Assesors Are Through.

The assesors have gone home, taking away with them a lot of valuable instruction as to methods of valuing property. Just as they dispersed a report came from Wisconsin bearing on one of the most important problems they have to meet, where the state tax commission, after an extensive investigation has reached the conclusion that the most accurate method of assessin real estate is based on the sale value The commission worked on severa theories, assisted by statistical expert from the University of Wisconsin fac ulty. Its conclusion is summed up i this extract from its report:

"Purchasers are presumably actu properly so-called, or by other equivalent advantages in the acquirement of property, and it is difficult to suggest any other element so indicative of feeling for the last step when going value as the consideration actually paid for land where the transactions are as numerous as they are likely to be in an entire county. It is the best measure of value that the commission has discovered."

The commission further says that as of the opinion that with the elimina- valued at $140. tion of abnormal sales an average value fortified by sales spreading over a period of five years is approximately lieved that if all of them could be asthe true value.

Searching Out Foreigners.

S. A. Eppler, representing the De partment of Commerce and Labor of the national government, reached Lincoin on a tour of inspection. Mr. Eppler, on behalf of the department, is looking for foreigners who are eligible to be deported. The laws of immigration provide that a foreigner who becomes a charge of the state inside of three years from the time of landing can be deported; insane foreigners not naturalized can also be deported. The investigation by the department shows that in the entire country there are 835 foreigners confined in prisons for murder, 278 charged with having attempted murder and 44,985 in penal institutions, poor houses and other inbeen convicted of. The department is now taking a census of every state ina view to finding out just how many undesirable foreigners there are here who may be, under the law, deported to the country from whence they came. M. Eppler will investigate every state institution in Nebraska and report the numbers of foreigners who should be deported. The cost of deportation is paid by the steamship company which brings them over.

Cost of Railway Prosecutions.

Chairman Winnett of the State Railway commission and Attorney General mals has been known to swallow six Thompson were in consultation over the expenses incidental to prosecutions under the railway commission law. The attorney general has a special appropriation to pay for prosecutions but he believes some of the cost should come out of the appropriation for the commission. He believes in cases where suit has been brought to compel compliance with the commission's orders expenses should be paid for by the commission. Under this head would come the Manley elevator case and the case brought by the Rock Island to keep from building a depot at University Place. The Manley elevator case was that in which the commission ordered the construction of a sidetrack to an elevator built at Manley, Cass county. The Missouri Pacific Railroad company, against which the order ran, refused to obey and was fined $500 by the district court. That decision has been upheld by the supreme court.

Wants to Levy Assessment. Receiver Randall of the defunct Nebraska Mutual Mercantile Insurance company of Omaha, asked Judge Stewart to levy an assessment against the policy holders. The sum of $14,000 is due from the company. According to Randall's report, the liabilities of the company amount to $11,040.60 and the contingent liabilities a rule five years have been taken as $3,012.23. The cash on hand amounta gaide or basis of value and it is ed to $354 and the unsold furniture is

On account of the large number of stockholders in the company, it is besessed to make good the liabilities, the amount of the assessment on each one would be comparatively small, but the receiver's report states that it has been found upon investigation that a considerable number of stockholders either have removed from the jurisdiction of the court or are insolvent. This will materially increase the assessment levied on the solvent stockholders within the jurisdiction of the court.

He is one of a half dozen "chinks" arrested at Omaha within the last two or three years and ordered to be deported under the exclusion act applying to Mongelian laborers. All of the Chinamen thus commanded to depart appealed from the United States commission's decision to the federal court of Judge W. H. Munger.

Minimum Weight is Raised.

After being prevented by the railroad commission from increasing the minimum freight charge from 25 to 40 cents, the Nebraska railroads have increased the minimum weight of a shipment to 100 pounds. An Oxford man recently made a shipment according to the old rules and paid 50 cents charges only to receive a bill later for an additional 77 cents. The shipment was of an interstate character, hence the Nebraska commission is powerless to give relief. The complainants' only remedy is to buy goods in Nebraska.

