RICHLAND.

Felix and Bruno Luschei drove to Platte Center Monday, where they have rented ground and intend to put in some wheat.

Bert Stevenson and wife transacted business in Schuyler Thursday.

Fred Kluck was a county seat visitor Thursday.

Mrs. Henry Smith, of Shell Creek, visited with her mother, Mrs. John Keller Thursday.

Mrs. Ed Yonkie entertained a few relatives at luncheon Thursday.

Mrs. Fritz Settgast has been quite poorly of late, and is under the doctor's care.

William Bell is enjoying a lay off visiting friends at Genoa.

Mrs. Thomas Stellman took the Tuesday for her new home at Gothenburg, Nebraska. Mr. Steelman and his brother followed with their household goods, stock etc., which they shipped. Friday evening before their departure about forty of their neighbors gave them a farewell surprise. All enjoyed the music, songs and refreshments provided, and spent an enjoyable evening after which good byes were said and best wishes extended for good luck in their western home.

A baby daughter arrived at the George Rambaour home Sunday.

Signs of all kinds artistically executed for all business. Ben Betterton.

Mrs. Myrtle Flaxel has recently been granted a divorce from John C. Flaxel, for which she sued a few weeks ago. In the decree she is permitted to resume her former name of Mrs. Myrtle McPetry.

Emil Schwartz has written home folks that his address in the future will be at Aurora. He and Paul Hoppen have decided to branch out in the theater business, Paul staying in charge of the Kearney house and Emil going to Aurora, where they have purchased a theater.

Henry, the sixteen year old son of Mrs. Herman Johannes, died last Saturday at Beatrice, where he had been in a hospital. He had not been in good health for some time. The body was shipped home for burial, the funeral being held yesterday afternoon at the home of his mother, being conducted by Rev. R. Neumarker. Interment was made in Columbus cemetery.

A good many of the people of any community are always glad when they have the opportunity to help one of their neighbors in any event open to wide competition, especially if there be no other competitor in the same community. Wilmer Barnes has entered the big automobile contest of the Omaha Daily News, and will appreciate all the help he can get from any of his friends in the contest. Let us bring that grand prize to Columbus by helping Wilmer Barnes win it.

The county board met Monday afternoon, the meeting having been called to arrange the levy for the various funds for the next year. This morning a resolution was presented by Supervisor Dassenbrock, of the Creston district, looking to some way of securing the opinion of the people of the county in regard to the matter of securing a new court house. The board this afternoon is considering the matter and will probably devise some way in which the sentiment of the people can be ascertained before taking up the proposition of calling an election, as they wish to find the popular sentiment without going to this expense. Should the people appear to favor the proposition a special election will probably be called later.

Methodist Church Notes.

Gypsy Queens.

On occasions America treats its gypsy monarchs with full regal pomp. Matilda Stanley was accorded an almost royal funeral in 1878 at Dayton, O. where, ten years later, another queen was crowned with all proper ceremonial. In England, too, gypsy queens have received all due honor. Esther Faa Blythe, who died in 1883, had many members of the aristocracy on her visiting list, and she, too, had a regular coronation. But, on the whole, the gypsy has not had a very good time in England. An act of 1562, for example, made it a felony without benefit of clergy to be merely seen for a month in the society of gypsies, while for actually being a gypsy no punishment was too severe.—London Standard.

A Premium on Marriage.

In Belgium they place a premium on marriage by allowing a married man two votes at an election as against the single man's one. In Madagascar one must be a father or pay for the default. If a man is unmarried or childless at the age of twenty-five he must contribute annually $3.75 to the support of the state, and each woman who has remained single or is childless at twenty-four is taxed $1.80 per year.

A "Friendly Match."

I speak of a "friendly match," not at all forgetting that dictum of the old Scot to whom his opponent, breaking some trivial rule, said, "I suppose you won't claim that in a friendly match?" "Friendly match" was the reply. "There's no such thing at golf!"—London Telegraph.

Much is done in the name of friendship; so are many.—Exchange.

THE CYCLOPEAN EYE.

It Exists Today in Rudimentary Form in Man's Brain.

The Greeks were, unwittingly, very near an anatomical truth when they ascribed to certain monsters called cyclops only one eye apiece, which was placed in the center of their foreheads.

