Columbus Journal

Columbus, Nebr.

Intered at the Postolice, Columbus, Hebr., sion mail motter.

THE OF SUBSCRIPTION : One year, by mail, postage prepaid ...

WEDNESDAT, APRIL 21, 1999.

STROTHER & STOCKWELL, Proprietors

BENEWALS-The date opposite your n ar paper, or wrapper shows to what time you paid. Thus Jan05 shows that at has been received up to Jan. 1, 1905 Table to Fab. 1. 1965 and so on. When payme is made, the date, which answers as a rec will be changed soon ordingly.

DasCONTINUANCES-Responsible subscrib ers will continue to receive this journal until the s are notified by letter to discont when all arrearages must be paid. If you do no wish the Journal continued for another year at ter the time paid for has expired, you should previously notify as to discontinue it."

CHANGE IN ADDRESS-When ordering nge in the address, subscribers should be to give their old as well as their now address.

What the people demand is a"down ward" revision of the tariff. That what is meant by "tariff reform."

"The stepping stone to prohibition, is what Governor Shallenberger's admirers say in alluding to the "daylight law."

When it comes to the consideration of a tariff bill New England can always be depended upon to act the part of a hog.

declare for tariff reform, but her representatives in congress never vote that way. Louisiana's idea of tariff reform is an increase in the duty on sugar.

The democratic legislature of Flor ida is very ungrateful for the fight Representative Clark has made to secure a tariff tax on pine-apples, about the only industry Florida can boast of. Clark voted with the Fitz long without an irresistible demand for relief. The prices of grain and of bread should be governed by the natural supply and demand, not by the arbitrary limitation of the supply by speculators. It is true that the practice of monopolization and extortion has become so general that the people have become inured to it to some extent; but they should, at least, demand freedom of exchange in all foodstuffs. The grain manipulator brings very little benefit to the farmers. The big profits growing out of his transactions go almost wholly into the pockets of the gamblers. The people are plundered by those who "play the game." There was a time and there was a government once that handled this kind of malefactors with little compunction. Acting on humane impulses, but employing severe measures, the authorities took those who made "corners" on foodstuffs and nailed them by the ears to posts in public places, where physical torture was supplemented by popular derision. Nowadays our punishments are more humane, but our methods of protecting the people against outrages are certainly less effective.-Kansas City Star.

Bread is the staff of life; it is the food of the American people, and no man has a moral right to increase the girl. cost of flour by artificial means. Gambling in futures should be made a crime. The law of supply and demand should govern the price of food

The Louisiana democrats always stuffs and not the gamblers on the Chicago Board of Trade. The wheat deal now being conducted by James A. Patten has increased the price of bread at home and abroad. A few days ago a raid was made in Chicago, and one hundred and forty-seven gamblers were gathered in by detectives, but the big gamblers in the wheat pit were not molested. There is no law to reach them. Twenty-five years ago. Senator Washburn, who at that time represented Minnesota in Washington, introduced a bill in the senate which would have made wheat pit gambling a crime. His bill failed to receive even courteous consideration. Senator Washburn was interested in the milling industry at Minneapolis, and it was to his interest. as well as to the interest of every consumer of wheat, that the law of supply and demand should govern the price of wheat, and not the Chicago gamblers. When the time came to re-elect a successor to Senator Washburn, the wheat pit pirates and other commercial gamblers, assisted by the farmers of Minnesota, defeated Washburn for reelection. That was the last attempt made to put out of business the foodstuff gamblers. If "we, the people," have not sense enough to use the political power granted to us by the forth as the beautiful, fascinating Constitution, then we are getting just what we deserve from "Jim" Patten and his "corner." There is, at least, a prospect that the new tariff will not be made substantially the same as the Dingley law without a vigorous fight on behalf of starred Andre, and this friendship was the consumers. This fight will be led, and may almost wholly made, by revision republicans, not, as might have been expected, by democrats. And it will be made chiefly in the senate, where there is more freedom for the individual member than there is in the house under the restrictive rules to which that body has again subjected itself. The attitude of the democrats in both the senate and the house has been disappointing. They have no definite plan on the tariff; they have no revision organization; they are divided on many schedules; some of them are as extreme protectionists as may be found on the republican side. This attitude is hurtful in two ways. four years. Where eight million acres It withdraws from the consumers a support they have had, to a greater or less extent, in the past and had reason to expect in this emergency, and it encourages the high protectionists in a course they would scarcely dare to command of the city. He was at this follow in the face of a strong opposition, "standing pat" for the consumers. In the meantime let the people take note of their friends in congress. A representative of a sugar district in the which he was still suffering, he was south may be able to say-as one did unable to do active service and was the other day-that he will vote for given this post as a reward of merit. Old associations were too painful to

No woman in American history, or ible with his means. His entertaincertainly none in Philadelphia annals, ments were sumptuous, and nothing has excited so much interest and so was too extravagant for him.

