CHOLERA IN RUSSIA

DISEASE HAS FIRM FOOTHOLD IN ST. PETERSBURG.

DRASTIC MEASURES TO FIGHT

Unsanitary Conditions Greatly Assist in Spread of Scourge and It May Be Hard to Suppress.

St. Petersburg.—St. Petersburg is in the grasp of the Asiatic cholera, which already has exceeded in severity and numbers the visitation of 1892. The disease is increasing daily to an alarming rate and unless the authorities show in the future a greater degree of ability to cope with the situation than they have in the past, there is every reason to fear that it will get out of hand.

The government's threat to apply provisions of martial law has driven the municipality officials to bend all their energies to clearing the city of the scourge. The aldermanic council voted $250,000 to enlarge the hospital space, to purchase and distribute disinfectants, the supply of which in St. Petersburg is well exhausted, and to expedite the interment of bodies, which has been notoriously slow. The dead houses are overcrowded and many corpses are unburied.

Under his authority as prefect of St. Petersburg, General Drachevsky prohibited the sale of liquor throughout the city, including the government vodka shops, until September 22, and he has further ordered that after that the sale of liquor shall be suspended at 2 P. M., on Saturday until 10 a. m., on Monday. This action has been taken in order to diminish alcoholic excesses, which very materially increases the liability of cholera infection and the general spread of the disease.

A beginning was made when public schools were transformed into hospital wards. A number of the grammar schools were closed and 4,000 students sent to their homes. The department of war has opened stores to supply immediate needs and army field kitchens have been dispatched to the poorer quarters to dispense free food.

The situation assumes a graver aspect from the appearance of a very virulent type of the disease in two cases in which death followed within fifteen minutes of the first symptoms. As announced by the official bulletin the cases numbered 349 and the deaths 148 during the twenty-four hours between Friday noon and Saturday noon. This was a considerable decrease from the preceding day, but there is doubt of the accuracy of the official statement. The record for the same twenty-four hours, ascertained from unofficial but reliable sources, shows the actual number to have been far in excess of that.

PRESIDENT OUT FOR TAFT.

Points Out Necessity of Electing the Republican Nominee.

Oyster Bay.—President Roosevelt in a letter to William B. McKinley, chairman of the republican congressional committee, appeals to disinterested citizens to join with the national republican committee and the congressional committee, in a movement to elect William H. Taft, as president and a republican congress to support him. After reviewing some of the important legislation of the last seven years, the president declares that Mr. Taft and the republican candidates for congress seek election on a platform which specifically develops the party to continue and develop the policies which have been acted upon for seven years past.

All the aid that can be given to perpetuate the policy of the government as now carried on, the president says, should be given by every good citizen as it is far more than a partisan matter.

Paris Breaks in Ruins.
