with people of similar proclivities, he was a dash-gunned nuisance.

Four Enjoyable and Pretty Entertainments

A request for a Thanksgiving party is answered as follows: For the invitations get cards ornamented with turkeys or pumpkins, or even in the shape of little pies; write the date and hour. Then for decorations use autumn foliage and vines with the fall vegetables.

You have no idea what a pretty center piece a pumpkin makes, hollowed out, a strip left to form a handle, then filled with grapes, bananas and red apples. Serve cold turkey, a vegetable salad, mince pie, cider, doughnuts and coffee. It would be a pretty idea to ask the guests to come in colonial costume.

Such a variety of novelties are displayed for Thanksgiving that it is an easy matter to find suitable place cards and favors. Request each guest to tell in five minutes what he or she considers the most ideal way of spending Thanksgiving, and also an expression from each as to what he is most thankful for. This will prove very amusing if every one enters into it.

A Pumpkin Party. This affair is seasonable right now, and a mother I know is to give one for her 16-year-old daughter. The rooms are to be gorgeous with tissue-paper pumpkins and vines, which will trail from grille, staircase, pictures and mantels. Large pumpkins scattered about the rooms will make admirable seats, while one immense pumpkin will occupy a prominent place bearing the placard, "Guess how many seeds." Later it will be cut, the seeds counted and a prize awarded for the nearest guess and a football box of candy for the guess farthest away from the correct number.

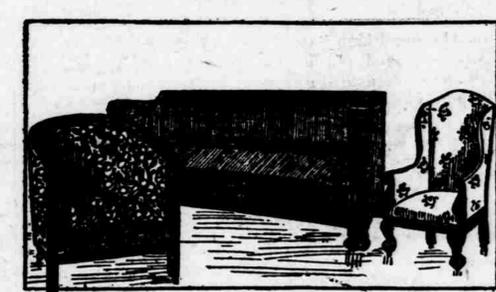

The bonbons are to be a novelty in the way of pumpkin chips, which are made like candied orange peel and very delicious. The table centerpiece will represent a barnyard, with turkeys of all sizes strutting about. These will be given as souvenirs at the close of the party. The candle holders are to be red and white ears of corn.

A Topsy-Turvy Concert. A reader very kindly sends this description of a "topsy-turvy" concert, for which a correspondent asked some weeks ago. This surely must be the most laughable affair and well worth trying.

The singers stand in a row close together behind a curtain with just their heads showing. The curtain is stretched across the stage or in front of wherever the exhibition takes place. After a verse, or better still, right in the middle of a verse or line, the heads all disappear, the song continues and in a moment all the hands are shown where the heads were, dressed in all shapes and sizes of shoes and slippers with gay stockings. After a few bars of music the heads are again shown.

An Autumn Leaf Card Party. An autumn leaf card party is another seasonable and most enjoyable affair. A trip to any of the suburbs will be rewarded by finding the most gorgeous leaves, just the proper things for decorating. Jack Frost has been unusually artistic this year in his touches, and for some reason the leaves are remaining much longer on the trees, so that whole boughs of crimson and yellow foliage may be obtained. With electric lights hidden in the leaves the effect is very beautiful. Issue invitations on golden-brown

Modern Furniture

The public taste has during the past few years become more educated as to house furnishing; still to the uninitiated there are many pitfalls in selecting furniture and furnishings. Never buy any of the cheap machine carved, over decorated and upholstered furniture that is still unfortunately so much seen. The present fashion is to select each article individually, although in harmony of course with the other pieces and furnishings. The three pieces of living-room furniture sketched illustrate this idea—each piece being on the same general design and in the same wood (mahogany), but each being covered with a different material. An excellent effect is insured by following a certain color scheme, planned to suit the walls and woodwork of the room. Shades of green, reds and soft yellows are charming for a living-room, and hangings, all on these tones of color. The larger pieces, such as lounges or divans, are best in plain velour or rep. green being especially recommended. Color can here be introduced by the use of gayly covered pillows. The chairs may be in brocade, plain or figured in flower bouquet or other graceful designs, and the two tone striped velours, upholstery taffetas and brocades are also very decorative.

Exquisite in Texture Are the New Velvets

The new velvets are exquisite in color and texture, so thin and soft they may be handled as are the sheerest materials. Each designer strives to give his own individual touch to all the work of his atelier. For instance, a famous one adapts all modes to his magic. He loves best simple lines, with a plenitude of garniture. He sends out many princess gowns with the fullness of the skirt pushing up onto the bodice into clever drapings. His sleeves are nearly always long, but with the lower part meeting into unlined lace mitten sleeves. Very charming is a dinner toilet of his of white mousseline de soie. The skirt, is made with plaited panels alternating with wide lace entre deux. The bodice is beautifully draped above a wide girde. This is arranged at the natural waist line in front, rising slightly toward the back in the graceful way so much in vogue at present. The trimming on this bodice is quite novel and altogether effective.

Artificial velvet flowers, shading beautifully from light to dark shades of mauve, are laid in cameo fashion on bands of ribbon and follow the lines of the V-shaped décolletage. This pretty fancy is capable of great variety in clever fingers. There is literally no end to the use of braid in every width, from the narrowest soutache braid to that of three or four inches in width, writes a Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune. A woman of fashion who is noted for her exquisite gowns wore a night or two ago a wonderful red-garment of fawn colored flax lace—the coarsest variety—entirely striped with a quarter inch soutache braid. The garment was pointed on each side and bordered with a deep silk fringe. Braid and fringe were of the tone of the flax. It was sleeveless and hung wide open in front. The gown beneath was of a paler tone of mousseline de soie, the thick, soft sort that hangs like cloth. These odd, transparent redingotes are worn alike over skirts of cloth, silk or velvet; often they are enriched by borders of fur.

MAKES A SPECTACULAR SHOWING

Missouri Pacific's Gross Earnings Increase, and Expenses Decrease. The Missouri Pacific system (including the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern and the Central Branch) operated last year for 65.2 per cent. as against a ratio of 67.9 per cent. in the preceding year, which on its face, is a very creditable showing, and which improves upon examination. Gross earnings were $48,703,242, the largest in the history of the company; net earnings were $16,138,572. To net earnings add $3,252,223 other income, and the total available income is $19,471,555, of which taxes, interest on funded debt and equipment trust obligations, and sundry other charges consumed 62.5 per cent., or $11,773,452. The $7,698,103 remainder equaled 3.9 per cent. on the outstanding $77,817,875 capital stock.

This result was not obtained at the expense of the property is shown by the following percentages: Gross earnings increased 9.2 per cent.; expenditures for maintenance of equipment increased 21 per cent.; expenditures for maintenance of way and structures increased 9.3 per cent.; the cost of conducting transportation increased 2.6 per cent.; general expenses increased 1.7 per cent. The secret of the company's showing is in the small increase in the cost of conducting transportation. Expenditures for maintenance increased in greater ratio than gross earnings, but as against an increase of 9.3 per cent. in gross earnings is an increase of but 2.6 per cent. in the cost of conducting transportation.

There is obviously nothing in the showing made by the company for the last fiscal year to account for the fact that the stock is selling at the lowest price since 1900, when it was a non-dividend bearing security. It has earned and paid its 5 per cent. a year since then. The price of the stock must be supposed to be due, partly, to financial conditions affecting all securities, and partly to the fact that in the last two or three years there has been no organized effort to support Gould securities. They have been left to find their level with investors. Since the appearance of the annual report the transfer office of the company has been fairly overwhelmed with the opening of new accounts in odd lots.

It's that much we be alike, that O! think O! think Moike an' Moike be me."