There was little distinction shown often been the subject of controversy by the American officers between the as the beautiful and unfortunate Peggy Shippen, wife of the traitor, Benedict Tory and Whig maidens. The same Arnold. Whether she was guilty of ones who had graced the Meschianza complicity in her husband's crime or with their presence were invited to the balls given by the new masters of the innocent victim of circumstances was for years a favorite theme with Philadelphia, and again pretty Peggy historians. Some, says the Philadelwas the center of attraction. Arnold, although twice her age and a widower phia Press, delighted in picturing her with three sons, was immediately an unscrupulous, artful seducer, whose inordinate vanity caused her husband's smitten by her charms.

downfall. Others wrote page after The piquant young creature was no page refuting these allegations, none of doubt flattered by the attentions of the which could be sustained by any satseasoned soldier, and her girlish imagisfactory proof; indeed, the only valid ination was stirred by the splendor of reason for the accusation was the word Arnold's position and military surof Aaron Burr, who, according to her roundings. When he was not with her to plead his suit in person his imfamily, circulated these reports after his advances had been repulsed by passioned love letters kept her from Margaret Arnold, when he was escortforgetting him.

ing her back to Philadelphia. In the All objections to the match being eyes of the vast majority of her conoverruled, on the 18th of April, 1779, temporaries and of those who have exthe brilliant Peggy became his bride. amined the subject thoroughly she was Part of the marriage settlement he absolutely ignorant of the plans of her made her was the estate now in Fairhusband, for it was not likely that a mount Park, known as Mount Pleasman of his nature would disclose such ant, which was confiscated by the state when his treason was discovered. a perilous secret to a young, volatile

After the marriage there was no diminution in their ostentatious style of As the supposed tory proclivities of her family have so often been advancliving, and she was congratulated on ed as a reason for her influencing all sides for having won a hero.

Arnold to betray his country, it will The first son was born March 19. not be amise to state their exact status. 1780, and on the 3d of August Arnold The Shippen family to which she was given command of West Point. belonged was one of the most aristo-He had been in communication with cratic and distinguished in Philadelthe British commander for a month phia. Edward Shippen, her great past, and had laid all his plans for grandfather, had been the first mayor betraying his country. Mrs. Arnold of this city, a man of means, of posidid not join him at West Point until tion, and her father, Edward Shippen the 12th of September. She was over-III, was one of the leading officials in joyed at being once more with the man Pennsylvania. Like many others at she loved, and little dreamed that in a the outbreak of the revolution, he few short days she would be traveling disapproved of taking up arms against home again a disgraced and saddened the mother country, though he was in woman.

EASILY SET MATTER STRAIGHT. of "Cub" Reporter Something of a Masterpiece.

"Whenever I see the name of Senator Tillman in print," said an old newspaper man. "I am reminded of a little incident that occurred several years ago when I was city editor of a little paper in a southern city.

"Late one night a South Carolina correspondent wired that he had failed to get a desired interview because the senator had taken a train for Wash ington, but that we might catch him ourselves when the train passed through our city. Hastily searching a time table. I found that the train mentioned was due in a few minutes. There being no other reporter at hand. seized 'Bud' Lunkly, a raw reporter fresh from the country, told him to meet this train at the station and get some sort of expression from the senator on a subject then of much importance.

"Some time later Bud strolled calmly in and informed me that after a personal search of every car on the train he had failed to find Senator Tillman.

"'Do you mean that you looked into all the sleeping car berths, Bud?' said I.

"'Yep, that's what I done,' said Bud. "'But, Bud,' I exclaimed, in consternation, 'weren't a good many of these berths occupied by ladies?'

"'Sure,' said Bud. "'But what did you do when found a lady who had retired?" "'When I busted the curtain open and looked in and a woman jumped up and screamed, I took off my hat and says: "That's all right, lady, you ain't the man I'm looking fer!'

GOT MANTELS AT A BARGAIN

Society Woman Probably Would Well in Business.

A well-known woman of society has recently finished her country house and, to the envy of her neighbors, has beautiful colonial mantels of white marble in all her bedrooms, and equally beautiful old timers, more elaborate in Italian marble on her lower floor savs the New York Journal. Each allows for a huge open fire. These she got by spying from her automobile a sign of "Second-hand lumber for sale," on the grounds where an old hotel was being razed. She recalled that in her the appointment and had gone to the childhood she had once visited some children who were staying at the then

Prices 25c, 35c and 50c.