DUKE'S BUBBLE.

It Burst But It Led to a Great Dis-

It is a dreadful thing to live in the house with a thief, and worse not to know who the thief is. Dorothy and Mabel had tried over and over to solve the mystery. There seemed to be no solution to it. The mystery was this: One day in the winter a cousin of mamma's, a very beautiful young lady, had come to visit at the house. When she was dressing for dinner, she carelessly left a valuable ruby pin on the dressing table. After dinner the pin was not there! Such a hubbub as Cousin Gladys created. She cried and cried and almost had hysterics, for the pin was her most cherished treasure. It had been given her by her grandmother, whose grandmother had in turn given It to her, so you see it was very, very old and valuable.

It was out of the question to accuse either Maria or John of dishonesty. for they were as honest as the day is long. Duke had been the soul of honor ever since he had been an inmate of the household-and what would a small fox terrier want of a large ruby breastpin, anyway? Topsy had denied any knowledge of the affair; they could not suspect her. She might have been guilty of stealing a piece of fish or a mouse—but what would a cat want to steal rubies for?

The only possible solution was that some one had entered the house while the family was at dinner, stolen the pin and gone off without being seen. If there had only been footsteps in the snow to trace the thief-but there was no sign.

So the matter was dropped entirely, except by the children who had created wonderful tales about the loss of the ruby.

One beautiful June day Mabel and had gone off fishing and refused to take any girls. He declared they were "always in the way." "I'd rather blow bubbles with my new pipe anyway," said Dot airily, as Harold went down the walk. There was a suggestion of a sob in her voice, but she held her head high. Mabel said not a word. One thing she did love-and that was to fish. Duke pushed his cold little nese comfortingly into her hand. He liked to go meeting instant destruction.

Dot blew the best, there was no wax; the other will serve as a support question of that, but Mab's bubbles for a bit of sugar. seemed to last longer. And it was one the queer antics of Duke and his plaything, when the bubble descended and Duke pounced upon his prize. Of course, it burst at once, and the dog jumped back with a sneeze. Then, seizing something with his teeth he sprang back.

"Poor old Dukey!" cried Dot. "Fil bubbles; he had found another plaything.

"Oh, drop that old stick and come along!" cried Mabel. "See, Duke! See the nice big bubbles. Catch it, sir! Catch it!"

But Duke would pay no attention. "I believe he has something alive!" said Dot. "Perhaps it's a poor, dear little toad. Oh, Dukey, aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

Duke wagged his tail, not a bit ashamed, and deposited at Dot's feet queer and dirty object. an old-why, Mabel Eloise Fletcher,

"Ah!" cried Dot softly. "I see the

"My dear little cousins, and Duke, too: I am so happy to hear that my treasure has been found, that I want you to bring it to me and to spend a of you. So ask your mother to pack your trunk, tell your father to not you safely on the cars and I will meet you. We will have a jolly good time, and you will be here just in time to be bridesmaids at my wedding, for which you will each have a pretty new frock presented to you. I won't take 'no' for an answer."

Soon after the receipt of the letter two very important-looking little girls and an equally important-looking little dog, started for the city, leaving Harold on the station platform waving an envious good-bye.

"Isn't it fortunate," sighed Dot as they settled back in the big cashioned seat. "that we didn't go fishing that day?"-Nancy Scott, in Washington Star.

CATCHING THE MICE.

Can You Tell How the Cat Played Fair.

"Play fair!" said the mice. "You know the rules of the game." "Yes, I know the rules," said the cat. "I've got to go round and round

"Hurry up, then!" shouted the mice. "Give a fellow time to think," said he cat. "I don't know which of you to start at. I must figure it out." While the cat was working out the puzzle he fell asleep, and, the spell being thus broken, the mice returned home in safety. At which mouse should the cat have started the count in order that the white mouse should be the last eaten?

When the reader has solved that little puzzle, here is a second one for him. What is the smallest number that the cat can count round and round the circle, if he must start at the white mouse (calling that "one" in the count) and still eat the white mouse last of all?
