E. M. CAMPBELL.

EDITOR CONSERVATIVE:

I am in receipt of a letter, requesting me to furnish a letter to your paper, of which I am a reader, stating what I have done and am doing under the present industrial and social conditions. I am glad of the opportunity to participate in the articles you are to publish, as to a young man's chances to make his way in the world.

Upon leaving school, eleven years ago, and at your suggestion and with Mr. Brown's permission, I was enabled to enter the employ of the C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., and at the end of three years, I shifted to other fields, which proved all but successful, owing to the panicky times, during which it was almost impossible to make any advancement, as there was a general curtailment in all lines of business. Four years ago, I re-entered the employ of the C. B. & Q. R. R. Co., under Mr. Brown, and since then I have been enabled to make a slow and steady advance, but to do this I have applied myself closely, endeavoring at all times to thoroughly understand whatever I was doing, realizing it would be necessary to advancement, and that opportunities would be offered, as business was sure to increase and will continue to do so, since the policy of our government is sufficiently settled to give confidence to capital, with which our chances lie.

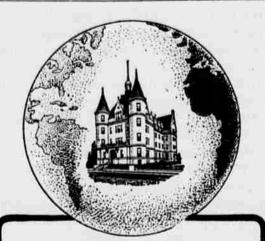

When starting in life, if the young man enters with a will to excel in whatever he chooses, and will stick to it, unceasingly, he will surely win out, as the opportunities for such a young man are better than ever before, as everything has been brought to such a high state that the services of the best are always in demand.