GLANCING OVER THE LIST.

of people who have had satisfactory photographs taken here is like looking over a ociety directory. If any better photographs were to be bad anywhere these peo-

Would Go There For Their Photographs.

The fact that they come here themselves, and send their friends, indicates that our claim that we make the best photographs to be had is justified. Come and DeHART STUDIO. judge for yourself.

WHEN PROFANITY WAS COMMON Two Good Stories Concerning Weak Do ness of a Past Generation. Dean Ramsay could not countenanc rofanity, but he managed to tell some good stories of a weakness which afflicted many in his time: "A late duke of Athol had invited well-known character, a writer of Perth, to come up and meet him at Dunkeld for the transaction of some business. The duke mentioned the day and hour when he should receive the man of law, who accordingly came ounctually at the appointed time and place. But the duke had forgotten

The shapely coats lent to their waists an added suppleness and to their chests a greater girth. The knickers cut like riding breeches, gave their owners prosaic of legs, bank clerks and stenographers, the dashing elegance of the legs of the cavalrymen. But the women!

"We women," said a young lady journalist, "look like the deuce be side you men! You men have a regu lation golf suit, just as you have a regulation evening dress. But we women disfigure the links in an old skirt and a sweater. Where is the future Worth or Paquin who will invent for women a golf dress at once neat and elegant?"

Earthquake on Schedule

gerald crowd of democratic insurgents to uphold Speaker Cannon, in exchange for a duty on pine-apples; yet he is condemned by his own state for attempting the very thing his constituents demanded and expected him to accomplish. Ungrateful democracy!

In an interview at Little Rock. Arkansas, Mr. Bryan stated that he was not a candidate to succeed Senator Burkett, but qualified the statement by saying he did not mean that he would not become a candidate. After the jolts he received from his party during the session of the legislature. the former leader of the democratic party doubtless realizes that to make an open fight for the senatorial plum would widen the gap in his party in Nebraska and prove what is already apparent that the Shallenberger faction has the larger following. Mr. Bryan is no longer boss of his party in this state.

Representative Tawney, of Minnesota, although not numbered among the insurgent republicans, has declared himself as the champion of free lumber and free coal. Tawney has been in congress for twenty-four years and it has taken him a long time to shift to the right side on the lumber question. When he entered congress there were millions of acres of live pine timber in Minnesota, and the Mississippi river was covered with logs from Minneapolis to St. Cloud, a distance of 120 miles by water; twenty thousand axes were swinging in the pine forests and a thousand mills were sawing the huge logs into lumber. Tawney was an ardent and outspoken advocate of "our lumber industry" then. But a change has taken place in Minnesota within the past twentyof growing pine stood in 1885, eight million acres of rotting stumps stand today. The government once owned all this land, but it passed into the possession of a few men, and it is not recorded that Tawney ever raised his voice against the steal. Now, when Jim Hill's railway wants the job of hauling Canadian lumber across the border into the United States, and bituminous coal from the "Crow Nest" coal mines of Manitoba, Tawney finds it very convenient to change his old any old bill that will put sufficient He established his headquarters in the renew, and the rest of her life was high protective tariff coat for the free protection on sugar, for he may be re- house on Market street later occupied passed in England, where she died in entire sympathy with the causes that led to it. Many of his near relatives were actively engaged in the contest on the side of liberty. He preserved an attitude of strict neutrality, was required to give his parole and throughout was never so much as suspected of any disloyalty to his country. The respect in which he was held is proven by his being appointed, after the war, to special posts of trust and confidence, finally becoming chief justice of Pennsylvania.

Margaret, or Peggy, as she is usually called, the youngest of the three daughters, was the darling of the family. Beyond the fact that she was well educated and fond of remaining at home in her father's company, little is known of her until she blossomed belle, captivating the hearts of the English officers. When the British held Philadelphia during the winter of 1777-78, she, though not yet 18, was the toast of the town, and the homage paid her was endless. One of her most devoted admirers was the illafterward looked upon as a most damaging piece of evidence against her. Although many accounts say that Peggy and her two sisters took part in the celebrated Meschianza, the statement has always been contradicted by the Shippen family. According to them, the young ladies were invited and had arranged to go, their names were on the programme and their dresses prepared, but at the last instant some prominent Quakers visited their father and persuaded him that it would be unseemly for his daughters to appear in public in Turkish costumes. In consequence, though they are said to have been in a "dancing fury," they were obliged to stay at home. Exactly one month after this farewell fete to General Howe, the British were obliged to evacuate Philadelphia, the Americans marched in and General Benedict Arnold was placed in period very popular, having rendered conspicuous services in the campaign which resulted in the surrender of Burgoyne. Owing to a wound from

was surprised by the arrival of Hamilton with word that Washington would visit him in a few hours. Most unwelcome news, for this was the day set upon for his delivering the fort into the hands of the enemy. In the midst of his quandry a letter was brought to him, telling of the capture of Andre marbles. with his treasonable papers. Excusing himself, he went to his wife's room.

