

ASHAMED.

A splendidly successful citizen of Philadelphia with a big brain and a good heart, notwithstanding his rigid and somewhat zealous adherence to the republican party, thus writes of the Quay methods, morals and statesmanship prevailing in Pennsylvania.

"Our legislature failed to return Mr. Quay to the senate, but our new governor named him promptly for the place, and it is to be feared that he will succeed in having himself seated. I feel ashamed of my state for allowing itself to be the submissive tool of its professional politicians, whose wiles and energies are bent to the accumulation of 'spoils.' The present state administration is probably the most corrupt we have ever had, and our new city government is no better. It looks as if we should presently be compelled to turn in and elect a democratic regime, in order to escape the evils which the 'bosses' of our own party have entailed upon us. A revolution of that kind is the natural outgrowth of the conditions now involving us, and come it will as sure as the earth turns on its axis."

A gold-standard democracy could carry Pennsylvania in 1900. Free silver fanatics can never carry it.

THE CONSERVATIVE,
Nebraska City, Neb.

You are inconsistent. Your arguments in favor of industrial combinations logically lead to the survival of the strong at the financial ruin of the weak. The fundamental principles advocated are monarchial in tendency. In your arguments in opposition to imperialism or expansion you prove that a popular government and the government of the United States in particular is a failure in all its functions. While your head-lines flourish the principles of government by the consent of the governed you prove such a government a failure. The arguments in favor of monarchial governments were never better presented, and sustained by cited facts.

Respectfully,
EDW. A. BRODBOLL.
