MANY YEARS AGO

Files of The Journal April 21, 1878.
The last few days have brought the green leaves out on the cottonwoods and the increasing number of trees and groves over the country present a splendid appearance.

Marshall Smith purposes erecting another two-story business building (brick veneer) adjoining his present one on the west, beginning as soon as he can get the material in shape. This together with one which Mr. Eimers will erect on the east, will make a handsome row.

Some (a very few, however) of the squatters upon the Pawnee reservation have an idea that they have a better "show" for purchasing the land "squared" upon than others. In this they are mistaken, except that they can perhaps afford to pay higher prices than others, the reason being that these lands held in trust by the government for the Pawnee tribe.

One of our acquaintances who likes trading and trafficking in stock, rather than the actual muscle work of farm life, says that working in the ground for a living reminds him of a story a farmer once told himself. His son started to plow and didn't succeed so well as he thought he ought, and finally concluded there was something wrong with the plow, but was not able to determine just what was wrong with it. After working all day with it, he informed his father that he couldn't make it work right. Next day the father took hold of it and followed it slowly and thoughtfully around the field for a couple of hours and finally discovered that the point was broke off. Our friends say that after four years' experience at money making by raising wheat, corn, oats, etc., he has discovered that "the point is off the plow."

George T. Mayboro, who was enroute from Grant, Michigan, to Dillard, Oregon, was struck by Denver train No. 11 at Benton Tuesday morning, and died just as the train reached this city. Mayboro was in charge of a car of stock and emigrant movables, and was on his way to his new home in the west. His car was in the train of No. 51, a freight, and when Benton was reached the freight took the siding to allow the fast train to pass. The man had been up to his car and when he started on his second trip to it was told by brakeman Goodno, who was on the freight, that they were on the siding to let the fast train pass, and told him to be careful. The man evidently paid no attention to the warning, as when the passenger train approached he evidently lost his head and stepped in front of it. The fast train was stopped and he was placed on board, and died just as they reached this city. When the freight arrived they sent a report of the accident to headquarters and were instructed to leave Mayboro's emigrant car here until his relatives were notified, which was done as soon as possible after the accident. Coroner Gass has charge of Mayboro's body and will hold an inquest Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A message was sent to the former home of Mayboro, in Grant, Mich., and a reply received referring the authorities here to relatives at Dillard, Ore. They were communicated with and late Wednesday evening a message was received from Warren Lucas, a brother-in-law of Mayboro's, telling them to hold the body and take care of the boy. As none here knew anything about a boy accompanying Mayboro, a search of the car was made and after considerable trouble they located a twelve year old boy stowed away near the end, and after a while he was persuaded to come out. The boy did not know what had happened, and when he got out remarked that he was dry as he had been without water for several hours. The boy, who is a son of Mayboro, is in charge of Union Pacific Agent Brown, awaiting the arrival of his uncle from Dillard.

Manager Corbett of the Columbus base ball club is arranging a practice game with the Lindsay team next Sunday. While so far none of the players have reported, he expects a number to reach here by that time. Five pitchers are scheduled to arrive by that time. Weisenberger of Beardstown, Ill., Spaid of Hayworth, Ill., Bockenmuehl of Cedar Bluffs, Neb., Kiesel, who has been here during the winter, and Towne of Creston, Ia., a south paw who was signed up by Manager Corbett during the last week. Anstine, one of the outfielders, from Belgrade, and Gutzmer of this city, will be included in the lineup for next Sunday. Next week the players will report for the tryout season, and no doubt other games will be arranged before the opening of the season on May 12. The grounds are being put in excellent condition, and the damage caused by Wednesday's storm all repaired.

Fannie H. Lightner, wife of Isaiah Lightner, living two miles west of Monroe, died Friday morning from an attack of pneumonia and heart trouble. She had been in poor health for some time and her advanced age made her recovery impossible. Mrs. Lightner was of Quaker parentage and was born in Pennsylvania. She came west with her husband, who was for a time agent at the Santee Sioux Indian agency in the northern part of the state. They came to Platte county in 1876 and settled two miles west of Monroe, which has since been their home. She leaves, besides her husband, two sons, Stephen W. of St. Edward, and Chas. Lightner of Monroe, and Mrs. P. A. Matson, and Mrs. Ed Dubrava, both of Monroe. Saturday evening the board of education elected three of the teachers for the coming year, Miss Lena Taylor of Madison for the primary, Miss Velma Covert of this city and Miss Sylvia Allness, who has been teaching here, for the Third and Fourth grades, and Miss Martha Schoedel of Fairmont, for the Sixth and Seventh grades. This leaves but one vacancy to fill in the grade teachers, the one at the First ward, Prof. C. E. Collett, who has been elected principal of the Fairmont schools, has resigned and as yet the board has not filled the position made vacant by the resignation. The next meeting of the board will be Saturday evening, April 29, at which time the bids for remodeling the High school building will be opened.

Hugh Hughes returned Tuesday evening from his winter's sojourn at Los Angeles and other points on the Pacific coast. After leaving California he visited Salt Lake for a time and also Denver and Cheyenne, this being his last stop, and Hughes says that during his stay he met a number of former Columbus people who now reside in Los Angeles and reports them as doing well. Mrs. Magatz, who has been in poor health, is much better than a year ago. In speaking of industrial conditions in that section of the country, he says that people who are doing well had better stay in Nebraska, as there are many idle people, not only in Los Angeles, but other places on the Pacific coast.