briefly informed her of what he had done and fled to the English forces in

New York. This was the first intelligence she had of the plot, and the news so overwhelmed her that she fell in a swoon. All day she remained in a frantic condition, "all the sweetness of beauty, all the loveliness of innocence, all the tenderness of a wife and all the fondness of a mother showed themselves in her appearance and conduct."

Washington was deeply touched, and at the same time convinced that she had no share in her husband's guilt. She was given the choice of either returning to her father or going to her husband, and she preferred the former.

> When the news of Arnold's treason reached Philadelphia his papers were seized. Among them was found one Andre to Margaret, offering to purchase "cape wire, needles, gauge, etc.," for her in New York. This obviously innocent note was thought to cover deeper designs, and on October 27 she was requested by the executive authities to leave Philadelphia.

On the way to New York to join her husband she was treated with every mark of respect, all exhibition of popular indignation being omitted out of pity for her humiliation. When they first went to England she attracted much attention. The king and queen were attentive, and she was spoken of as the "handsomest woman in England," but she does not seem to have cared to live her old life of fashion. her time being devoted to the care of her five children and her husband, who lived to loathe and repent his deed.

In 1790 Peggy paid a visit to her father, and was lovingly welcomed by her family and friends, though there were some who treated her coldly. This was her last and only visit home.

fashionable though old-fashioned hotel The memory also came of a high carved mantel in the so-called nursery. from which goodies were reached for the impromptu juvenile tea party, and turning back, she discreetly alighted from her automobile some distance away and proceeded to find the contractor. As a result of her interview she proudly says $1.50 or $2.25, as she waves her hand toward these perfect Stupid Remark Made Trouble.

A Paris police station was invaded the other day by a young lady, an old gentleman, a small dog and the con ductor and 24 passengers of an omni bus. The old man had been sitting next to the young lady, who had the small dog in her muff. "I would give half my fortune." he said. "to be in your little dog's place." "It would be the right place for you," said the lady "for I am taking him to have his ears cropped." Her reply led to high words, and the passengers joined in, a free fight ensued, and the entire party went to the police station, where all the names, including that of the dog, were duly noted. The omnibus had to wait for its conductor, and arrived at its destination two hours late.

Finds a Friend In Court.

Justice Harlan of the supreme court was on circuit in West Virginia some years ago when there was tried be fore him a case in which principa. counsel was a lawyer whose head was quite devoid of hair.

The day was cold and damp and the room in which the sitting was had was badly heated. It was not long before counsel had begun his argument that he said:

"Your honor, I must pause long enough to request that the window opposite be closed more tightly. I feel the draft on my head."

"The court sympathizes with you solemnly assented Mr. Harlan. "The court has the same kind of a head."

The Walls of Jericho.

Some remarkable discoveries have been made on the supposed site of ancient Jericho, near the Dead sea, by a German expedition, headed by Prof. Selin. The ancient walls were found at a depth of eight feet, and many interesting features of their con struction revealed. The wall consisted of three parts, a rock foundation, a sloping rubble wall 20 feet high and from six and a half to eight feet broad, and a top wall of clay bricks. In one place the latter part of the wall reaches a height of eight feet. The walls are estimated to have extended 900 yards; 450 yards have already been laid bare with the aid of 206 workmen employed by the expedition

A Traveling Clock.

The new traveling clocks are in every sense what their name implies Instead of the square ones that took hill, from which he could not return e hours A Highl ent described the Perth writer's indignation and his mode of showing it by a most elaborate course of swearing. 'But whom did he swear at? was the inquiry made of the narrator, who replied: 'Oh, he didna sweer at ony thing particular, but juist stude in ta middle of ta road and swoor at lairge.' I have from a friend also an anecdote which shows how entirely at ears when mixed up with the intercourse of social life. A sister had been speaking of her brother as much addicted to this habit-'Oor John sweers awfu', and we try to correct him; but,' she added in a candid great set aff to conversation.""

SUBSTITUTE FOR THE TOWEL. Heat and a Whisk Broom Recomme

ded to Philadelphian.

