The supreme court has just rendered a lecision that will interest all farmers reeiding along the Platte. William Radford, a farmer living near Gibbon, on the south side of the Platte, constructed a dam across the south channel of the river, thus diverting all the water in the stream to the north channel and giving him easy access to an Island which he owned as well as the use of the land in the bed of the south channel Farmers living along the north channel and farther down the stream objected to the building of the dam, holding that the increased flow of water in the north channel damaged their land and crops. A suit was filed in the district court and Radford won it. It was taken to the supreme court, however, and he was beaten, the court holding that he had no right to construct a dam that would inflict damage on property owners along the river.

It was administered at once, but it is too early yet to tell whether it will be effective or not. although the little patient shows signs of improvement today.

An estate case involving property to the amount of $25,000 or more has engaged the attention of the district court this week. The suit was brought by John M. Higgins, of Clarks, and his sister. Mrs. Mary C. Dick, of Monte Vista, Colo., against Will Higgins and theestate of John. The latter formerly lived at Clarks where for many years he was section boss on the Union Pacific. The plaintiffs in the case were children of Mr. Higgins' second wife, but took their step-father's name after the marriage. A son, Will, who now resides at Clarks. was born to Mr. and Mrs. Higgins, Mr. without leaving a will and his property under the law went to his son Will Mrs. Dick and John M. Higgins, the step-children, set up the claim that for many years their incomes went into the family treasury and that the money was used in the purchase of real estate, which constitutes the principal part of the property. They asked for an equal division of the estate among the three heirs. The litigants and attorneys got together and agreed on a settlement, by which the plaintiffs were to receive $2,500, the defense paying all the costs of the suit,

FIELD OF HONOR COMMISSION Practices Seem Absurd To-Day, But Had Their Place in History.

Perhaps wit is stimulated by a slight derangement of the nerves, and good things said on the field of battle are sometimes recorded. When "Bully Egan" fought Curran with pistols the bulky Egan complained that his opponent was as thin as a blade of grass. "Let my size be chalked out upon your body," said Curran, "and any hits outside of the line shall not count." It was not good form, however, to make a parade of magnanimity, and the coxcombical practice of firing in the air or "dumb shooting" or "chilthe rules, of which 36 were drawn up by representatives of the five most eminent counties-Galway, Tipperary, Mayo, Sligo and Roscommon-in 1777. They met at the summer assizes at Clonmel and seem to have done their work very gravely and honestly, including a special rule for "simple, unpremeditated encounters with the small sword." There is a large element of absurdity about it all, no doubt, but even dueling has had its place as a rough inefficient test of Want Open-Air Schools. The clubwomen of New Jersey are interesting themselves in the open-air school for children that is being advocated by Dr. Alexander McAllister. a physician of Camden, N. J., as a means for curing and preventing tuberculosis. Dr. McAllister declares that it would be entirely feasible to have the studies of children conducted out of doors-in the yards of the schools. for instance, from the latter part of May to the close of the school term, and from the beginning of the school term well into October. The clubwomen have expressed their determination to see that the idea has a fair trial. The first experiment. it is said, will be made in Camden under the direction of Dr. McAllister.

Insults for Lord Milner.

Lord Milner is said to possess such an even temper that it is almost impossible to ruffle it, and thereby hangs a tale. Many years ago he worked under Mr. W. T. Stead on a London newspaper, and one day young Milner addressed a meeting in the East end of London, when an insulting remark made by one of the audience roused him. Urged on by his natural indignation, he made an exceptionally brilliant speech. On hearing of the incident later, Mr. Stead remarked: "Well, Milner, I wish to goodness 1 knew how to insult you every day before you start work."

Telegraphers' Cramp. An interesting feature of telegraph ers' cramp is that certain letters are nearly always the stumbling block.

The most frequent are "C" and "Y"that is, the code signals used for these letters. When a sender begins to be "conscious" about so common a letter as "C." his case soon becomes a hope less one. Another form of cramp at tacks the receiver of the message. It takes the form of inability to write fast enough to take down a message quickly transmitted. This is easily understood when it is remembered that a receiver often has to write continuously to code dictation, so to speak, for hours at a time. The strain is enor ous, and leads fairly commonly to what is practically a form of nervous break-
