The Growth of Patriotic Societies

By Mrs. Donald McLean

Order of Confederate Daughters Founded by Mrs. Patrick Jackson

In the year 1863, the last year of the Civil War, Mrs. Patrick Jackson of Washington, D.C., founded the Order of Confederate Daughters of America. This order was composed of the daughters of the Confederate States of America. The purpose of the order was to preserve the memory of the Confederate States and to promote good will between the North and the South.

The order was founded on the principle that the war had been fought to preserve the Union, and that the South had been wronged by the North. The order was composed of women who believed in the principles of the Confederate States.

In 1863, the order was organized in Washington, D.C., and it soon spread throughout the United States. The order held meetings and sponsored events to promote the memory of the Confederate States.

The order was composed of women who believed in the principles of the Confederate States. It was a strong and influential organization, and it played a significant role in the post-war period.

The order was active until the early 1900s, when it began to decline. However, it continues to exist today, and it still has a few active members.

Mrs. Donald McLean

President, Order of Confederate Daughters

The United States, Department of War

P.O. Box 123

Washington, D.C. 20013

The General Demand of the World

The World's general demand for peace has always been for a simple and peaceful world, but it has never been realized. By peaceful world, I mean a world in which there is no war, and in which there is no interference with the rights of individuals.

The World's general demand for peace has always been for a simple and peaceful world, but it has never been realized. By peaceful world, I mean a world in which there is no war, and in which there is no interference with the rights of individuals.

The World's general demand for peace has always been for a simple and peaceful world, but it has never been realized. By peaceful world, I mean a world in which there is no war, and in which there is no interference with the rights of individuals.