"I remember," said Mayor Reyburn of Philadelphia, "we all remember, the time when the mildest storm would make our water unfit to bathe in, let alone to drink." The mayor smiled.

"The only man in those days who could ever find a good word to say for our water." he resumed, "was Peter Burness, the optimist of the court of quarter sessions. "'Actually,' I said to Peter one morn ing after a storm, 'I couldn't take a bath to-day on account of the muddy water. It was like brown paste.'

"'Oh, I took a good long bath.' said Peter. 'When the Schuylkill water is like that it is the best fluid in the world to bathe in. So medicinal, you know. Better than Homburg, or Marienbad, or any of those places." "'But it is so muddy,' I said.

"'That's just the point,' said Peter. It's medicinal mud, full of all sorts of phosphates and things. To-night when you get home fill your bath jump in and splash about; but afterward don't use any towels.' "'No towels?' I objected. "There's a much better way than towels,' said Peter, 'Stand before the radiator and let the water dry on your body. Then brush it off with a whiskbroom."

The Ungainly Woman Golfer.

The men, seated before the fire in "To save time," answered the fearless public character. "It's the surest hall of the country club, looked very smart in the soft greens and way of being immediately and volumgrays and browns of their golf suits. inously enlightened." Binding Magazine

Speaking of the recent duke of Connaught to Italy specially to convey condolences to the government on account of the disaster at Messina. a correspondent in Black and White writes: "When, with the duchess, the duke was visiting Japan some years ago he remarked to his host at table when the program for his visit was put before him: 'Well, I think you have planned everything connected one period the practice of swearing with this country there is to see, but, had become familiar even to female | he added, laughing, 'there is one thing you cannot put on your program, and that is an earthquake.' Hardly had he spoken, however, when the house be gan to tremble violently, and the serv ants standing at the door bowed to gether as the host said: 'Your high and apologetic tone, 'na doubt it is a ness, the honorable earthquake!""

Hugo's Too Sanguine Vision.

Revival of the guillotine in France after these years of disuse would have grieved Victor Hugo's sanguine spirit terribly. Writing in 1867 his glowing sketch of Paris as the capital of the world he noted with joy that no place for the guillotine could then be found within the city. Executions had to take place outside the fortifications and he saw in this a promise that they would soon cease to be altogeth er. It is strange now to read Hugo's sure and certain hope that war and armaments were about to disappear laughed away by the good humor of Paris, and that the twentieth century would almost have forgotten them

This was just three years before 1870

Where the Bard Falls Short, "Aren't there some rather indelicate things in Shakespeare's plays?" sug gested the punctilious citizen. "Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes, "but they don't go quite far enough to constitute a New York sue cess."

The Sincerest Respect.

"You people in the east don't appreclate the importance of the great middle west," said the visitor.

"We don't, eh! On the contrary, we sit up nights thinking about the great middle west. That's where most of our weather comes from."

Floodgates of Wisdom.

"Why do you sometimes discuss topics on which you are scantily formed?"

him by Jim Hill. The extension of But senators and most representative the Hill system of railways into Can-			the traveling bag, these new ones are a thin model watch, encased in leather about four inches broad and long.	Old Books Rebound
ada has been the means of changing Tawney's tariff ideas on the coal and lumber schedule in the Payne tariff bill. A protest has been filed in Wash- ington against the "wheat corner" and the advance in the cost of flour and bread resulting from this artificial control of the grain market. It is amaxing, when you come to think of it, that a people blessed with a much larger measure of freedom than they exercise in fighting the wrongs to	The Truly Good Life. The good life is the one that is great with goodness, enriched with every re- source, daily growing, becoming more, enjoying more, and finding such com- pletion in the attempt to awaken dor- mant lives, to lift lagging lives, and to lead its fellows into the life that is life indeed. The Best Remedy. If sanitation, dietetics and proper nourishment were thoroughly taught in our public schools and the children were impressed with danger of dirt and impure air I am sure this would so far toward stamping out the curse	m likewise convinced that no man do me a real injury, because no can force me to misbehave my-	They are made to fold flat, just as the leather picture frames do, and can be tucked in the pocket of one's bag without encroaching on space. Alas, Peer Pittsburg! It does seem as if everything but good luck has struck Pittsburg these last few years—and jealous outsiders say that if good luck should appear in their midst Pittsburgers couldn't recognise it.—Harper's Weekly. Do You Recognize it? "What, Heinrich! drinking again? I thought you intended to quit." "Ach! dot is so, yes. But in der vords of der saying, "Der ghost vas villing, but der meat vas feeble."—Boston Tran- acrigt.	In fact, for anything in the book binding line bring your work to Ghe Journal Office Phone 160