A Union Pacific depot in keeping with the size and importance of Columbus is practically assured for 1909. The numerous complaints filed with the state railway commission finally bore fruit, and last Wednesday Railway Commissioners Winnett, Clarke and Williams, accompanied by Dr. Wilson, secretary of the state board of health, were in the city to inspect the present structure. General manager Mohler, General Passenger Agent Lomax and General Solicitor Loomis of the Union Pacific were also in the city, and the commissioners, railway officials and members of the Commercial Club held a conference in the city hall, the result of which was a definite proposition regarding a new depot. President Karr of the Commercial Club presided at the conference. The railway officials presented blue prints of the proposed depot, which contemplates a building to extend from the east end of the present depot to within twelve feet of the lot on Olive street. They also request that the city vacate the east twenty feet of Olive street for the use of teams, so as to facilitate transacting business with the express company and also handling baggage, and in lieu of this the company will vacate a like amount on the west side of the street. After discussing the proposition of the company the meeting passed a resolution requesting the mayor and council to draft an ordinance covering the proposition made by the company, and give all citizens an opportunity to inspect conditions made in it. It is understood that in one or two respects the ordinance will ask more of the company than contained in their proposition, in that the whole of Olive street west of the depot, including the twenty feet, must be paved with asphalt. The railway commission were present at the meeting in an advisory capacity, they being interested in the outcome, as they had no hesitancy in stating that the present depot was inadequate, and in case the citizens and company could not get together, they might take a hand, as not only the city of Columbus, but the traveling public as well, were much interested in seeing this city secure a depot that will be large enough to handle the business. The mayor and council expect to prepare the ordinance in the near future, when it will be published and all given an opportunity to express their views. Columbus should have a new depot and the Journal hopes that the question will be settled satisfactorily to all, and that work on the structure will begin in the spring as soon as the weather permits.

Thursday's dailies contained the following regarding the birth of a baby on the Wednesday morning Burlington passenger for Lincoln out of this city: The new-born baby, dropped from a Burlington train near the station at David City, and found ten minutes later, is dead. Miss Jane White of Columbus, who came to St. Elizabeth's hospital in Lincoln a little before noon, admits that she is the mother of the child. The David City authorities wired those at Lincoln as soon as the baby was found lying near the water tank, its cries attracting the attention of boys on their way to school. The infant was altogether unclothed, and women living nearby took it into one of their homes and lavished the tenderest care upon it. Ten minutes exposure to the cold was more than the frail little being could withstand and it died. When a sick woman got off the Burlington train at Lincoln and went to St. Elizabeth's hospital, the police at once were convinced that she was the mother. At first she refused to give her name or tell anything about herself. Later she admitted that her name was Jane White. She is 20 years old, under medium size, and is compelled to wear thick glasses by being near-sighted. It is learned that when she was a mere baby her parents died and another Columbus family adopted her. Three years ago, while attending business college in Lincoln, Miss White became involved in trouble. She went to the police matron for aid and was sent by her to the Millford home. The child born then, lived, and a home was found for it. Confronted with a similar crisis, Miss White started to Lincoln to again ask the assistance of the police matron. It was while on her way here from Columbus that the birth occurred. Immediately after getting on the train at Columbus Miss White went into the toilet room and remained there until the train reached David City. She then reappeared and told the conductor she had a severe headache.

After the first of the year the customers of the Commercial National bank will miss the familiar face of the present cashier, Daniel Schram, as he has tendered his resignation to the board of directors, to take effect January 1. The Congregational church choir, assisted by several friends gave a musical in the Congregational church Sunday evening. The entertainment was well attended, and persons of the city took an active part. Miss Elsie Pohl favored the audience with a violin solo, which was greatly appreciated by her many listeners. It was announced by Rev. Dibble, pastor of the Congregational church, that a like musical would be given once a month by the choir and their friends and would take the place of one of the Sunday evening sermons, and that the collections taken on these various evenings would go to aid the choir in the purchasing of new music. The team belonging to Henry Gass became frightened Saturday afternoon and ran away, and it was said by several who witnessed the accident that it was a very wicked runaway. The horses were tied at the home of Wm. Davis, where John Stovick, assisted by Joe Ray, were loading some furniture. Only a few pieces of furniture were in the wagon when the horses started to run and these were demolished. Fortunately no one was in the wagon at the time. The horses ran east on Ninth street and when nearing the residence of Henry Lechnit ran very near the house, at this time freeing themselves from the vehicle. They ran a block further, where they were caught and returned to their owner.