The cyclopean eye exists today in the brains of men in a rudimentary form, for in the pineal gland we find the last vestiges of that which was once a third eye and which looked out into the world, if not from the center of the forehead, at least from very near that point. There is alive today a little creature which would put to shame the one-eyed arrogance and pride of Polyphemus and Argos and Brontes and Steropes and all the rest of the single-eyed gentry who, in the days of myths and myth makers, inhabited the "fair Scyllian Isle."

The animal in question is a small lizard called Calotis. Its well developed third eye is situated in the top of its head and can be easily seen through the modified and transparent scale which serves it as a cornea. Many other lacertilians have this third eye, though it is not so highly organized as it is in the species just mentioned.

A tree lizard which is to be found in the mountains of east Tennessee and Kentucky has its "third eye" well developed. This little animal is called the "singing scorpion" by the mountaineers. On dissection the third eye will be found lying beneath the skin. It has a lens, retina and optic nerve.—New York Herald.

BEAUTIFUL LEAVES.

And the Tiny Cells that Give Them Their Brilliant Hues.

A leaf is one of the most beautiful things in nature, and it is very wonderful to think that it owes its lovely color to minute little living bodies or cells of chlorophyll. This word comes from two Greek ones, chloros, green, and phyllon, a leaf, and is used to describe the ordinary coloring matter of vegetation.

The chlorophyll cells or granules absorb the light and heat of the sun's rays and in some marvellous way, which only scientists can understand, manufacture the sugar which is necessary for the life of the tree itself by combining the carbonic acid gas of the atmosphere with the water drawn in by its roots. These tiny cells are so very small that as many as 400,000 have been counted in a square millimeter of the leaf of a castor oil plant, and in order that they may come in contact with as much sunlight as possible the leaf turns slightly on its stalk toward the sun.

If you notice the arrangement of the leaves on a bough you will see that nature has placed them so that they form an almost perfect "light screen" and catch all the sunshine that there is. If it were not for the constant work of these little chlorophyll cells the splendid trees in our forests would wither and die and there would be no green things left in the world.—London Home Notes.

The Secretary Bird.

The long legged South African secretary birds travel in pairs, male and female. If disturbed or pursued their pace is about as fast as that of a running horse. They seldom use their wings, and if compelled to do so can soar to a considerable height. They build bulky nests, and where trees are to be had they select one fifty to a hundred feet above the ground. Their nests are built of sticks and sods, lined with grass, and measure as much as five feet in diameter and three feet in thickness. As a rule only two eggs are laid. Incubation takes six weeks, which is done by the female. The young have to remain in their nests several months before they can stand on their long, slender legs, which are very weak and brittle. The young usually break their legs if disturbed.—Scientific American.

Old Time Theater Rowdies.

Rowdism in London theaters was a common occurrence in the old days, as is shown by the following from the London Post of Oct. 27, 1798:

"Two men in the pit at Drury Lane theater last night were so turbulent and riotous during the last act of 'Henry V.' that the performance was interrupted upward of a quarter of an hour. The audience at last asserted their power and threw at them a shower of stones, which they should always be done to crush the race of disgusting puppets that are a constant nuisance at the playhouse every night."

Water melons, from 10 to 35 cents. Both home grown and imported, at Echols & Kump's.

SEEING THE FAR EAST.

It Should Be Viewed Through the Bible and "Arabian Nights."

The best books on the east, as every one knows, are the Bible and the "Arabian Nights," and yet I found most travelers were saturating themselves with supple descriptions of monuments and places, with tabloids of history, with technical paragraphs on architecture and the ethnic religions, with figures about the height of this and the length of that or condensed statistics of exports and imports and the tonnage through the Suez canal and dates about the Pharaohs and the Mughals. No wonder they see nothing, know nothing, enjoy nothing and come home bringing a few expetives, adjectives and photographs which can be had for a small price in either New York or London.

The first thing to do in going to the east is to turn your education out on your desk so that you can get at the bottom of it, and there you will find the Bible and the "Arabian Nights" and the "Odyssey" and "Iliad" and "Virgil" and "Herodotus" and "Xenophon," and you will realize what a fool you were not to have devoted more time to them when you were asked to do so. Guide books can get you to the east, but they do not get you inside. It is temperament, not trains, that counts.—Price Collier in Scribner's Magazine.
