ELSE LAND CO.

Doland, and Redfield, South Dakota.

Will sell you improved or unimproved farms in the Famous James River Valley of S. D.

We now have some splendid bargains in single quarters, half sections, and also improved farms. Good soil, plenty of good water, and mostly all well located. All kinds of small grain and good crops of corn are raised here. From present prospects South Dakota will harvest the largest crop ever known this year. Telephones, rural routes, schools and churches are established all over the valley. We also have unimproved land and ranches from one to eight thousand acres further west, which we will quote you prices on if desired. Mr. W. J. Else, ane of our firm, is now in Nebraska selling our lands. If you desire to consult him, notify the Redfield office and he will call on you when possible and give you accurate information about South Dakota land.

Excursions First and Third Tuesdays of each month. Why not make arrangements and go with Mr. Else on one of these excursions. We will gladly show you these lands, if you conclude to make a personal investigation by visiting our towns, and will also convince you that the price is right.

These are trying days on the farm both for the men folks and the women It is early to rise and late to bed, with fourteen to eighteen hours hard work between. The important thing for the sisters to do is to get through this time just as easily as possible and without adding to their heavy burdens by unnecessary worry. One can do an immense amount of physical labor without harm if the mind is free and clear but when mental worry is added to physical labor we have a combination which has proved the death of many a women. Take things easy. Do your work in the very best way possible, but don't fret yourself into nervous prostration if everything does not come out exactly as you would like to have it.

The prohibitionist annousced that they would continue to contest the license granted, and if necessary carry the question to the district court.

ALBION.

A.C. Stowell, who was a resident of Boon County some twenty-five years ago, is here this week looking after the business interests of the late J. D. Brewer. Mr. Stowell was the owner of a large ranch near Cedar Rapide, and was one of the enterprising citizens of the county. He was president of the fair association and did much to promote the interests of that institution.

The oat crop is bound to be a light one owing to the rust which has been especially bad this year. The majority of the farmers have had to harvest their oats before they were ripe. Winter wheat is turning out from 15 to 25 bushels to the acre. Prospects for a bumper corn crop in this county could not be better. With plenty of moisture and warm weather it is making rapid headway and the stand is excellent.

C. M. Cotterman arrived here Monday, coming down from Petersburg. where he went first to see his parents. Taft is fully cognizant of Mr. Cotterman's ability and reliability. In event of Taft's election as president, he will harbly overlook such a valuable man as "Our Charlie,"

HINTS FOR THE HOME COOK.

Beware of Undertaking Menu Beyond the Capacity.

Those who know what tastes good and understand combinations of food that are appetizing often write delightful menus, and close off with the statement that this simple dinner, or luncheon, as it may be, is easily prepared. The experienced will see, however, that the work demanded is far beyond the strength of most mistresses or the skill of the average maid. The impossibility of serving the courses where one person must be both waitress and cook is also evident to the initiated. In fact, the available means of serving a menu must be taken into account, as well as the palate and pocketbook. Othewise things that should be hot will be cold and cold dishes will be unappetizingly lukewarm.

When invited guests are expected it would be better not to serve over three courses and have each as near perfection as skill and care can make them. When a woman must be her own cook and waitress and act as hostess as well, she should avoid fried foods and anything that must not be delayed a moment in serving. The young mistress receiving her guests in a light silk and stepping back into the kitchen to fry croquettes for their dinner is a pleasing fiction in the chapter on dinner giving made easy, but a dinner of roast beef and vegetables or something else that can be kept hot a few minutes without injury is much more practical.

If a kitchen is as neat and clean as a tidy housekeeper is apt to have her own workroom, a pretty white wash waist and skirt are the best to wear when finishing cooking the company dinner. The advice bear reiteration which warns against undertaking anything in the menu for guests that is unfamiliar. Try it on the family at least once and see if it be within your ability as a cook.

NOODLES FOR THE SOUP.

Time Used for Their Preparation Is Spent to Advantage.

The good old-fashioned chicken poodle soup is hard to beat, if the noodles are home-made. The trouble is too many modern cooks will not take the time for the necessary rolling. without which the paste is worthless. To make them, mix two well-beaten eggs, with enough flour to make a stiff dough and knead until smooth. If a very white paste is liked, only the whites of the eggs are used.

Divide the mixture into equal parts and roll each into a round ball, which rolling. A glass roller by its smoothness of surface is excellent for this part of the process, as the noddles must be rolled until the cakes are almost transparent.

The cutting is likewise important, the old-fashioned method of having noodles too long for graceful eating is not to be commended.

Before cutting, dry off each sheet of the maste with a napkin; then divide it into halves and quarters and pile them one on top of the other so the edges are even. Cut into narrow strips with sharp knife. The more threadlike the noodles are the better. Set them away to dry and they are ready for soup.

For fancy shapes the paste may be cut with sharp tin cutters.

The ABC and XYZ of

A SERIES OF TEN TALKS ON ADVERTISING No. 1

A story is told of a prisoner who called the judge a fool. The judge fined him $10. He paid the fine but asked: "Do you fine people for thinking, your Honor?" The judge answered in the negative. "Well," he said, "I think you're a fool still."

If I should print my personal opinion of some big advertisers like as not I'd get fined; but it is perfectly safe to think.

If a traveler came to you and talked of the stuff which his house prints as advertising you would put him down at once as an idiot.

The talk is unnatural; sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal; unreal, insincere, dead. The reader feels that it isn't the advertiser who is talking; that there really isn't anybody talking; that the words are just printing.

Good advertising is good talk; the frank, honest kind that convinces.

An advertisement of one hundred words should make the reader think five thousand words; and herein is the whole secret of good copy. It isn't what you say that counts but the chain of thought which your advertising creates.

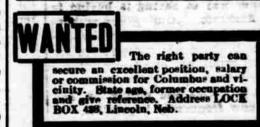

The more you fuss over your advertising copy the poorer the result. It isn't a job to stutter about or to apologize for or to burn midnight oil over. If you want to make an advertising hit all you need to do is to talk to the reader of the newspaper as you talk across the counter to a customer.

Two Irishmen chased a wild-cat up a tree. Pat went up to shake him off while Mike remained below to catch him when he fell. Both were successful, but Mike and the wild-cat were soon in a rough and tumble scrap below. Pat called out "Shall Oi come douwn an' help you howld him, Mike?" "Naw! Begorra, come douwn, Pat, an' help me let him go."

Advertising is a wild-cat up a tree. Once you have shaken him off, the problem of "letting go" is quite as difficult as the problem of "howlding on." But what you need in either case is nerve; and a reasonable assurance regarding the future.

It rarely pays to splurge. Make your appropriation deliberately and carefully. Prepare good copy. Advertise continuously; every day or at least every week. Your store is the seed or the plant. The advertising is the rain and the sunshine. You can't rush the growth. It may take weeks or months to produce flowers or fruit.
